The Philosophy of the Centre’s Work

The Centre determined after a thorough legal assessment of the peace accords signed by the PLO and the Israeli government that the occupation would continue both physically and legally. According to these agreements Israel has redeployed its forces inside the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, while Israeli settlements and military installations maintain their presence in Palestinian territory. The major legal aspects of the Israeli occupation remain in place. Israeli military orders that safeguard Israeli control over the Palestinian people and their land remain valid in accordance with the peace agreement. The Israeli military court is still functioning and to this day thousands of Palestinians languish in Israeli prisons. The essential elements of the Palestinian issue remain unresolved - the right to self-determination, the right to an independent Palestinian state with its capital in Jerusalem, the right of return for Palestinian refugees, and the right to remove illegal Israeli settlements from the Occupied Territories. All of these constitute basic unfulfilled rights of the Palestinian people. In light of this wide-ranging disregard for Palestinian rights, the Centre concludes it must continue its work to protect Palestinian human rights from ongoing violations by the Israeli government and courts.

The peace accords and the major political changes resulting from the agreement, including the establishment of the Palestinian National Authority in part of the Occupied Territories, has led to a vital and active role for the Centre in protecting civil and political rights and in promoting the development of democratic institutions, an active civil society, and a democratic legal system in Palestine.
Work Units of the Centre

The Centre is composed of specialised working units which carry out their activities in an autonomous but integrated manner.

Field Work Unit

Field work is considered the basic activity of the Centre. Well-trained field workers located in different areas of the Gaza Strip and the West Bank obtain accurate and documented legal information on human rights violations in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank, including occupied East Jerusalem. They gather information in the field from victims and witnesses of human rights violations. The information is received by the co-ordinator of the unit and other researchers to verify accuracy. Through the field workers’ presence in the field the Centre has been able to maintain close contacts with the community. In this way, the community is able to influence the work of the Centre and the Centre is able to meet the community’s interests and demands.

Legal Unit

This unit is composed primarily of a team of lawyers who give free legal aid and counselling to individuals and groups. The unit also carries out legal intervention with concerned bodies and makes legal representations before courts in cases that involve broad principles of human rights that affect not just the individual before the court but the community as a whole. Furthermore, the unit attempts to support the independence of the judiciary and the rule of law.

Democratic Development Unit

This unit specialises in the promotion of democracy, civil society, and the rule of law. The unit’s team carries out research and organises workshops and seminars to discuss issues on human rights and democracy. The unit’s team also prepares comments on draft laws prepared by the Palestinian Authority in an effort to influence the decision-making process and the adoption of democratic laws. The unit has been also involved in providing training on human rights and democracy for youth groups.

Economic and Social Rights Unit

This unit seeks to ensure the importance of economic and social rights through research and study. Such work is particularly important because it tends to be neglected, to some extent, by other human rights organisations. To achieve its goals the unit conducts studies, workshops, and seminars that focus attention on economic and social rights in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. The unit seeks to develop recommendations and standards for each of these rights to be fulfilled in the Palestinian situation. Moreover, the unit reviews and assesses the legislation and draft laws pertaining to these rights adopted by the Palestinian Authority in an effort to secure legislation that is in harmony with international standards. The unit further seeks to provide an informative training base for governmental and non-governmental personnel who are empowered to set plans and implement programs and policies relevant to these rights. The goal of such training is to help bring economic and social rights into alignment with the standards accepted internationally and to ensure the maximum degree of implementation of these rights.

Woman Rights Unit

This Unit was established as a pilot project in May of 1997 for one year, renewable upon assessment of its accomplishments. The initial project was established after a thorough and comprehensive study of the conditions of Palestinian women and the work of women’s institutions in the Gaza Strip. The Unit aims to provide legal aid for women and women’s organisations. Intervention on behalf of women in Shari’a courts is included in its mandate. The Unit further aims to raise awareness of women’s rights established by international human rights conventions and to raise the awareness of Palestinian women in regard to their rights under local law. Finally, the Unit is carrying out studies on Palestinian women and the law, while supporting the amendment of local laws inconsistent with women’s rights.

The Library

The Centre has established a specialised legal library in subjects related to local and international law, human rights, and democracy. The library includes books and periodicals in both Arabic and English and includes all Palestinian laws and Israeli military orders. Documents pertaining to laws of neighbouring Arab countries are also available. Furthermore, the library includes a variety of books and periodicals detailing the Palestinian question and the Arab-Israeli conflict. The library is open for the free use of researchers, academics, and students.
The Palestinian Centre for Human Rights

The Palestinian Centre for Human Rights is an independent non-profit legal agency based in Gaza city. The Centre was established in April 1995 by a group of Palestinian lawyers and human rights activists in order to protect human rights and promote the rule of law in accordance with international standards, create and develop democratic institutions and an active civil society in Palestine in accordance with internationally accepted standards and practices and support all efforts aimed at enabling the Palestinian people to exercise their inalienable rights according to international law.

Annual Report 2010

This report is the outcome of PCHR’s activities in 2010. PCHR has published annual reports since 1997.

PCHR’s 2010 Annual Report is divided into two sections:

» Part One provides a comprehensive picture of the human rights situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory (oPt) from 1 January to 31 December 2010. It is divided into two sub-sections:
  1) Violations of international human rights and humanitarian law perpetrated in the oPt by Israeli forces; and
  2) Human rights violations perpetrated by the respective Palestinian authorities in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, and obstacles to democratic reform in the Palestinian National Authority (PNA).

» Part Two documents PCHR’s activities from 1 January to 31 December 2010. It covers activities by PCHR and its units at both national and international levels over the course of the year.

PCHR’s 2010 financial report, which is prepared by an independent professional auditing institution, will be published as a separate document.

Like previous reports, PCHR hopes that this report will contribute to the struggle for human rights by providing a comprehensive picture of the human rights situation in the oPt. It is also hoped that relevant parties will follow the recommendations contained herein, especially those recommendations which are directed to the international community and the PNA. This report serves as a guide for PCHR’s future work and also reflects PCHR’s strong belief in the importance of transparency for a non-profit, non-governmental organization that provides services to the community.

It should also serve as a call for victims of human rights violations to approach PCHR for advice and assistance.
PART (1): HUMAN RIGHTS SITUATION IN THE OPT
PART (1):
HUMAN RIGHTS SITUATION IN THE OPT
The human rights situation in the oPt continued to deteriorate throughout 2010; Israeli forces continued to perpetrate grave breaches of international human rights law and international humanitarian law, and committed more crimes against Palestinian civilians and their property. In this context, Israel continued to impose a tightened closure on the Gaza Strip, and severe restrictions on the movement of Palestinian civilians inside the West Bank. Palestinians were also arrested and detained, and subject to torture and inhuman and degrading treatment. In 2010, Israel escalated settlement activities in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, and Israeli settlers continued to attack Palestinian civilians and their property. Additionally, Israel continued the illegal construction of the annexation wall inside the territory of the West Bank.

Israel would be unable to consistently violate its international legal obligations, and to act as a state above the law, if the international community – particularly the High Contracting Parties to the Geneva Conventions and the United Nations – undertook serious steps to prevent such violations and prosecute the perpetrators. The recommendations included in the report of the UN Fact-Finding Mission on the Gaza Conflict (the ‘Goldstone Report’) and the resultant process within UN bodies was a major test, demonstrating the depth of the international crisis generated when political interests are placed above the rule of law. The Goldstone Report provided a clear mechanism for accountability and prosecution of suspected war criminals. However, over the year, political efforts were made to frustrate the progress of the report in the UN Human Rights Council to prevent its transfer to higher UN bodies, in particular the UN Security Council. In spite of all parties failure and genuine unwillingness to conduct impartial investigations in accordance with the requirements of international law and the recommendations of the Goldstone Report, political pressure was exerted in the UN Human Rights Council to prevent the referral of the situation in Israel and the oPt to the International Criminal Court. Victims’ rights were again sacrificed for the sake of political interests, allowing Israel to continue to act as a state above the law, and granting criminals impunity. It is feared that this blanket impunity may even encourage the commission of future crimes.

Over the year, the closure and collective punishment policies imposed by Israel on the Palestinian civilian populations has been the most significant element with respect to Israel’s violation of Palestinian’s human rights.

Two years after Israel’s 27 December 2008 – 18 January 2009 offensive on the Gaza Strip, pledges to reconstruct the Gaza Strip have not been fulfilled. The major factor obstructing reconstruction efforts by donors, official bodies and civilians has been the closure of Gaza’s commercial crossings and the Israeli-imposed ban on the import of construction materials. Thousands of houses have been demolished or destroyed by Israeli forces since the beginning of the second Palestinian Intifada, especially during the offensive on the Gaza Strip in December 2008 and January 2009, and the suffering of Palestinian civilians who lost their homes has continued as they have been unable to rebuild or repair their homes; many have continued to live in tents set up on the debris of their homes.

The Palestinian civilian population in the Gaza Strip has not experienced any major changes to the closure policy, although several months have passed since Israel declared an ostensible facilitation of the entry of goods and commodities into the Gaza Strip in June 2010. Israel increased the quantity of certain goods allowed into the Gaza Strip, but continued to impose a ban on strategic goods, especially construction materials and raw materials for industry. Additionally, Israel has continued to impose a ban on agricultural and industrial exports from the Gaza Strip.

PCHR has consistently expressed concern regarding the closure imposed on the Gaza Strip and its potential legitimization by the international community, which risks pushing the Gaza Strip into another stage of ‘institutionalised’, and internationally accepted, closure. Palestinians may not suffer from a lack of certain goods, but their economic dependency and their social, cultural and academic isolation continues.

The tightened closure imposed on the Gaza Strip for more than 4 years constitutes a violation of international law. Increasing the goods allowed into the Gaza Strip does not change anything with regard to the fundamental illegality of this policy, which is in contradiction with the legal obligations of Israel as an occupying power, and under international human rights instruments, to which Israel is a party, including the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) issued a statement on 14 June 2010, in which it stressed that the closure constitutes a form of collective punishment against Palestinian civilians, for a crime they have not committed, in violation of international humanitarian law.

In the West Bank, Israel has continued to impose severe restrictions on the movement of Palestinian civilians through the establishment of 585 barriers, including 65 manned checkpoints, 22 sporadically manned checkpoints, 80 gates on the annexation wall and 418 unmanned roadblocks. In spite of Israel’s claims to have dismantled a number of checkpoints, many such checkpoints were moved to other places and/or they were close to other checkpoints, which means that the situation has not significantly changed.¹

In 2010, Israel continued to commit crimes, and violations of the right to life and personal security, against Palestinian civilians in the oPt. Israeli forces killed 89 Palestinians, including 46 civilians. The civilian victims included 9 children and one woman. Additionally, 509 Palestinians were wounded in 2010. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, in many instances Israeli forces used excessive and disproportionate force against Palestinian civilians, who are protected persons under international humanitarian law. Attacks disregarded the principles of distinction and proportionality, and there is evidence indicating that Israeli forces carried out retaliatory actions against Palestinian civilians.

In the Gaza Strip, in spite of the almost complete calm that has prevailed since the end of the Israeli military offensive on the Gaza Strip in January 2009 - including a cessation in the firing of rockets into Israeli towns - Israeli forces continued to target and kill Palestinians. In 2010, Israeli forces killed 72 Palestinians in the Gaza Strip, including 29 civilians. The civilian victims include 5 children and one woman. Most of the civilian victims were killed at times of complete calm by Israeli snipers positioned along the border between the Gaza Strip and Israel, who fire at whoever gets close to the so-called ‘buffer zone’ along the border between the Gaza Strip and Israel.

In the West Bank, in 2010, Israeli forces and Israeli settlers killed 17 Palestinian civilians, including 4 children. All of these civilians were killed when they did not pose any threat to the lives of Israeli soldiers.

including 5 who were killed at times of complete calm. The victims include two civilians who were killed when Israeli forces used excessive force against peaceful demonstration organized to protest against the confiscation of Palestinian land to facilitate construction of the illegal annexation wall in the West Bank. Three civilians were killed during incursions conducted by Israeli forces into Palestinian communities. Four Palestinian activists were also extra-judicially executed by Israeli undercover units. Additionally, Israeli settlers continued to attack Palestinian civilians in the West Bank. In 2010, 3 Palestinian civilians were killed and 11 others were wounded by Israeli settlers.

The number of individuals killed by Israeli forces and settlers in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip from September 2000 (the outbreak of the second Intifada) until the end of December 2010 amounts to 6,546, including 5,083 civilians - 1,733 in the West Bank (34%) and 3,350 in the Gaza Strip (66%). The civilian victims include 1,276 children (26%), 369 women (5.5%) and 6 foreigners. Additionally, tens of thousands of others have been wounded, some of whom have sustained permanent disabilities. The wounded include 17,078 persons in the Gaza Strip, including 5,487 children.

By the end of 2010, at least 6,500 Palestinians, including 215 children and 37 women, were still in Israeli custody in 22 prisons and detention facilities mostly inside Israel, in violation of article 76 of the Fourth Geneva Convention which obligates the occupying power to detain persons from occupied territory in that territory. The number of prisoners from the Gaza Strip is at least 700, and the number of prisoners from Jerusalem and from Palestinians living inside Israel is approximately 400. By the end of 2010, at least 214 Palestinians were still in custody under administrative detention orders issued by Israeli forces.

In addition, Israeli forces have continued to detain political leaders and representatives of the Palestinian people. By the end of 2010, at least 14 members of the Palestinian Legislative Council remained in detention.

Palestinian prisoners in Israeli jails are subjected to various forms of torture and cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment. The prolonged detention process often starts with violent beating and insults and extends to various methods of torture exerted during interrogation. In 2010, PCHR received more reports regarding various methods of interrogation used against Palestinian detainees, including minors, held in Israeli jails and detention centers, which constitute torture and ill-treatment as defined both in the Convention against Torture and other international instruments.

Palestinian prisoners are detained under harsh conditions, which often includes the denial of access to medical care thereby contributing to health deterioration, especially for those detainees suffering from chronic and serious diseases. Many prisoners are also denied family visitation rights; prisoners from the Gaza Strip have been denied family visitation for nearly four years and prisoners from the West Bank have been given the opportunity of family visitation only sporadically. Furthermore, many prisoners are detained in solitary confinement for prolonged periods of time.

On 13 April 2010, two Israeli military orders came into effect, potentially turning all West Bank residents into “infiltrators.” Order No. 1650 regarding Prevention of Infiltration and Order No. 1649 regarding Security Provisions were issued in October 2009 as amendments to an old military order (1969) which declared “infiltrators” coming from Jordan, Syria, Egypt or Lebanon (the so-called “enemy states” at the time of the issuance of the order) liable to imprisonment and deportation.

The new orders define an “infiltrator” in such generic terms that an incalculable number of persons currently present in the West Bank could potentially fall under that definition and consequently incur criminal liability and/or be subject to deportation. An "infiltrator" is defined as "a person who entered the Area unlawfully" or "a person who is present in the Area and does not lawfully hold a permit". The 'Area' refers to the occupied West Bank.

Pursuant to Military order No. 1650 any person who unlawfully entered the area shall be sentenced to seven years imprisonment, whereas an individual who has lawfully entered the area but does not "hold a permit" shall be sentenced to three years imprisonment.

As a consequence of the dramatic expansion and ambiguity of the new definition of "infiltrator" the Order not applies to people coming from so-called "enemy states", as in the past; it now potentially applies to every Palestinian, both those who were born in the West Bank and those who lawfully moved to it, for instance from Gaza or from abroad.

Israel has continued to attack journalists despite the protection extended to them under customary international humanitarian law. Journalists have been subjected to various forms of attack in an apparent attempt by Israeli forces to prevent media coverage of human rights violations perpetrated against Palestinian civilians in the oPt. PCHR believe that Israel's attacks against the press form part of a systematic policy intended to isolate the oPt from the outside world and to cover up crimes committed against civilians. In 2010, such attacks included firing at journalists (potential violation of their right to life and personal security); beating and other forms of cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment; denial of access of journalists to certain areas; denial of travel; and raids on houses of journalists. PCHR documented 57 cases of firing at Journalists in the oPt in 2010, as a result of which 46 journalists were wounded.

In 2010, Israeli forces continued to demolish Palestinian civilian property in the oPt, particularly in Jerusalem. They demolished or destroyed civilian facilities, including houses, industrial and commercial establishments, and destroyed agricultural lands and crops. The suffering of the Palestinian civilian population is aggravated as a consequence of this policy, especially in the Gaza Strip, which has a serious shortage of construction materials required for the reconstruction of destroyed property.

According to PCHR's documentation, Israeli forces completely destroyed 13 houses (comprising 88 housing units), in which 60 individuals, including 268 children, lived in the Gaza Strip. They also partially destroyed 35 houses (comprising 74 housing units), in which 375 individuals, including 235 children, lived.

Israeli forces also destroyed civilian facilities, including industrial, health, agricultural, sports, service and commercial facilities. In 2010, Israeli forces destroyed 6 civilian facilities completely and 29 partially. In the Gaza Strip, agricultural lands were extensively razed and agricultural facilities were destroyed.

Israeli forces also continued to demolish Palestinian houses in Area "C" (under full Israeli control according to the terms of the Oslo Accords) for the purpose of settlement expansion. In 2010, this policy was focused on Palestinian areas in occupied East Jerusalem, where Israeli forces demolished Palestinian houses under various pretexts, including the lack of building licenses.

In 2010, Israeli forces demolished 194 houses in the West Bank, including 63 in East Jerusalem; a further 15 Palestinian civilians in East Jerusalem were forced to demolish their own homes. Additionally, Israeli forces issued 1,393 demolition orders for houses in East Jerusalem and Areas C. Palestinian civilians, are often forced to destroy their houses themselves in order to avoid paying extremely high fines.

In 2010, the Israeli government intensified settlement activity in all areas of the West Bank, especially East Jerusalem. In spite of the Israeli government’s declaration of a partial suspension of settlement activities and in spite of increasing international criticism, the Israeli government increased its settlement activities, allegedly to meet the needs of ‘natural growth’ in settlements, this was particularly relevant to the last quarter of 2010.

In 2010, Israel continued to confiscate Palestinian civilian property for the purpose of settlement expansion, in violation of international humanitarian law, which prohibits changing the nature of an occupied territory without military necessity, a condition not fulfilled in these cases. During the year, Israel confiscated and/or leveled at least 13,149 dunums\(^2\) of land across the West Bank; this figure includes areas of land annexed by Israeli settlers but does not include closed areas, such as the Jordan Valley in the east of the West Bank, access to which by Palestinians is prohibited by Israeli forces. Additionally, Israeli forces and settlers uprooted or burnt at least 10,346 olive trees in the West Bank.

The Israeli government and its occupation forces have continued settlement activities in East Jerusalem and its suburbs in an effort to create a Jewish demographic majority in the city. They have cut off the city from the Palestinian hinterland in the West Bank, constructed new sections of the annexation wall and continued activities of settlement expansion inside and around the city. The Israeli Municipality of Jerusalem has continued to demolish Palestinian houses under the pretext of unlicensed construction. In 2010, there was an escalation in house and civilian property demolition notices delivered to Palestinian civilians in East Jerusalem and its suburbs.

In 2010, the Israeli government approved a law classifying Jerusalem as “a priority area” and puts it among “development areas in the fields of housing, education and employment.” In this context, an Israeli ministerial committee approved the construction of ten thousand settlement units and hotel rooms in Israeli settlements in Jerusalem; Israeli occupation authorities started the construction of 1,200 settlement units.

In the same context, the District Organization and Construction Committee of the Israeli Municipality of Jerusalem approved the new structural plan of al-Buraq Wall, which includes the expansion of the Davidson Center to absorb at least 400,000 visitors each year, digging tunnels under al-Buraq Yard, building underground Jewish centers and police, changing the entrances of al-Buraq Yard, digging new tunnels linking al-Buraq Wall with Silwan village, and establishing public parks for buses and cars.

In addition to these illegal measures, the Israeli Ministry of Interior continued to withdraw identity cards from Palestinian civilians living in the city and to expel them from the city to areas in the West Bank. In a serious development in this context, on 08 December 2010, Israeli occupation authorities illegally transferred Mohammed Abu Tair, a member of the Palestinian Legislative Council (PLC) for the Change and Reform Bloc (Hamas movement), from Jerusalem, his place of residence, to Ramallah. The authorities summoned Abu Tair, two PLC Members – Ahmed ‘Atwan, 42, and Mohammed Toutah, 41 – and former Minister of Jerusalem Affairs, Khaled Abu ‘Arafa, 49, in June 2010 to al-Maskoubiya detention center, and informed them of a decision to withdraw their identity cards. Israeli occupation authorities gave them temporary residence permits due to expire on 03 July 2010. While ‘Atwan, Toutah and Abu ‘Arafa fled to the headquarters of the ICRC in Sheikh Jarrah neighborhood and remained there in a tent until the end of the year, Israeli occupation authorities arrested Abu Tair and detained him until the date of his transfer.

Additionally, Israeli forces have continued to impose severe restrictions on the activities of Palestinian NGOs in Jerusalem, claiming that they are linked with the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) and/or the PNA, even though the identity and activities of those NGOs are clear. Measures by Israeli forces included raiding the offices of NGOs and prohibiting or closing down official and public meetings, including those of a social nature, claiming that such activities are linked with the PLO or the PNA.

In 2010, attacks by Israeli settlers against Palestinian civilians and property continued. Such attacks included shootings, running down civilians with vehicles, and destruction of or damage to civilian property. In 2010, a Palestinian child was killed by Israeli settlers near Ramallah. This brings the number of Palestinian civilians killed by Israeli settlers to 48 since the beginning of the second Intifada in September 2000.

In 2010, PCHR documented 291 attacks by Israeli settlers, the majority of them in Jerusalem. Attacks in 2010 were distributed as follows: 72 in Jerusalem; 64 in Hebron; 67 in Nablus; 25 in Ramallah and al-Bireh; 28 in Qalqilya; 20 in Salit; 7 in Bethlehem; 4 in Tulkarm; 3 in Jericho; and 1 in Jenin. The categories of the attacks were: 5 cases of shooting; 46 cases of harassment; 24 attacks against houses; 78 attacks against farmers, shepherds and their property; 27 attacks against religious sites; 2 attacks of running down; and 109 other attacks, including closing roads and throwing rocks at Palestinian civilian vehicles.

Israel has continued construction of the annexation wall inside the West Bank. In 2010, construction was primarily focused in the area around Jerusalem. Israel has completed the construction of the majority of the wall around the city according to the plans of the Israeli Municipality of Jerusalem. The Israeli judiciary has also continued its traditional role of serving the policies of Israeli occupation authorities; the Israeli High Court rejected a number of petitions submitted by Palestinian civilians against the confiscation of their lands for the purpose of the construction of the wall. In very rare cases, the court ordered slight changes to the route of the wall, most of these changes have not been implemented.

Israeli forces have imposed severe restrictions on the movement of Palestinians on both sides of the wall. In 2010, the hours during which gates established along the wall are opened was reduced, restricting Palestinian farmers access to their agricultural lands, which are isolated behind the wall. Such measures aim at reducing working hours of farmers, and thus depriving them of their sources of income.

The impact of restrictions on the movement of Palestinians living near the wall has not been limited to the agricultural sector, but includes numerous other aspects of life. Palestinians’ access to medical care, education and their relatives has been restricted, as Palestinians are required to obtain permits to move through gates established on the wall, which are operated under a strict security system. Israeli forces often close these gates for no apparent reason.

In the face of such pervasive violations of international law, Palestinians are systematically denied access to justice. The Israeli legal system – including mechanisms of investigation adopted by the Israeli military – is fundamentally biased against Palestinians. Inherent flaws in the investigative and judicial system are illustrated by reference to recent events. For example, while Israel initiated investigations into the events of Operation Cast Lead, the number of investigations initiated comprised only a small fraction of the overall complaints submitted. The results of such investigations have consistently proved that Israel is unwilling to conduct genuine investigations and prosecutions. No senior Israeli officials have been investigated or prosecuted in accordance with international standards. The UN Committee of Independent Experts on Follow-up to Recommendations in the Goldstone
Report indicated that “there are no indications that Israel has opened investigations into acts of those who designed, planned, ordered and supervised ‘Operation Cast Lead’.”

Israel has systematically failed to ensure accountability for violations of international human rights law and humanitarian law committed during the 2008-2009 offensive on the Gaza Strip. Over the two years since the offensive, Israel has demonstrated a desire to protect and hide those who are responsible for crimes from justice. Only 3 Israeli soldiers were convicted of committing crimes during the offensive. One of those soldiers was sentenced to 7 months of imprisonment for stealing a credit card. Two soldiers were also convicted of using a 9-year-old Palestinian child as a human shield, for which they received a 3 month suspended sentence. This exceptionally lenient sentence demonstrates a complete disregard for victims’ rights and fundamental standards of justice.

The underlying investigations fall far short of accepted international standards. In accordance with its obligations under international law, Israel must investigate and bring to justice and punish those suspected of committing war crimes, provide an effective remedy for victims, provide fair and adequate compensation, and establish the truth. Israeli investigations fail to meet these basic requirements. Investigations also fail to meet international standards as regards to independence, the need for timely investigation and prosecution, and the need for investigations to be conducted outside the military hierarchy in order to ensure a fair and independent investigation and prosecution. Simply put, justice for Palestinians is unattainable in this biased and partial system. Israel impose some legal, financial and material obstacles on the population of the Gaza Strip, including thousands of victims of Operation Cast Lead to have access to Israeli courts and deprive them of their fundamental rights.

Consequently, PCHR has turned to universal jurisdiction, a legal mechanism that allows the national courts of third States to investigate and prosecute international crimes, no matter where these crimes were perpetrated.

PCHR emphasize that impunity must not be allowed to prevail: it is unacceptable that international power politics be allowed to triumph over fundamental human rights and the requirements of international law. We, as Palestinians and representatives of victims, call for justice so that an appropriate environment can be created to achieve peace in the future.

Political division and conflict in the PNA constituted a major motive for human rights violations and the obstruction of democratic reform. Efforts to reach national reconciliation, which PCHR supports and contributes to, have failed to end political division and restore national unity. The political division has been manifested in the emergence of two Palestinian governments, separate police and security services, two judiciaries and a paralyzed PLC. There has been an escalation in violations of human rights by both the governments in Gaza and Ramallah and their security services. Most of these violations were motivated by the ongoing state of political division, apparently as mutual reactions by each side towards the other one.

In 2010, violations of the right of life and attacks on personal security in the oPt continued. In 2010, 42 Palestinians, including 3 children and 6 women, were killed and at least 297 others were wounded. The majority of victims were killed in the Gaza Strip, where 30 Palestinians were killed and 292 others were wounded. These Palestinians were killed as a result of various forms of violence and misuse of weapons, which constitute part of the state of lawlessness and security chaos spreading across the oPt. PCHR has repeatedly called on official bodies to seriously investigate such incidents and bring their perpetrators to justice. However, PCHR has not learnt of any serious investigations having been conducted nor any serious measures having been taken to ensure the non-recurrence of such incidents.

In 2010, security services in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank intensified campaigns of repeated summons and detention of political rivals, often under security allegations. Such campaigns often did not follow legal procedures of arrests according to Palestinian law and international human rights law, and detainees were held under conditions that denied their fundamental human dignity. Palestinian lawyers, included those of PCHR, have faced difficulties in visiting their clients in prisons and detention facilities in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank.

Hundreds of activists of Fatah movement, including a number of women, were repeated summoned to the headquarters of security services throughout the Gaza Strip, and a number of them were arrested. Those activists were subjected to cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment, through detaining them in cells or small rooms or forcing them to stand for long hours in cold weather or under the sun. They were also forced to report to the Internal Security Services (ISS) headquarters.

In 2010, torture and other forms of cruel treatment were perpetrated in prisons and detention centers of Palestinian police and security services in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank. Perpetration of torture was primarily attributed to the ongoing political division, criminal reasons or personal differences between detainees and security officers.

In 2010, the PLC continued to be entirely incapable of functioning due to the political fragmentation in the Palestinian executive, which impacted upon all components of the political system, and due to Israeli activities. The current crisis of the legislature and the legislative process is the result of the same factors that led to the unprecedented deterioration in the status of human rights and PNA institutions following Hamas’ victory in the legislative elections of January 2006. Among these factors are crimes committed by Israel against the Palestinian civilian population, including continued detention of 14 PLC members, mostly from the Change and Reform Bloc (Hamas movement).

In Gaza, the Change and Reform Bloc (Hamas movement) had continued to convene PLC sessions since November 2007, claiming that such sessions were legal. Since then, the Change and Reform Bloc (Hamas movement) has discussed, ratified and issued a number of laws, without ratification by the PNA President. In Ramallah, Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas has continued to issue decrees that have the power of laws without presenting them to the PLC, relying on Article 43 of the Palestinian Basic Law. PCHR has expressed reservations regarding the adoption of legislation by the PNA under the ongoing state of fragmentation, as they are beyond current needs and solidify the ongoing political split.

Over the year, a number of PLC Members in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip were attacked and harassed by Palestinian security services, including shooting and restrictions of their movement, in violation of the Palestinian Basic Law. In 2010, PCHR documented 4 attacks on PLC Members in the West Bank, and two in the Gaza Strip.

The political fragmentation and conflict within the PNA affected the judiciary, as two separate judicial systems have been enforced in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. The government in Gaza established a separate system, to which the population in the Gaza Strip is subject, in violation of the Basic Law.

In the past years, the collapse of the Palestinian judiciary has been further aggravated, because a judiciary separate from that in the West Bank was established in the Gaza Strip. In 2010, the Attorney General appointed by the government in Gaza continued his work. In this regard, PCHR reminds that such an appointment violates the constitution, as article 107(1) of the Amended Basic Law of 2003 states that the Attorney General “shall be appointed by the President based on nomination by the Higher Judicial Council, and the Palestinian Legislative Council's approval is not required.”

In the West Bank, the executive has continued to control the judiciary, undermining its dignity and independence. The military prosecution has continued to usurp the authorities of the Attorney General, and the executive has continued to disobey court rulings, especially with regard to the release of political prisoners or reopening closed charities.

The political split and conflict in the PNA negatively affected the process of democratic reform in 2010; this includes the fact that required general and local elections were not carried out. The year 2010 ended without holding presidential, legislative and local elections in accordance with the legal schedules, or even an agreement between the parties of the conflict on dates for holding these elections. With the end of 2009 and the beginning of 2010, the public authorization offered by the Palestinian people to their representatives expired. Local council elections were not held either, although the legal terms of the current councils expired, as they were elected in 4 stages between December 2004 and December 2005.

Although elections are a consistent demand of all national powers and civil society groups, they are not possible without first reaching a comprehensive national reconciliation that can end fragmentation and restore the dignity of the legislative, executive and judicial institutions of the Palestinian government, which have been impacted by the crisis and have become reflective of the ensuing fragmentation. PCHR notes that holding elections requires an appropriate electoral environment, including allowing public freedoms; releasing political prisoners; and lifting the ban imposed on political activities in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

In 2010, violations of the right to freedom of expression and assaults on press freedoms escalated in an unprecedented manner. The two parties to the intra-Palestinian conflict, the governments in Ramallah and Gaza, and their executive services perpetrated serious violations of this right in their respective areas of control. Violations of this right included arresting, detaining and summoning journalists and other individuals on the basis of their opinions and expressions; storming or closing media institutions; obstructing the work of journalists; beating and humiliating journalists; and other violations. Palestine Television and its reporters and correspondents as well as al-Hayat al-Jadeeda newspaper were prevented from working in the Gaza Strip, and al-Aqsa Television and its reporters as well as Palestine and al-Resala newspapers were prevented from working in the West Bank.

In 2010, violations of the right to peaceful assembly were reported, the majority of which were carried out against activists of the Fatah movement in the Gaza Strip and activists of the Hamas movement in the West Bank, reflecting the political fragmentation within the PNA. The two governments in Gaza and Ramallah, through their security services, imposed severe restrictions on the right to peaceful assembly, which is ensured by the Palestinian Basic Law, the Public Meetings Law of 1998 and international human rights instruments. Such measures have created self-censorship and regulation among political parties, preventing them from organizing activities in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank. While the two governments displayed differences in the majority of their decisions, they employed the same illegal measures to curb peaceful assembly of the political opposition, including the Executive Bill of the Public Meetings Law. These measures went beyond their purpose and affected private meetings, which do not fall under the category of public meetings that require a notification of competent official bodies.
In 2010, the systematic violation of the right to freedom of association by the two governments continued in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, in spite of their repeated claims to maintain public liberties. The two parties to the conflict attempted to use relevant laws for their own interests to attack or control these organizations, through allegations of moral suspicions, administrative or financial corruption, incomplete legal procedures, and other allegations.

In 2010, the Minister of Interior in the Gaza government issued a number of administrative decisions imposing additional restrictions on the practice of the right to freedom of association. The first decision was issued on 11 February 2010, banning public employees from working in charities and NGOs, even if it was voluntary while off-duty. On 11 July 2010, the Minister of Interior in Gaza, issued Decision no. 48/2010 Concerning Civilians Abstaining from Joining Their Jobs in the Civil Service Sector, banning them from being affiliated to general assemblies of charities and civil society organizations, or joining these organizations as employees or as members of their boards of directors. The two decisions violate the Palestinian Basic Law, which allow people to join charities and civil society organizations.

Violations of the right to freedom of association also continued in the West Bank. Restrictions imposed on this right remained effective, including the presidential decree issued by the Palestinian President following the incidents of June 2007, which gives the Minister of Interior “the power to review all licenses of organizations and institutions issued by the Ministry of Interior or any other governmental bodies.” These measures were a prelude to the dissolution of legally licensed civil society organizations or the restriction of their work and role in the context of the state of emergency declared in the oPt. In 2010, the Ministry of Interior refused to register any new society affiliated or close to Hamas under security claims.

In 2010, the Minister of Interior in the Gaza government issued a number of administrative decisions imposing additional restrictions on the practice of the right to freedom of association. The first decision was issued on 11 February 2010, banning public employees from working in charities and NGOs, even if it was voluntary while off-duty. On 11 July 2010, the Minister of Interior in Gaza, issued Decision no. 48/2010 Concerning Civilians Abstaining from Joining Their Jobs in the Civil Service Sector, banning them from being affiliated to general assemblies of charities and civil society organizations, or joining these organizations as employees or as members of their boards of directors. The two decisions violate the Palestinian Basic Law, which allow people to join charities and civil society organizations.

In 2010, Palestinian courts issued 12 death sentences, all of which were in the Gaza Strip. Military courts issued 9 of these sentences, while the remaining 3 were issued by civil courts. Thus, the number of death sentences issued by Palestinian courts since the establishment of the PNA has mounted to 112; 89 in the Gaza Strip and 23 in the West Bank.

Moreover, the number of death sentences carried out seriously escalated in 2010 in comparison to previous years, as 5 death sentences were executed. PCHR expresses its grave concern regarding this significant increase in the number of death sentences issued or executed, especially in the Gaza Strip. PCHR is extremely concerned over the continued application of the death penalty in areas under the jurisdiction of the PNA, and calls for the abolishment of such cruel, inhuman and degrading punishment.

The political crisis in the PNA and the conflict of authorities between the two Palestinian governments in Gaza and Ramallah have negatively impacted the already deteriorated economic and social conditions of the Palestinian population in the Gaza Strip. Measures taken by the two governments, including the cutting of salaries of thousands of public services employees, the employment of new individuals in violation of the Civil Service Law, and the dismissal, marginalization and substitution of hundreds of employees in the public service in the Gaza Strip, accompanied by the total closure imposed by Israel on the Gaza Strip, have left a severe impact on the living conditions of employees and undermined their ability to provide means of subsistence for themselves and their families.

In 2010, all services provided to the population of the Gaza Strip were negatively affected by the ongoing political and power conflict between the two governments in Ramallah and Gaza. Health conditions in the Gaza Strip deteriorated due to the political conflict as all public health facilities in the Gaza Strip suffered from acute shortages of medicines and medical needs. Measures taken by the Ministry of Interior in Ramallah deprived many patients, whose medical treatment was not available in the Gaza Strip, from traveling abroad through refusing to renew their passports or allowing the issuance of passports in Gaza. Consequently, they were forced to search for other alternatives, such as service offices in Gaza, in order to renew their passport with higher costs. On the other hand, the Ministry of Interior in Gaza prevented many people, especially members of the Fatah movement, from traveling abroad either through Rafah International Crossing Point or Beit Hanoun (Erez) crossing, including patients who were scheduled to be transferred to hospitals abroad for medical treatment.

PCHR has increasing concerns over some aspects that can be viewed as attempts to impose the ideology of the ruling party on the Gazan Society. In spite of official denial by the government in Gaza of any intent to impose a social agenda and supposedly assuring statements that there is no official policies in this regard, PCHR has noticed some aspects and practices that require answers, and government explanations as to whether they are individual practices or politically motivated. PCHR stresses the need to respect personal liberties stipulated in the law, and any measures taken by the government and its security services must be done in accordance with the law.

Over the reporting period, these practices developed at various levels, and the following aspects were noticed: 1) Attempts to impose the Islamic veil on female lawyers; 2) Imposing restrictions on internet cafés; 3) The Ministry of Religious Affairs in Gaza launched in mid 2009 a religious campaign called the “Virtue Campaign,” which continued for several months, included banning exposing women’s underwear inside and outside shops; 4) Attempts to impose the Hijab on school girls by the administrations of a number of schools; 5) Restrictions on major restaurants and hotels in the Gaza Strip escalated, including instructions issued by the police command, which ordered preventing mixture between men and women, and banning hookahs for women; 6) Intervention into cultural activities and banning mixture between men and women in activities organized by cultural centers in the Gaza Strip. PCHR is also concerned over aspects of security chaos, which affected a number of major restaurants, hotels and UNRWA summer games camps. Although the government in Gaza condemned such crimes and opened investigations with regard to them, the results of such investigations were not declared, the perpetrators were not unveiled and no legal action was taken against them.
Recommendations

This section details PCHR’s recommendations to the international community and the PNA. PCHR hopes that the international community will take PCHR’s recommendations into consideration and take effective steps to enforce international law. PCHR also hopes that the PNA, including both governments in Gaza and Ramallah, will work towards realizing these recommendations in the context of their responsibilities.

Recommendations to the International Community

1. In light of the inadequacy of investigations conducted by Israel into crimes committed by Israeli forces during the 27 December 2008 – 18 January 2009 offensive on the Gaza Strip, PCHR calls upon the UN Secretary General and the UN General Assembly to demand that the UN Security Council refer the situation in Israel and the oPt to the International Criminal Court, in accordance with Chapter 7 of the UN Charter

2. The international community must fulfill its legal obligation to ensure respect for the international law, investigate and prosecute individuals suspected of committing international crimes and hold Israel responsible for internationally illegal acts.

3. Based on Resolution A/Res/64/10 adopted by the UN General Assembly in November 2009, the Swiss Government, the Depository of the Geneva Conventions, must call for a conference of the High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention to consider steps to enforce the Convention in the oPt, and take action to ensure Israel’s compliance with international humanitarian law.

4. PCHR calls upon the Quartet (the United Nations, the United States, the European Union and the Russian Federation) to take a clear position and effective steps to lift the closure imposed on the Gaza Strip.

5. PCHR calls for the international community to take effective steps to stop collective punishment measures targeting Palestinian civilians, who are protected under international law, and to lift the strict closure imposed by Israeli forces on the Gaza Strip since June 2006, and applied continuously throughout 2010.

6. PCHR calls upon the High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention to fulfill their legal and moral obligations, including to ensure Israel’s respect for the Convention in the oPt in accordance with common Article 1. PCHR believes that the international silence towards grave breaches of the Convention perpetrated by Israeli forces in the oPt serves to encourage Israel to act as a state above law and results in the perpetration of more grave breaches.

7. PCHR demands the international community assume its responsibilities with regard to the process of reconstruction in the Gaza Strip following Israel’s offensive, including funding this process, and to pressurize Israel to open border crossings of the Gaza Strip to allow the entry of necessary construction materials.

8. PCHR emphasizes that the Israeli occupation of the Gaza Strip remains effective in its physical and legal forms in spite of the implementation of the Disengagement Plan in 2005; this was a form of redeployment rather an end to occupation in the Gaza Strip. Accordingly, the legal status of the Gaza Strip has not changed, which obligates the international community and organizations to deal with the Gaza Strip as a part of the oPt.

9. PCHR calls upon that the High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention to search for and prosecute those suspected of committing grave breaches, as the Israeli judicial system refuses to conduct such prosecutions and has provided legal cover for these individuals in many cases.

10. PCHR calls for stopping all efforts aimed at amending universal jurisdiction laws to block any opportunity to prosecute alleged Israeli war criminals before their judiciaries.

11. PCHR calls upon international civil society organizations, including human rights organizations, bar associations and solidarity groups, to lobby against such efforts, which impacts the rights of millions of victims throughout the world who see universal jurisdiction the only opportunity for judicial remedy and prosecution of war criminals throughout the world.

12. PCHR highly appreciates international solidarity delegations to the extent that they have been allowed during and after Israel’s offensive on the Gaza Strip but emphasizes that the Israeli occupation authorities are the party that is responsible for denying access to the Gaza Strip.

13. PCHR calls for effective steps to be taken to dismantle the annexation wall being constructed inside the West Bank. PCHR particularly calls upon the United Nations to take measures that conform to the Advisory Opinion issued by the International Court of Justice, the highest international judicial body, in 2004, which considers the wall illegal.

14. PCHR calls upon the international community to stop the crime of settlement in the oPt, and calls upon all global companies to stop all projects in Israeli settlements.

15. PCHR calls upon the European Union to activate Article 2 of the EU-Israel Association Agreement, which provides that both sides must respect human rights as a precondition for economic cooperation between the EU states and Israel. PCHR also calls upon all states to prohibit import of goods produced in illegal Israeli settlements in the oPt.

16. As Israel and its occupation forces have continued to impose severe restrictions on access of international solidarity groups to the oPt and Israel, PCHR calls for ensuring the freedom of movement of international delegations visiting the oPt similar to the freedom enjoyed by Israeli citizens abroad.

17. PCHR calls upon the international community to support efforts to achieve Palestinian national reconciliation, and stresses that the boycott, including refusal to deal with the national unity government that was formed following the Mecca Agreement in February 2007, was a major factor that led to internal fighting and political division in the PNA. Accordingly, the international community is required to make efforts to end such situation to provide explicit guarantees, especially by the European Union, to support efforts of reconciliation and accept its results and those of any future elections if they are transparent and fair.

18. PCHR reiterates that any political settlement not based on international human rights law and humanitarian law cannot lead to a peaceful and just solution of the Palestinian cause. Rather, such settlement can only lead to further suffering and instability in the region. PCHR calls upon governments and civil society organizations to implement international law at the Palestinian level.
Recommendations to the PNA

1. PCHR calls upon the Fatah and Hamas movements to resume dialogue intended to end the current political crisis and end the division in PNA, which has expanded to impact all components of the Palestinian political system and maintain the separation between the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. PCHR emphasizes the ongoing political division had destructive impacts on the Palestinian national cause, and there is no alternative to dialogue and reconciliation.

2. PCHR calls for retaining the dignity of the judiciary and taking effective measures to ensure its non-politicization in the context of the existing conflict.

3. Calls for making efforts to ensure appropriate conditions to hold presidential, parliamentary and local elections.

4. PCHR calls for reactivating the legislature through immediately allowing the Speaker of the Palestinian Legislative Council to assume the responsibilities of his post, and abstaining for issuing or freezing laws by the Change and Reform Bloc in Gaza, and presidential decrees that have the power of law in Ramallah.

5. PCHR calls for stopping all illegal political arrests such as those that target activists of Fatah and Hamas movements in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank respectively, ensuring the release of political prisoners, and stopping torture and cruel treatment in detention centers administered by security services in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank.

6. PCHR calls for taking effective measures to end the state of lawlessness plaguing the oPt, which has taken the lives of hundreds of Palestinian civilians.

7. PCHR calls for investigating all crimes and attacks against people and their property, bringing the perpetrators to justice, issuing strict instructions to Palestinian law enforcement officials banning them for carrying their weapons off-duty, preventing them from using weapons to terrify and threaten people and violate their right to life, and bringing violators of such instructions to justice.

8. PCHR calls for ensuring the right to freedom of expression, including stopping all attacks against journalists and media institutions, especially those affiliated to parties to the current internal conflict. PCHR further calls upon the PNA to refrain from imposing restrictions on political parties and to ensure pluralism in accordance with the Palestinian Basic Law.

9. PCHR calls for ensuring the right of peaceful assembly, including peaceful demonstrations and public meetings provided that the peaceful nature of such activities is maintained.

10. PCHR calls for ensuring the right to free association, stopping attacks against associations and partisan offices, abstaining from pushing civil society organizations into any conflict and reopening all associations that were closed for political reasons.

11. PCHR calls for the abolition of the death penalty and abstention from implementing death sentences that have been issued so far.

12. PCHR calls for independent and professional investigations that meet international standards into violations of human rights included in the Goldstone report.

13. PCHR calls for activating all possible diplomatic and political influence on the PNA and Palestine Liberation Organization in the UN General Assembly to follow up efforts to implement the recommendations of the Goldstone Report.

14. PCHR calls upon the PNA to adhere to international human rights standards and make sure that all measures it takes conform to international human rights standards and respect basic rights of citizens.
Section (1): Israeli violations of Human Rights and International Humanitarian Law

This section of the report focuses on violations of human rights and international humanitarian law perpetrated by Israeli forces against Palestinian civilians and their property in the oPt in 2010. It includes the following subsections: Willful Killings and Other Violations of the Right to Life and Personal Security; Ongoing Policy of Total Closure and Violation of the Right to Freedom of Movement; Arrests, Torture and Other Forms of Cruel and Inhuman Treatment; Destruction of Civilian Property, Including Homes; Settlement Activities and Attacks by Settlers against Palestinian Civilians and Property; The Annexation Wall in the West Bank; and the Absence of Justice in the Israeli Legal System.
In 2010, Israeli forces continued to commit crimes and violations of the right to life and personal security against Palestinian civilians in the oPt. Israeli forces killed 893 Palestinians, including 46 civilians; the civilian victims included 9 children and one woman. Additionally, 509 Palestinians were wounded in 2010. Thus, the number of persons killed by Israeli forces and settlers in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip from September 2000 (the outbreak of the second Intifada) until the end of December 2010 amounts to 6,546, including 5,083 civilians - 1,733 in the West Bank (34%) and 3,350 in the Gaza Strip (66%). The civilian victims include 1,276 children (26%), 369 women (5.5%) and 6 foreigners. Additionally, tens of thousands of others have been wounded, some of whom have sustained permanent disabilities. The wounded include 17,078 persons in the Gaza Strip, including 5,487 children.

The victims also include 2 civilians who were killed when Israeli forces used excessive force against peaceful demonstrations organized to protest the confiscation of Palestinian land for the purpose of the construction of the annexation wall in the West Bank. Three civilians were killed during incursions conducted by Israeli forces into Palestinian communities. Four Palestinian activists were also extra-judicially executed by Israeli undercover units. Additionally, Israeli settlers continued to attack Palestinian civilians in the West Bank. In 2010, 3 Palestinian civilians were killed and 11 others were wounded by Israeli settlers.

According to investigations conducted by PCHR, in many instances Israeli forces used excessive and disproportionate force against Palestinian civilians, who are protected persons under international humanitarian law. They disregarded the principles of distinction and proportionality. There is also evidence that Israeli forces carried out retaliatory actions against Palestinian civilians.
Contexts of Killing

In 2010, Israeli forces killed 46 Palestinian civilians in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip in various contexts. These contexts included firing at civilians in buffer zones, firing at Palestinian fishing boats or bombing tunnels along the Egyptian border in the Gaza Strip. In the West Bank, civilians were killed during incursions conducted by Israeli forces into Palestinian communities, and others were killed during extra-judicial executions of activists of Palestinian resistance groups. Additionally, civilians were killed by Israeli settlers.

Diagram (1): Contexts of Killing of Palestinian Civilians by Israeli forces in 2010

The next part of this report will highlight the major contexts of killing and wounding Palestinian civilians by Israeli forces in 2010.

Killing in Buffer Zones in the Gaza Strip

The “buffer zone” is a closed military area, or no-go area, inside the Palestinian territory along the northern and eastern borders of the Gaza Strip. What Israeli calls “the buffer zone” is not precisely demarcated, but Israeli forces impose restrictions on access to these area through gunfire.

Since the establishment of the eastern border fence of the Gaza Strip, the “buffer zone” area has been the scene of killings of Palestinian civilians who get close or enter into this area. Although Israeli forces redeployed around the Gaza Strip in September 2000, they maintained control over border areas in the east and north of the Gaza Strip, and Palestinian civilians have remained a hostage of Israeli snipers stationed on observation towers along the border. Officially, Israeli forces ban access of Palestinian civilians to the areas within 300 meters from the border, but they effectively fire at whoever gets as close as to 700 meters or even more from the border. In 2010, Israeli forces killed 51 Palestinians, including 13 civilians, in these areas. Over the years of the second Palestinian Intifada, which broke out in September 2000, Israeli forces have expanded the “buffer zone” area through demolishing hundreds of houses and civilian facilities and razing large areas of agricultural land.

In 2010, Israeli forces seriously escalated attacks on Palestinians, including civilians, in these areas. Palestinians were killed in various contexts, including the bombardment of houses at times of complete calm and firing at civilians by Israeli snipers stationed on observation towers, even if those civilians were further than 300 meters away from the border. Israeli snipers particularly targeted workers who were collecting scraps of construction materials from border area, especially near the Erez crossing.

As shown in the above diagram, Israeli launched 323 attacks in border areas in the north and east of the Gaza Strip in 2010, the most significant of which were ground attacks, including sniping and limited incursions into Palestinian areas. The number of ground attacks was 125, which constituted 38% of the total number of attacks in 2010.

Over the year, Israeli forces killed Palestinian civilians in various places along the border areas, including in the sea and in tunnels along the Egyptian border in Rafah. The following diagram shows the various places of attacks.
Most Significant Israeli Crimes in the Border “Buffer Zone”

- On 15 May 2010, Israeli soldiers stationed at the border between the Gaza Strip and Israel to the east of Jabalya town shot dead an elderly Palestinian man when he approached the border. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, at approximately 10:00, Fu’ad Ahmed Yousef Abu Matar, 76, from Beit Lahia town, left his house. By 19:00, he had not returned back home, so his family began looking for him. On Saturday morning, 15 May 2010, his family was informed that his body had been found near the border between the Gaza Strip and Israel to the east of Jabalya town. At approximately 12:25, his body was transported to Kamal ‘Edwan Hospital in Beit Lahia. According to medical sources, the victim was hit by several heavy gunshots to the back, the shoulders and the limbs. The time of his death was estimated to have been at least 12 hours before the arrival of his body at the hospital. According to the victim’s son, his father did not suffer from any mental or psychological disorder. He assumed that his father had gone to the eastern cemetery, 500 meters from the border, to visit his grandfather’s grave. He did not know exactly why his father got close so close to the border.

- On 13 July 2010, Israeli forces killed a Palestinian woman and wounded another three civilians (an elderly man and two women) of the same family, when their house was bombarded by artillery shells. According to investigations conducted by PCHR and statements given by a member of the victims’ family, at approximately 20:45 on Tuesday, 13 July 2010, a number of women from the Abu Sa’id family from Gaza Valley village, in the central Gaza Strip, were sitting near their home, which is approximately 400 meters away from the border between the Gaza Strip and Israel. At this time, Israeli troops stationed at the border fired two artillery shells at the house. The attack was unprovoked and the witness could think of no reason for the attack. As a result, Amira Jaber Abu Sa‘id, 30, was wounded by shrapnel to the shoulder and her sister-in-law, Sana’a Ahmed Abu Sa‘id, 26, was wounded by shrapnel to the feet. Members of the Abu Sa‘id family phoned the Palestinian Red Crescent Society (PRCS) to send ambulances to the area. Ambulances arrived fifteen minutes later, but were not able to reach the targeted house because Israeli forces continued to fire on the area. The ambulances were forced to drive back to Deir al-Balah. Meanwhile, Ne‘ma Yousef Abu Sa‘id, 33, remembered that her three-year-old child was still outside the house. She went to find her child, and Israeli forces fired a third shell at her. She was instantly killed by shrapnel to the head and the abdomen. Her father-in-law, Jaber Abu Sa‘id, 65, was also wounded by shrapnel wounds to the right thigh. The family continued to call the PRCS. Approximately one and a half hours later a PRCS ambulance arrived at the scene after coordination with the Israeli authorities through the Palestinian Liaison Office. The ambulance transferred the victims to al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital in Deir al- Balah. Medical sources at the hospital confirmed that Ne‘ma Abu Sa‘id died of shrapnel wounds from an artillery shell. The wounds of the other persons were described as moderate.

- On 12 September 2010, Israeli forces killed three Palestinian civilians in the northern Gaza Strip: an old man; his grandchild and another child. The victims were killed when Israeli forces fired five shells towards a group of Palestinian farmers and shepherds in Abu ‘Eida land in the northeast of Beit Hanoun town in the northern Gaza Strip. The attack also resulted in the killing of around 30 sheep. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, at approximately 16:45 on Sunday, 12 September 2010 (the third day of Eid al-Fitr), Israeli forces stationed at the border between the Gaza Strip and Israel to the northeast of Beit Hanoun town in the northern Gaza Strip fired five shells towards a group of Palestinian farmers and shepherds who were on Abu ‘Eida land. That land is located approximately 600 meters away from the border, in the northeast of Beit Hanoun. As a result, the old man and two children, including his grandson were killed. They are:

1. Ibrahim Abdullah Mousa Abu Es‘ayed, 91, from Block 7 in Jabalya refugee camp, hit by shrapnel to different parts of his body;
2. Hosam Khaled Ibrahim Abu Es‘ayed, 16, from Block 7 in Jabalya refugee camp, hit by shrapnel to different parts of his body; and

- On 11 February 2010, Israeli forces stationed along the Gaza Strip border to the east of Juhor al-Dik village, east of Gaza City, opened fire indiscriminately at Palestinian houses in the village. They then fired several artillery shells at the village. One of the shells landed on the house of Isma’il Suleiman al-Tarabin, 42, and three of his daughters were lightly wounded as a result. The house of the al-Tarabin family is located approximately one kilometer to the east of the border. The wounded girls are:

1. ‘Afaf Isma’il al-Tarabin, 12, wounded by shrapnel to the face and the head;
2. Ahlam Isma’il al-Tarabin, 11, wounded by shrapnel to the head; and
3. Muna Isma’il al-Tarabin, 5, wounded by shrapnel to the head and the neck.

- On 28 April 2010, a peaceful demonstration moved from al-Shuja‘iyya neighborhood in the east of Gaza City towards the buffer zone along the border between the Gaza Strip and Israel, east of the city. When the nearly 100 demonstrators, including 4 international solidarity activists got approximately 150 meters from the border, a number of boys participating in the demonstration threw stones towards Israeli soldiers positioned at the border. Immediately, Israeli soldiers fired at the demonstration.
As a result, Ahmed Suleiman Dib, 19, from Sheikh Radwan neighborhood in Gaza City, was seriously wounded by a bullet to the right thigh. He was evacuated to Shifa Hospital in Gaza City but medical efforts to save his life failed.

Attacks on Palestinian Fishermen

The Oslo Accords signed between Israel and the PLO allow Palestinian fishermen to sail out to sea up to 20 nautical miles. However, Israeli forces never allowed the 20 nautical mile limit, effectively decreasing the distance to 12 nautical miles. Following the redeployment of Israeli forces around the Gaza Strip in September 2005, Israeli forces maintained control over the sea and restricted the area of fishing to 6 nautical miles. In mid-June 2007 that distance was decreased again to 3 nautical miles where it remains today. Israeli forces have attacked Palestinian fishermen even within the 3 nautical mile area. They have enforced this limit with severe measures, including firing at Palestinian fishing boats, which has resulted in deaths.

In 2010, Israeli forces escalated attacks on Palestinian fishermen. PCHR documented 28 attacks on Palestinian fishermen and their property, in which 7 fishermen were killed and another 4 were wounded.

- On 07 June 2010, Israeli naval troops, reinforced by aircrafts, located nearly one kilometer off the coast of the al-Zahraa’ beach, south of Gaza City, opened fire at a group of the al-Aqsa Martyrs Brigades (the armed wing of Fatah movement), killing 5 members of the group and a fisherman. The bodies of the fisherman and one member of the group were found on the following day.

- On 24 September 2010, Mohammed Mansour Baker, 20, and three of his cousins sailed from the area opposite of al-Sudaniya beach, north of Gaza City, on a boat belonging to their family for fishing. When they were approximately 2,000 meters from the beach and a similar distance from the Israeli imposed naval border, an Israeli gunboat approached to approximately 100 meters and started heavily firing at the fishing boat without any reason or warning. Mohammed was shot in his right side. He fell inside the boat and was bleeding amidst screams of his cousins requesting Israeli soldiers to stop firing because Mohammed was wounded. However, the Israeli soldiers continued to fire. Approximately 10 minutes later, Israeli forces retreated, the Bakrs were able to reach the beach, and transported their cousin to Kamal Nasser Hospital in Beit Lahia. He passed away.

- On 05 July 2010, Israeli gunboats positioned at sea near the Gaza port, west of Gaza City, fired at Palestinian fishing boats that were sailing approximately two miles off the Gaza shore. ‘Allam Naser Fadel Baker, 14, from al-Shati refugee camp, was wounded after being shot twice in the abdomen. The boat, which belongs to Mahmoud Abu Hweidi, was also struck by two bullets to its hull. On board was Mr. Bakr, his father and his brother.

- On 08 January, Israeli warplanes dropped one bomb on tunnels near Rafah International Crossing Point on the Egyptian border, south of Rafah. As a result, 3 Palestinian civilians (two workers and a child) were killed and two others were wounded. Six workers survived the attack and were able to cross the border towards Egypt. The victims are:

1. Mubarak Rabba’ Abu Shallouf, 27, who was beheaded;
2. Nasser Jom’a al-Mahmoum; and
3. ‘Odai Mohammed Abu Hussein, 15, whose body was found beneath the sand, where had been sleeping in a tent at the entrance of the targeted tunnel.

Those who were wounded are:
1. Hamad Salem Shallouf, 22, wounded by shrapnel to the face; and
2. Ibrahim Nazmi Abu Tu’aima, 22, wounded by shrapnel to the head.

- On 25 June, Israeli warplanes dropped a bomb on a tunnel in al-Shouka village near Rafah International Crossing Point on the Egyptian border, south of Rafah. Five minutes later, they dropped another bomb on the same tunnel. As a result, two people working in the tunnel were killed and one was wounded:

1. ‘Aamer ‘Atwa Abu Hadid, 23, from Rafah, hit by shrapnel throughout the body; and
2. Mohammed Fawzi Abu Suhaiban, 28, from Gaza City, hit by shrapnel throughout the body.
3. A third worker, Mohammed Ghazi Abu Khatla, 21, was seriously wounded by shrapnel throughout the body and his left hand was badly cut.

- On 04 September, Israeli warplanes fired a missile at a tunnel in al-Salam neighborhood at the Egyptian border, south of Rafah. The tunnel was destroyed and two workers were killed:

1. Khaled ‘Abdul Karim al-Khatib, 35, from al-Boreij refugee camp; and
2. Saleem Mohammed al-Harrab, 19, from al-Boreij refugee camp.

Another two workers were moderately to seriously injured:
1. ‘Alaa’ Zuahir al-Khudari, 22, from Khan Yunis, sustained burns throughout the body; and

- On 15 September, an Israeli warplane fired a missile at a tunnel on the Egyptian Border. As a result, Wajdi Jihad al-Qadhi, 24, was killed.

In the West Bank, in 2010, Israeli forces killed 17 Palestinian civilians and wounded 333 others. These civilians were killed in various circumstances, including at times of complete calm, during peaceful protests against land confiscation and the construction of the annexation wall, extra-judicial executions, and incursions into Palestinian communities.

The most significant of these crimes were:

- On 12 February, Israeli forces willfully killed a Palestinian civilian in Hebron from a short distance without any warning while he was walking on a branch road of al- Shallala Street in the center of Hebron. According to PCHR’s investigations and eyewitnesses’ testimonies, at approximately 16:10 on 12 February, 6 Israeli soldiers were passing through Ali Bakka road, a branch road of al-Shallala Street in the center of Hebron. At the same time, Fayez Ahmed Sa’id Faraj, 41, from Hebron, was coming from the other direction. When he was approximately 8 meters far from the soldiers, the soldiers pointed their guns at him and ordered him to stop. Faraj continued walking and one of the soldiers opened fired directly at him without warning. He was wounded by a bullet to the thigh. He fell onto the ground and the soldiers ordered him to empty his pockets. It appears that he thought the soldiers were done with the assault and he got up and walked approximately 2 meters with difficulty. It seems he wanted to repose against the wall of the side street or to sit down on the sidewalk. But the soldiers, also without any warning and without any justifications, fired directly at him from a distance of 10 meters. He was wounded by several bullets to the abdomen, pelvis and thigh. He fell onto the ground again. While bleeding on the ground, Faraj raised his left hand, apparently as a sign to ask the soldiers to stop firing. One of the soldiers fired directly at his left hand. The soldiers did not allow medical personnel who arrived at the scene to attend Faraj. They pulled him into an armored personnel carrier. Later, the Israeli liaison office informed Palestine Red Crescent Society that Faraj died and asked for an ambulance to transfer his body to al-Ahli Hospital. According to medical sources, Faraj was hit by 6 explosive bullets; including two bullets to the abdomen, two bullets to the higher part of the right thigh, one bullet to the left hand.

On 21 March, the PRCS in Nablus was informed by the Israeli Military Liaison that there were two bodies of Palestinians who were killed by Israeli troops near ‘Awarta village, southeast of Nablus. A PRCS ambulance drove to the scene. Ahmed Jebril, the driver, and Jamal Husni Abu Hamda, a paramedic, were in the ambulance. A vehicle belonging to the Israeli Military Liaison was waiting near Huwarra checkpoint at the southern entrance of Nablus to direct the ambulance to the bodies. The ambulance followed the military vehicle that drove towards the east of ‘Awarta village on the ‘Aqraba–Yanoun road. The military vehicle stopped near an area of land planted with olives, approximately seven kilometers from the village. As the ambulance arrived, Jebril and Abu Hamda saw two bodies. The bodies were lying on each side of the road with approximately 10-15 meters between them. They were covered with blankets used by Israeli forces. Israeli soldiers who were at the scene allowed the paramedics to examine the two bodies. Both bodies had several wounds throughout their bodies. Abu Hamda saw two small hoes and a Pepsi Cola in a plastic bag with one of the soldiers. The two bodies were carried to the ambulance which drove to ‘Awarta commercial checkpoint to return to Nablus. Residents of ‘Awarta village who gathered near the checkpoint identified the two victims as: Mohammed Faisal Mahmoud Qawariq, 20; and Salah Mohammed Kamel Qawariq, 19, both from ‘Awarta village.

On 11 June, Israeli forces killed a Palestinian civilian in Wad al-Jouz neighborhood in East Jerusalem and wounded a Palestinian child. Israeli forces claimed that the victim disregarded orders to stop at a checkpoint in Wad al-Jouz and attempted to run down two soldiers with his car injuring the soldiers. Investigations conducted by PCHR refute this claim and confirm that the civilian was willfully killed. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, at approximately 13:00, following the Friday Prayer, Ziad Mohammed Badawi al-Joulani, 41, drove his car to visit his relatives in Housh al-Hadami area in Wad al-Jouz neighborhood. When he arrived in the area, he saw Israeli soldiers stationed at a temporary checkpoint. A number of Palestinian children were throwing stones towards Israeli troops. Israeli troops chased him when al-Joulani drove his car onto a branch road. They fired at him when he stopped the car and stepped out. He was wounded by 3 bullets to the left arm, the abdomen and the left thigh. He fell to the ground. An Israeli soldier moved towards him and fired at him from point-blank range wounding him further with 2 bullets to the right thigh and the head. He was announced dead upon arrival at the hospital. The victim was married and a father of 3 children. As a result of the shooting, 5-year-old Ilham Sa‘id al-Silwadi was also wounded by shrapnel to the head and the neck. Israeli troops also violently beat Mahmoud ‘Othman al-Joulani, 34, when he attempted to offer medical aid to the victim.
On 03 October, Israeli forces killed ‘Izziddin Saleh al-Kawazba, 37, a Palestinian worker from Sa’ir village, northeast of Hebron just after he had crossed the annexation wall near al-Tour village, east of Jerusalem to go to work. An Israeli police spokeswoman claimed that the Israeli police “noticed a number of persons (around 15) jumping over a wall opposite to al-‘Eissawiya village near the main road leading to Ma’ale Admoim settlement. Two police officers chased them, and one of the officers was able to capture one of them. A quarrel erupted between the two, during which the Palestinian worker attempt to seize the officer’s gun, so a bullet was unleashed, and it hit the worker.” However, investigations conducted by PCHR and eyewitnesses’ accounts refute this claim, and indicate that Israeli soldiers could have arrested the worker without killing him.

Shooting at Peaceful Protests against the Construction of the Annexation Wall and Settlement Activities in the West Bank

In 2010, Israeli forces continued to use excessive force against peaceful demonstrations organized by Palestinian civilians to protest settlement activities and the construction of the annexation wall in the West Bank. Peaceful protests have been organized weekly in the villages of Bil‘ein, Ne‘lin and Nabi Saleh near Ramallah, al-Ma‘sara village near Bethlehem and Beit Ummar town near Hebron. Israeli forces fired live and rubber-coated metal bullets, tear gas canisters and sound bombs at these demonstrations. As a result, 122 civilians were wounded by rubber-coated metal bullets, 80 were hit by tear gas canisters, 24 were wounded by live bullets and 52 were injured by other forces of attacks, including beating.
Extra-Judicial Executions

Israeli forces committed more extra-judicial executions against Palestinians whom they accused of being involved in attacks against Israeli targets. In 2010, Israeli forces extra-judicially executed 6 Palestinians in the Gaza Strip and 4 others in the West Bank. Thus, the number of Palestinians extra-judicially executed by Israeli forces since the beginning of the al-Aqsa Intifada in September 2000 has mounted to 801, including 220 civilian bystanders. The victims include 74 children – 5 targeted and 69 bystanders. The number of victims in the West Bank is 346 (288 targeted person and 58 civilian bystanders), while there number in the Gaza Strip is 455 (293 targeted persons and 162 civilian bystanders).

- On 26 April, Israeli forces moved into Beit ‘Awwa town in the far south of Hebron. They were supported by armored military vehicles, a bulldozer and a Caterpillar digging vehicle. They surrounded a house where Ali Isma‘ul Swaiti, 47 was being harbored and began using sound bombs. The home belongs to Mahmoud Abdul Aziz Swaiti and is located in Khellet al-Foulah in the north of the town. During the operation, Israeli soldiers broke into numerous other houses in the area and turned them into observation points and firing posts. A few minutes later, Israeli forces evacuated the family living in the targeted one-storey house as well as a family living in another two-storey house, which belongs to the family of Ahmed Abdul Aziz Swaiti at gunpoint. They were detained there with other families. They were all interrogated regarding the whereabouts of the targeted person. Soon after, an Israeli bulldozer began to destroy the fences surrounding the targeted house. It progressed towards the house and started to demolish it, but it retreated as it was fired at from inside the house. Israeli soldiers stationed in the neighboring houses opened fire at the house for 15 minutes from all directions before an explosion occurred inside the house. Residents of the area reported that the explosion resulted from the shelling of the house. Later, the Caterpillar vehicle began to destroy the fences of the targeted house. After that, a digging vehicle continued demolishing the house and then retreated to allow the renewed advance of the bulldozer and the search for the body of Swaiti. Approximately an hour later, the bulldozer lifted the body of Swaiti out of the rubble and dropped it onto a road close to the demolished house before moving it another 10 meters away. An Israeli soldier fired at least two shots at the body of Swaiti from a distance of three meters.

The Israeli military spokesperson said that Swaiti had been wanted by the Israeli security services for eight years because he was held responsible for carrying out a number of shooting attacks against Israeli targets near Hebron, including opening fire near the Ethna-Tarqumiya intersection on 26 April 2004, i.e. exactly six years prior to the killing of Swaiti.

- On 31 July, Israeli warplanes fired a missile at a tract of land surrounded by tinplates. In the area at the time of the attack was ‘Isa Abdul Hadi al-Batran, 40, a member of the Izziddin al-Qassam Brigades (the armed wing of Hamas). The land is located in Abu Jebba area in al-Nusseirat refugee camp, to the west of Salah el-Deen street in the Central Gaza Strip. Mr. al-Batran was killed as a result of the attack, which also destroyed residential structures and a car in the area.

- On 17 September, backed by approximately 25 military vehicles, Israeli forces moved into Nour Shams refugee camp, east of Tulkarm. Many Israeli soldiers surrounded a house belonging to the family of Mohammed Asa‘ad Ahmed Abu Shilabaya, 40, and then blew up the entrance of the house. They raided the house while the residents were sleeping. When Mohammed Abu Shilabaya got up, one of the soldiers questioned him about his relatives who live in Nour Shams refugee camp. The soldiers then ordered him to lead them to his uncle’s house. On the way, they asked him about the house of his brother Eyad. He pointed to Eyad’s house and the soldiers walked towards the house. The soldiers noticed that the house is composed of two floors, so they asked Mohammed where Eyad was living and asked him to describe the internal structure of the house. Mohammed then saw them bringing a device and installing it near the door. They then connected it to the lock. They blew up the door and shot Eyad dead. Later, it was discovered that Israeli forces transferred Eyad’s body to the Israeli Military Liaison Office, west of Tulkarm. At approximately 06:00 on Friday, they delivered the body to an ambulance of Palestinian Red Crescent Society. The body was then taken to Dr. Thabet Thabet Public Hospital in Tulkarm. Medical sources at the Hospital reported that Eyad was hit by three bullets; one in the neck and two in the chest. The Israeli military spokesman claimed that soldiers opened fire at Abu Shilabaya because he “was posing a threat to their lives.” He stated that Abu Shilabaya who was “wanted” walked continuously towards the soldiers while putting his hands behind his back despite the fact that the soldiers asked him to stop. According to the military spokesman’s claims, the soldiers were afraid and opened fire accordingly. After checking the body of Abu Shilabaya, it was found out that he did not have any weapons. Investigations conducted by PCHR revealed that the crime was committed in a bedroom with a single door. Blood was just in front of the bed, approximately one from the door. Such findings refute the Israeli military spokesman’s claims.

- On 07 October 2010, an Israeli warplane fired a missile at a civilian car that was traveling on the bridge linking between al-Mughraqa village and Nuseirat refugee camp in the central Gaza Strip. An activist of the Palestinian resistance affiliated to the Fatah movement and one of his friends, in addition to the driver, were traveling in the car. The missile landed in front of the car, so the activist jumped out of it. He was wounded by shrapnel to the left thigh. The other two persons in the car and two children who were bystanders were also wounded:
  1. ‘Abdul Ra’ouf Ahmed al-Safadi, 27, from al-Daraj neighborhood in Gaza City, wounded by shrapnel to the left hand;
  2. Eihab Abdul Fattah Wishah, 29, from Nuseirat refugee camp, the driver, wounded by shrapnel to the thighs;
  3. Anwar Yahia Abu Jahjouh, 10, from Nuseirat refugee camp, wounded by shrapnel to the feet; and
  4. Eshraf Yahia Abu Jahjouh, 2, from Nuseirat refugee camp, wounded by shrapnel to the abdomen.

- On the same day, 07 October 2010, Israeli forces stormed al-Okhwa quarter in the center of Jabal Johar area in Hebron and completely closed the area. While firing, Israeli forces surrounded many houses opposite to al-Shuhada Mosque. They focused specifically on a 3-storey residential building, which belongs to Sa’di Mousa Yousef Barqan and his brother Radwan. The first and second floors of the building include residential apartments where more than 30 people, mostly women and children, live. The ground floor includes a number of stores. Israeli forces called for backup and Israeli soldiers used megaphones to call on residents of the aforementioned house. They forced them to leave the house amid firing of bullets and sound bombs and to gather in front of the building with their hands up. Israeli soldiers took positions atop of neighboring houses and used the positions as bases to fire at the aforementioned building. According to testimonies given by eyewitneses, fire was heard coming from both directions in the area for a few minutes, and Israeli forces then continued to fire at the building from various directions. They fired bullets from machine guns, medium caliber bullets and M-16 gun grenades, causing damages to different parts of the targeted building. At approximately 01:40 on Friday, 08 October 2010, Israeli forces brought a bulldozer and a digging machine that drove to the building. The bulldozer demolished the external walls and gate of the building, the corridor and a part of the garden of a neighboring building. The digging machine then moved to assist the bulldozer and demolished parts of the building from the east and the south. At approximately 02:30, eyewitnesses saw two bodies on the ground near a fig tree behind the targeted building. Israeli forces continued to demolish and destroy large parts of the building. They also continued to search the debris, the demolished parts of the building, the surroundings and inside the building. They fired bullets and used tracker dogs during their search. At approximately 10:00 on Friday, 08 October 2010, a number of locals were able to access the spot where the two bodies were left, and managed to remove them from the area. The two bodies were transferred through alleys to Mohammed Ali al-Muhtaseb Hospital in the south of Hebron. Later, the two activists were recognized as:
1. Nashat Na’im al-Karmi, 33, from Toulkarem, who was hit by two heavy bullets to the upper jaw and the head; and
2. Ma’moun Taysir Yasin Natsheh, 25, from Hebron, who was hit by two bullets to the upper jaw and in the right shoulder.

A house in Hebron destroyed by Israeli forces during the extra-judicial execution of two activists of Hamas in October 2010

- On 03 November 2010, an Israeli drone fired a missile at a civilian car (a silver Daewoo) that was traveling near the western gate of Arafat police town in the west of Gaza City. As a result, Mohammed Jamal Fares al-Nemnem, 29, an activist of the Army of Islam, from al-Shati refugee camp west of Gaza City, who was traveling in the car, was killed and the car was completely destroyed. Two civilian bystanders were also wounded:
1. Yahia Fayez al-Yazji, 25, from Sheikh Radwan neighborhood in Gaza City, who was traveling in his car behind the targeted car sustained bruises throughout his body; and
2. Suha al-Shoubaki, 18, from al-Tuffah neighborhood in Gaza City, lightly injured by glass fragments throughout the body.

Israeli forces took responsibility for the attack, claiming that “al-Nemnem was a senior leader of the Army of Islam, and was involved in attack against Israeli and US targets in Sinai Peninsula.”
Killing of Children

In 2010, Israeli forces killed 5 Palestinian children in the Gaza Strip, and 3 in the West Bank. An eighth child was killed by an Israeli settler in the West Bank. Thus, the number of Palestinian children killed by Israeli forces since the beginning of the second Palestinian Intifada in September 2000 has mounted to 1,277.

- On 20 March, Israeli forces moved into the east of Iraq Borin village, south of Nablus. A number of Palestinian boys gathered and threw stones at Israeli soldiers. The soldiers immediately responded by firing, but no casualties were reported. The Palestinian boys withdrew into the village, while Israeli forces took positions in the east of the village. At approximately 15:00, a Palestinian civilian Ford transit minibus, driven by Zakareya 'Adel Qadous, arrived in the village from Nablus. In the meantime, Israeli soldiers exited their jeeps and positioned themselves approximately 30 meters to the east of the intersection of Iraq Borin village. The driver of the minibus drove to the western entrance of the village. Approximately 100 meters from the intersection, in front of the mosque of the village, the driver saw there were burning tires and that the street was closed. He stopped and Mohammed Ibrahim Abdul Qader Qadous, 16, and Usaid Abdul Naser Qadous, 20, stepped out of the minibus. As the driver turned around to travel back to Nablus, Israeli soldiers opened fire at Mohammed, who was wounded by a bullet to the heart, and Usaid who was wounded by a bullet to the head. A number of young Palestinians who were at the scene carried the two wounded persons and positioned themselves approximately 30 meters to the east of the intersection of Iraq Borin village. The driver of the minibus drove to the western entrance of the village. Approximately 100 meters from the intersection, in front of the mosque of the village, the driver saw there were burning tires and that the street was closed. He stopped and Mohammed Ibrahim Abdul Qader Qadous, 16, and Usaid Abdul Naser Qadous, 20, stepped out of the minibus. As the driver turned around to travel back to Nablus, Israeli soldiers opened fire at Mohammed, who was wounded by a bullet to the heart, and Usaid who was wounded by a bullet to the head. A number of young Palestinians who were at the scene carried the two wounded persons and put them in the minibus. After the minibus drove for approximately 20 meters, Israeli military jeeps tried to stop it, but the driver managed to pass them and reach Nablus Specialized Hospital. Mohammed was dead upon arrival at the hospital. Usaid underwent a prolonged surgery, but was pronounced dead on 21 March 2010. Usaid was student at an-Najah National University in Nablus.

- On 13 May 2010, a Palestinian child was shot dead by an Israeli settler near Ramallah. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, at approximately 17:30 on 13 May 2010, 4 Palestinian children, including 16-year-old Aysar Yasser Fawaz al-Zeben from al-Maz’a al-Sharqiya village, went to al-Bayada area, approximately 50 meters from the Ramallah – Nablus road. At approximately 19:30, the four children threw stones at an Israeli car. The car immediately stopped. An Israeli settler exited the car and fired 14 to 17 bullets at the children. The children fled in different directions. At approximately 21:00, three of the children met in the village. They called al-Zaben on his mobile phone, but he did not answer their call. They immediately began to look for him. At approximately 21:30, a number of residents of the village went to search for him, and at approximately 22:00, they found his body. They transferred the body to Ramallah Hospital. According to medical sources, the child was hit by a bullet to the back.

- On 24 September, 13-month old Mohammed Mahmoun Abu Sara, from al-'Eissawiya village near Jerusalem, died due to tear gas inhalation. According to the victim’s uncle, on 22 and 23 September 2010, Israeli forces moved into al-Zahra area in al-'Eissawiya village and fired tear gas canisters near his brother’s house. As a result, the toddler suffered from difficulties in breathing due to tear gas inhalation. He was evacuated to the hospital, but he did not survive.
In 2010, Israeli forces continued to impose a tightened closure on the oPt, especially the Gaza Strip, cutting it off from the West Bank and Jerusalem. They have imposed severe restrictions on the movement of Palestinian civilians through border crossings.

Although several months have passed since Israel declared they would ease restrictions and facilitate the entry of goods and commodities into the Gaza Strip, the Palestinian civilian population in the Gaza Strip has not felt any major change to the tightened closure. Israeli occupation authorities increased the number of goods allowed into the Gaza Strip, but continued to impose a ban on strategic goods, especially construction materials and raw materials for production. Additionally, Israeli forces have continued to impose a ban on agricultural and industrial exports from the Gaza Strip. PCHR has always expressed concerns over the alleged easing of the closure imposed on the Gaza Strip and its legitimization by the international community as the changes were only superficial. Palestinians may not suffer from a lack of certain goods, but their economic dependency and their social, cultural and academic isolation continue.
- On 30 June 2010, the Israeli occupation authorities announced their intention to ease the closure by facilitating better movement of persons at crossings and to increase the goods, in kinds and quantities, allowed into the Gaza Strip. Such claims proved to be false, as no major change took place for movement at border crossings. They allowed the entry of some new goods in an attempt to convince the world that they had eased the closure. It is worth noting that the Gaza Strip has not been in need of the goods that were allowed because they have been brought through tunnels from Egypt. However, Israeli forces continued to ban the entry of construction materials and raw materials for production which are much needed. In late November, 21 international organizations criticized the alleged easing of the closure by Israel, and called for the immediate and unconditional lifting of the illegal closure.

The international community, especially the High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention of 1949, have failed to take serious steps to stop violations by Israel who have obligations under the Convention to respect human rights in the oPt, including lifting the closure and stopping the policy of collective punishment, which leads to serious violations of the economic, social, civil and political rights of the Palestinian civilian population. Israel has also continued to obstruct efforts to reconstruct the Gaza Strip through the continued ban they impose on the entry of construction materials. Following the Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip, which ended on 18 January 2009, the international community held a conference in Egypt in late March 2009 where they announced a plan to reconstruct the Gaza Strip, and devoted US$ 4.481 billion for this purpose.

Israel continued to prevent the Palestinian civilian population from entering Israel, including many patients seeking medical treatment and individuals with emergency humanitarian needs. Over the year, Israel continued to impose additional restrictions on movement within the West Bank, including Jerusalem, through military checkpoints and barriers. This is turning Palestinian communities into isolated Bantustans. Israel also imposed further restrictions on Palestinians traveling through al-Karama International Crossing Point (also known as Allenby or King Hussein Bridge), on the Jordanian border. They decreased working hours at the crossing point and there were incidents were Israeli officials treated Palestinians in what can only be described as inhuman and degrading treatment.

- On 01 June 2010, the Egyptian authorities declared that Rafah International Crossing Point on the Egyptian – Palestinian border has continued to be closed. From 12 June 2007, before the Hamas’ takeover of the Gaza Strip, until the end of 2009, the crossing point was closed on 991 days. As a result of the ongoing closure of the crossing point in the first half of 2010, thousands of Palestinian civilians wishing to travel from and to the Gaza Strip were prevented from doing so on both sides of the crossing point.

In the Gaza Strip, the Rafah International Crossing Point has continued to be closed. From 12 June 2007, before the Hamas’ takeover of the Gaza Strip, until the end of 2009, the crossing point was closed on 991 days. As a result of the ongoing closure of the crossing point in the first half of 2010, thousands of Palestinian civilians wishing to travel from and to the Gaza Strip were prevented from doing so on both sides of the crossing point.

- On 01 June 2010, the Egyptian authorities declared that Rafah International Crossing Point on the Egyptian – Palestinian border would be open every day. In November 2010, the Egyptian authorities declared that the crossing point would be open five days a week. PCHR welcomed these steps, but noted that the categories of people allowed to travel were limited to:

1. Patients referred by the Palestinian Authority to Egyptian hospitals.
2. Palestinians working abroad, who have valid residency permits in other countries.
3. Students who are enrolled in universities in Egypt or other countries.
4. Palestinians who hold foreign passports and internationals who are married to Palestinians.
5. Palestinians whose travel to Egypt is coordinated with the Egyptian authorities.
6. Palestinians who have valid residency permits in Egypt.
7. International delegations and missions.
8. International journalists.
9. Palestinians who have diplomatic passports.

PCHR expressed hopes that more steps would be taken to support the right of Palestinian civilians to freedom of movement, including allowing more categories of Palestinians to travel through Rafah International Crossing Point.

Israeli forces have closed al-Mentar (Karni) crossing, designed for the movement of goods, since 13 June 2008. Since that time, the crossing has only been partially opened to allowed limited amounts of grains and fodders. Before the tightened closure of border crossings, commercial transactions with Israel used to constitute 80% of Palestinian external trade, and goods exported to Israel and the West Bank constituted 90% of the total exports of the Gaza Strip. Following the intervention of the Israeli Supreme Court, Israeli officials allowed the export of 20% of the amount of flowers and 4% of the amount of strawberries in the Gaza Strip. It is worth noting that the Gaza Strip’s annual production of followers for export is estimated at 60 million flowers, and its production of strawberries is estimated at 1,500 tons.

Furthermore, Israel has continued to close Beit Hanoun (Erez) crossing for Palestinian civilians, except for a small number of patients who are permitted to travel to the West Bank and Israel to receive medical treatment, international journalists, diplomats, and international workers who often undergo extensive and complicated search procedures.

A report from the UN Conference on Trade and Development indicated that the Israeli closure imposed on the Gaza Strip and the closure imposed on the West Bank result in an annual loss of US$ 600-800 million, approximately 13% of the GNP. The report further noted that rehabilitation of the Palestinian economy requires removing all Israeli restrictions imposed on the freedom of movement of persons and goods. It also pointed out that there are increasing levels of unemployment, amounting to at least 44% in the Gaza Strip, thus escalating poverty to unprecedented levels. According to the report, 61% of the population of the Gaza Strip lacks foods security due to a 60% decrease in the agricultural production over the past ten years. The report estimated the direct and indirect losses that would be incurred by the Palestinian economy between 2008 and 2011 at US$ 3.9 billion; noting that the Palestinian economy loses 60-80 thousand job opportunities annually. So, the number of lost job opportunities between 2008 and 2011 would be 260,000.

The tightened closure imposed on the Gaza Strip for more than 4 years constitutes a violation of international law. Increasing the number of goods allowed into the Gaza Strip does not change anything with regard to the illegality of the closure, which is in contradiction with the legal obligations of Israel as an occupying power, and under international human rights instruments, to which Israel is a party, including the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. The ICRC issued a statement on 14 June 2010, in which it stressed that the closure constitutes a form of collective punishment against Palestinian civilians, for a crime they have not committed, in violation of international humanitarian law.

PCHR calls for major changes to Israeli policies in order to end the humanitarian crisis in the Gaza Strip. The illegal closure imposed on the Gaza Strip violates international humanitarian and human rights law and causes a human dignity crisis for the population. PCHR further emphasizes that the measures declared in mid-2010 to ease the closure are ambiguous and do not deal with the roots of the crisis, which can only be addressed by the immediate and complete lifting of the closure, including the restrictions imposed on the freedom of movement of persons and goods.
Blocking the Reconstruction of the Gaza Strip

After two years of the wide-scale Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip, pledges for reconstruction have not been implemented on the ground. The major factor that has obstructed reconstruction efforts by donors, official bodies and civilians has been the closure of commercial crossings and the ban imposed on the entry of construction materials. Thousands of houses have been demolished or destroyed by Israeli forces since the beginning of the second Palestinian Intifada, especially during the offensive on the Gaza Strip in December 2008 and January 2009. The suffering of Palestinian civilians who lost their homes has continued unabated because most of them have to live in tents set up on the debris of their homes. A conference of international donors held in March 2009 in Egypt was disappointing in that it did not schedule the beginning the reconstruction and left it open until Israeli occupation authorities reopen border crossings and allow the entry of construction materials. They also did not provide any guarantees to actually follow through on their pledges; nor did they hold Israel responsible for the destruction incurred in the Gaza Strip.

In 2010, Israeli officials continued to impose severe restrictions on the entry of construction materials. In 2006, 2007 and 2008, Israel allowed the entry of 8.66%, 4.57% and 2% respectively of the cement actually needed in the Gaza Strip. They did not allow the entry of any cement in 2009. In 2010, Israeli occupation authorities allowed the entry of limited quantities of construction materials into the Gaza Strip, which was sufficient to complete 20% of the needed construction work in only two housing projects. The Gaza Strip daily needs 3,000 tons of cement, 2,500 tons of construction aggregate and 2,000 tons of iron bars. The Ministry of Public Works and Housing in Gaza indicated that the Gaza Strip has an immediate need for 1,100,000 tons of cement, 500,000 tons of aggregate and 200,000 tons of iron bars in order to reconstruct houses and civilian facilities, to reconstruct basic infrastructure of the housing sector and public services. It is clear that the Gaza Strip had suffered from a severe shortage of construction material even before the Israeli offensive.

At least 50,000 Palestinians in the Gaza Strip endure severe conditions in temporary housing shelters, as they have not been able to reconstruct their houses that were destroyed during the Israeli offensive. According to PCHR’s documentation, 2,162 houses that included 1,881 housing units, in which 18,750 individuals used to live, were completely destroyed, and 3,277 houses that included 4,925 housing units, in which 32,703 individuals used to live, were partially destroyed during the Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip. The restrictions imposed on the entry of materials, such as glass and aluminum have obstructed the reconstruction of at least 16,000 houses that were damaged.

Some Palestinian civilians are forced to live in their damaged houses despite the fact that these houses did not undergo a safety examination by engineers, which might endanger them.

The education sector still faces extreme difficulties due to destruction and damage incurred to education facilities during the Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip. Schools also suffer from serious shortages in educational supplies and lab equipment. It has not been possible to repair 150 public schools that were damaged during the Israeli offensive, including 8 that were completely destroyed. Higher education institutions also have not been able to repair the damages incurred, especially the labs at the Islamic University.

The ban imposed on the entry of basic materials, such as tar and road flagstones, have inhibited the pavement and rehabilitation of about 540,000 meters of roads in order to enhance the transportation network across the Gaza Strip. Public services and facilities have worked with a decreased capacity due to the heavy damages incurred during the offensive.

The destruction of the economic infrastructure in the Gaza Strip during the Israeli offensive has had disastrous impacts on the economic sector. During the offensive, Israeli forces destroyed 73% of the economic enterprises in the Gaza Strip, whose rehabilitation has not been possible due to the ban imposed on the entry of basic materials. Thus, at least 150,000 workers have become unemployed. Other economic enterprises have closed due to the continued closure of border crossings.

Restrictions on the Freedom of Movement in the West Bank

Israeli forces have continued to impose severe restrictions on the movement of Palestinian civilians through 585 barriers, including 65 manned checkpoints, 22 sporadically manned checkpoints, 80 gates on the annexation wall and 418 unmanned roadblocks. In spite of Israeli claims of dismantling a number of checkpoints, such checkpoints were moved to other places and/or they were close to other checkpoints, which means that the situation has not significantly changed.5

In the Bethlehem district, for instance, Israeli forces have 41 checkpoints, observation points and barriers; including the Container checkpoint, northeast of the town, checkpoint #300 and Rachel Tomb, north of the town, al-Nashash, al-Walaja, Wad Foukin, Beit Jala DCO and Gush Etzion checkpoints. Checkpoint #300 is a symbol of the humiliation for Palestinian civilians when traveling to East Jerusalem. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, Palestinians who have permits must allow two-three hours to cross the checkpoint, during which their magnetic cards, fingerprints, permits, ID cards and legal status are examined. The checkpoint consists of two long waiting lanes outside its gate; 5 electronic gates for personal checking; 4 baggage checking sets; 4 windows for checking permits and fingerprints; 3 internal observation points; and 4 external observation checkpoints. Checkpoints at the entrances to Jerusalem are similar to this one.

Israeli forces establish approximately 300 temporary checkpoints monthly, through which they control the movement of Palestinian civilians.

Additionally, Israeli forces have continued to close a number of roads leading to some towns and villages. They have also restricted access of Palestinian civilians to large areas in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, areas isolated by the annexation wall or located near Israeli settlements and large country areas.

5 The report will address restrictions imposed on the movement of Palestinian civilians on both sides of the annexation wall in the section on the construction of the annexation wall below.
Israeli forces have further continued to restrict access of Palestinian civilians to East Jerusalem, especially for the purposes of medical treatment or visiting religious sites.

Israeli forces also control the access of Palestinian civilians to the Jordan Valley through 4 checkpoints: Tayaseer, al-Hamra, Efraim and Yitav. Most Palestinians are denied access to the area without permits.

Additionally, Israeli forces use military checkpoints to arrest Palestinian civilians. In 2010, Israeli forces arrested 180 Palestinians, including 32 children, 3 women, 5 journalists and a former minister.

Arrests, Torture and Other Forms of Cruel and Inhuman Treatment

In 2010, Israeli forces continued to arrest Palestinians and detain them under inhuman conditions. The vast majority of detainees were arrested during Israeli incursions into Palestinian towns, villages and refugee camps across the West Bank, at military checkpoints or during special operations carried out by Israeli forces. In 2010, Israeli forces detained at least 1,200 Palestinians for at least one day in the West Bank. They also held hundreds of others for long hours under inhuman conditions at military checkpoints or during night raids on houses. Some of these detainees were brought to trial following cruel interrogations and they were sentenced by courts, while others were released. In the Gaza Strip, Israeli forces arrested at least 43 Palestinians during repeated incursions into Palestinian communities along the border between the Gaza Strip and Israel or at border crossings, especially Beit Hanoun (Erez) crossing in the northern Gaza Strip.

By the end of 2010, at least 6,500 Palestinians, including 215 children and 37 women, were still in Israeli custody in 22 prisons and detention facilities mostly inside Israel, in violation of article 76 of the Fourth Geneva Convention which obligates the occupying power to detain persons from occupied territory in that territory. The number of prisoners from the Gaza Strip is at least 700, and the number of prisoners from Jerusalem and from Palestinians living inside Israel is 400. The detainees also include 307 who were detained before the Oslo Accords of 1993, including 126 who have served more than 20 years in prison, 27 of whom have served more than 25 years in prison.6

In addition, Israeli forces have continued to detain political leaders and representatives of the Palestinian people. By the end of 2010, Israel continued to detain at least 14 members of the PLC, including 11 members of the Change and Reform (Hamas movement): ‘Azzam Salhab; Hassan Yousef; ‘Abdul Jaber Fuqaha; Mohammed al-Natsha; ‘Ali Rumanin; Nizar Ramadan; Ayman Daraghma; Hatem Qaffish; Mahmoud al-Ramahi and Nayef al-Rajoub. There are also two PLC Members from the Fatah bloc – Marwan al-Barghouthi and Jamal al-Teerawi – and one from the Abu Ali Mustafa Bloc affiliated to the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, Ahmed Sa’adat.

Israeli forces arrested Ashraf Shafiq al-Khatib, 32, a paramedic of Palestine Red Crescent Society, when he was accompanying 4 persons to a training course organized by Palestine Red Crescent Society in Ramallah.

Palestinian prisoners are detained under harsh conditions, which includes the denial of access to medical care, contributing to deterioration of their health conditions, especially among those who suffer from chronic and serious diseases. Many are also denied family visitation. Prisoners from the Gaza Strip have been denied family visitation for nearly four years and prisoners from the West Bank have been given the opportunity of family visitation only sporadically. Many prisoners are detained in solitary confinement for prolonged periods of time.

In 2010, Israeli forces arrested Ussama Anwar Subeh, 40, while he was traveling to receive medical treatment at an Israeli hospital. On 23 June 2010, Israeli forces arrested Ashraf Shafiq al-Khatib, 32, a paramedic of Palestine Red Crescent Society, when he was accompanying 4 persons to a training course organized by Palestine Red Crescent Society in Ramallah.
Detention According to the Illegitimate Combatant Law

Following the Israeli forces redeployment from the Gaza Strip in September 2005, Israel invented the concept of “illegitimate combatant” to describe Palestinian prisoners who are in fact civilian persons protected under the Fourth Geneva Convention, but justify their detention in accordance with a special law called “Illegitimate Combatants” issued in 2002. According to this law, the Israeli forces Chief of Staff has the authority to issue an arrest warrant for a person if there is a basis to suspect that the person is “a legitimate combatant.”

By the end of 2010, 6 Palestinians from the Gaza Strip had been detained under the this law although they had finished serving their sentences.

These detainees are:
1. Hammad Msallam Abu ‘Amra, from Deir al-Balah, who had served a 6-year sentence;
2. Ussama Hajjaj al-Zurai’ei, who was arrested on 06 February 2008, and his detention has been regularly renewed;

Torture and Ill-Treatment

Palestinian prisoners in Israeli jails are subjected to various forms of torture and inhuman and degrading treatment. Detainees are often violently beaten and insulted. Often this treatment expands to various methods of torture practiced against them during interrogation. In 2010, PCHR received more reports regarding various methods of interrogation used against Palestinian detainees, including minors, held in Israeli jails and detention centers, which constitute torture and ill-treatment as defined both in the Convention against Torture and other international instruments. These methods include:

1. Blindfolding and hitting a detainee, especially on the face and the abdomen;
2. Strangling a detainee in a way the causes extreme difficulties in breathing;
3. Insulting a detainee and swearing God;
4. Forcibly removing the hair of the beard;
5. Hanging a detainee with his feet up and face down, and hitting him on sensitive parts of the body, such as the testicles;
6. Bridging – a method in which 3 interrogators carry a detainee using chains, with his face down, which led a detainee in one case to urinate blood;
7. Sexually abusing detainees, and raping them in some cases using iron bars;
8. Shabeh* for long periods that sometimes amount to 48 hours;
9. Tightened handcuffing; tying the hands and legs with plastic chains that causes severe pain;
10. Sleep deprivation for long hours.

3. Mohammed Khalil Abu Jamous, from Khan Yunis, who has been detained since 20 July 2007, although he had served a two-year sentence;
4. ‘Abdullah al-Aamoudi, from Khan Yunis, who has been detained since 21 November 2003, although he had served a 6-year sentence;
5. Ra’ed ‘Abdullah Abu Mughassib, from Deir al-Balah, who has been detained since 22 December 2003, although he had served a 6-year sentence; and
6. Mahmoud Kamel al-Sarsak, from Rafah, who has been detained since 22 July 2009, and his detention has been regularly renewed.

* Shabeh entails shackle the detainee’s hands and legs to a small chair, angled to slant forward so that the detainee cannot sit in a stable position.
Administrative Detention

Administrative detention has been used by Israeli forces to arrest and detain Palestinians without charge or trial for long periods of time. Currently administrative detention orders permit detention for periods from 3 to 6 months. These orders are indefinitely renewable without being charged or tried for any crime. These orders are issued by Israeli district military commanders in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. By the end of 2010, at least 214 Palestinians were in custody under administrative detention orders issued by Israeli military authorities. Administrative detention violates the Fourth Geneva Convention, as Article 78 allows detention without process only as an exceptional measure for “imperative reasons of security” and explicitly prohibits the use of this measure as a form of punishment.

Forcible Migration of Palestinian Civilians from the West Bank

On 13 April 2010, two Israeli military orders came into effect, potentially turning all West Bank residents into “infiltrators.” Order No. 1650 regarding Prevention of Infiltration and Order No. 1649 regarding Security Provisions were issued in October 2009 as amendments to an old military order (1969) which declared “infiltrators” coming from Jordan, Syria, Egypt or Lebanon (the so-called “enemy states” at the time of the issuance of the order) liable to imprisonment and deportation.

The orders define an “infiltrator” in such generic terms that virtually any person currently present in the West Bank could potentially be defined as an “infiltrator” and consequently incur criminal liability and/or be subject to deportation. An “infiltrator” is now defined as “a person who entered the Area unlawfully” or “a person who is present in the Area and does not lawfully hold a permit”. The ‘Area’ refers to the occupied West Bank.

Pursuant to Military order No. 1650 any person who unlawfully entered the area shall be sentenced to seven years imprisonment, whereas an individual who has lawfully entered the area but does not “hold a permit” shall be sentenced to three years imprisonment.

Moreover, regardless of whether the “infiltrator” is charged with an offence under the Order or not, the military commander may order the deportation of the person from the area; the issuance of the deportation order shall be considered an arrest order and serve as the “legal source for holding such infiltrator in custody pending his deportation.” The deportation can be executed 72 hours after the order, and in some cases even sooner.

As a consequence of the dramatic expansion and ambiguity of the new definition of “infiltrator” the Order not only applies to people coming from so-called “enemy states,” as in the past; it now applies to every Palestinian, both those who were born in the West Bank and those who lawfully moved to it, for instance from Gaza or from abroad.

The new regulation establishes that every person without a document or permit is “presumed to be an infiltrator.” According to Order 1650 the permit is a document issued by the military commander, or a person appointed by him in accordance with security legislation, or by Israeli authorities under the Entry into Israel Law, 5712-1952. As has been highlighted by Hamoked Center for the Defence of the Individual, the breadth of the definition suggests that the Order applies to every person currently present in the West Bank regardless of his status, identity, or nationality.

In fact, for a number of years, thousands of applications made by persons living who have been living in the oPt for decades in accordance with the Interim Agreement between Israel and the Palestinian Authority or by Palestinians seeking family reunification have been illegally “frozen” by the Israeli authorities who refuse to grant them status in the oPt.

Additionally, since 1967 thousands of Palestinians moved to the West Bank from the Gaza Strip and they were never required to have a written permit, as there was no requirement under the military legislation to hold a written permit.

It appears that pursuant to the new military orders thousands of residents in the West Bank will be potentially subject to immediate deportation.

Such a practice would constitute a breach of the Fourth Geneva Convention, in particular of Article 49, which prohibits any kind of forcible transfer as well as the deportation of protected persons (civilians) from the occupied territory.
Attacks on Journalists

Israeli forces have continued to attack journalists despite the protection extended to them under customary international humanitarian law. Journalists have been subjected to various kinds of attacks in apparent attempts by Israeli forces to prevent media coverage of human rights violations perpetrated against Palestinian civilians in the oPt. It is clear that attacks by Israeli forces against the press are part of a systematic policy to isolate the oPt from the outside world and to cover up crimes committed against civilians. In 2010, such attacks included firing at journalists (violation of the their right to life and personal security); beating and other forms of cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment; denial of access of journalists to certain areas; denial of travel and raids on houses of journalists.8

Firing at Journalists

PCHR documented 57 cases of firing at journalists in the oPt in 2010, resulting in 46 journalists being wounded:

- On 15 January, 3 journalists were wounded by rubber-coated metal bullets while they were covering Israeli attacks on Palestinian civilians in Bil‘ein village, west of Ramallah:

  1. Haroun Yousef ‘Amaira, a correspondent of Palestine Television, wounded by a rubber-coated metal bullet to the chest;
  2. Fadi Mousa al-Jayoussi, a cameraman of Palestine Television, wounded by a rubber-coated metal bullet to the chest; and
  3. Moheeb Mohammed al-Barghouthi, a photojournalist of al-Hayat al-Jadeeda, wounded by a rubber-coated metal bullet to the head.

- On 06 February, Nidal Eshtayeh, a cameraman of the Chinese News Agency, was wounded by a rubber-coated metal bullet to the right foot, when Israeli forces fired at him at close range. Eshtayeh was covering clashes between Israeli settlers and Palestinian civilians in Iraq Bourin village, south of Nablus, when Israeli soldiers ordered him to stop photographing claiming that the area was “a closed military zone.” When Eshtayeh refused to leave the area, the soldier fired at him at close range.

- On 08 February, Dial Jwaihan, Correspondent of Quds.Net, was injured when a sound bomb exploded near her back as she was covering clashes in Shu‘fat refugee camp in East Jerusalem. As a result she fainted. Jwaihan stated that she suffered from acute pains in her back, inflammation in her right hand and sustained burns to the thigh. Additionally, Karim Khader, a cameraman from CNN, was injured by shrapnel in his ankle from a sound bomb and his left hand was injured from a rubber-coated metal bullet.

- On 05 March, Mahfouz Abu Turk, a cameraman of Associated Press, was wounded when 3 rubber-coated metal bullets hit him in the right leg. His camera lens was also broken. The injuries occurred when he was covering attacks by Israeli forces on Palestinian civilians in the yards of the al-Aqsa Mosque in East Jerusalem.

- On 06 April, Israeli forces fired at a number of journalists who were covering attacks by Israeli forces on a peaceful demonstration organized by dozens of Palestinian civilians and international human rights defenders in the northern Gaza Strip. No casualties were reported.

- On 31 May, Emily Henochowicz, an American journalist, was hit by a tear gas canister to the left eye fired by Israeli soldiers who attacked Palestinian civilians near Qalandya checkpoint, north of Jerusalem.

- On 17 July, ‘Abdul Rahim ‘Omar Qoussini, a cameraman from Reuters, sustained burns to the right shoulder and a hole in his left eardrum when an Israeli soldier detonated a sound bomb near him. Qoussini was covering attacks by Israeli forces on Palestinian civilians in Beit Ummar town, north of Hebron.

- On 24 September, Israeli forces fired at Diala Jwaihan, Correspondent from Quds.Net, and Fareed Saleh, a freelance television producer, in al-‘Eissawiya village near Jerusalem; they were not hurt.

- On 20 November, Israeli forces fired tear gas canisters at Fidaa’ Nasser, a correspondent from Palestine Television, and Hussam Abu ‘Allan, a photojournalist from Palestine News Agency (Wafa), when they were covering attacks by Israeli forces on Palestinian civilians who were demonstrating against land confiscation in Beit Ummar town, north of Hebron.

- On 24 December, Israeli forces fired tear gas canisters at journalists who were covering attacks by Israeli forces on Palestinian civilians who were demonstrating against the construction of the annexation wall in Bil‘ein village, west of Ramallah. As a result, ‘Ouda Rebhi Abu Rahma, a photojournalist from the Public Committee against the Wall, was hit by a tear gas canister in his right foot, another unidentified Israeli journalist was hit by a tear gas canister to the right foot as well.

Beating and Other Forms of Cruel, Inhuman and Degrading Treatment

In 2010, PCHR documented 38 cases of beating and other forms of cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment by Israeli forces and Israeli settlers against journalists, the most notable of which were:

- On 25 February, Nasser al-Shyoukhi, a photojournalist from The Associated Press, was beaten and harshly pushed by Israeli soldiers when he refused their order to stop photographing. As a result, he lost consciousness. Al-Shyoukhi was covering attacks by Israeli forces on Palestinian civilians and international human rights defenders who were demonstrating peacefully near Karantina checkpoint in Hebron.

- On 05 March, 4 journalists were beaten and humiliated by Israeli forces near the Ibrahimi Mosque in Hebron. Israeli forces were attempting to prevent journalists from covering attacks by Israeli forces on Palestinian civilians in the area. The journalists are: ‘Abdul Hafiz Diab al-Hashlamoun, a photojournalist from the European Press Agency; Mohammed Hmaidat, who works for Palestine Television; Akram al-Natsha, who works for al-Quds Television; and ‘Abdul Ghani al-Natsha, a photojournalist from Pal Media.

- On 02 April, 3 journalists were violently beaten by Israeli forces in al-Ma‘sara village, south of Bethlehem:
  1. ‘Abdul Hafiz Diab al-Hashlamoun, a photojournalist from the European Press Agency, sustained bruises to the right hand;
  2. ‘Aamer ‘Abdin, a photojournalist from Pal Media, sustained bruises to the abdomen;
  3. Mousa Sa‘id al-Sha’er, a photojournalist from The Associated Press, sustained bruises throughout his body and a cut on his forehead.

- On 20 June, 6 journalists were violently beaten by Israeli forces when they refused to obey an order to stop photographing clashes in the west of Beit Jala near Bethlehem.

- On 07 August, Eyad Nemer Hamad, who works for The Associated Press, and Samer Eyad Hamad, who works for Pal Media, sustained bruises all over their bodies when they were beaten by Israeli forces in Beit Ummar town, north of Hebron.

- On 25 September, Nasser al-Shyoukhi, who works for Associated Press, sustained fractures to his rib cage and bruises all over his body, when he was violently beaten by Israeli forces in Beit Ummar town, north of Hebron.

- On 5 November, Bilal ‘Abdul Salam Tamimi, who works for B’Tselem, sustained bruises when he was beaten by Israeli forces in Nbi Saleh village, northwest of Ramallah. Tamimi was covering attacks by Israeli forces on a peaceful demonstration organized by Palestinian civilians and international human rights defenders protesting against settlement expansion.

Detention of Journalists

In 2010, PCHR documented 49 cases in which journalists were detained by Israeli forces, the most notable of which were:

- On 23 January, Israeli soldiers positioned at Za’tara checkpoint, south of Nablus, detained Mos’ab al-Khatib, a correspondent for al-Jazeera Satellite Channel, and Ahmed al-Kilani, who works for Pal Media, as they were preparing a report near “Ariel” settlement.

- On 7 February, Israeli forces arrested Ariadna Jobi Marti, a Spanish journalist, at her residence in al-Bireh. She was taken to an Israeli detention center. Then she was deported.

- On 23 April, Moheeb Mohammed al-Barghouthi, working for al-Hayat al-Jadeeda newspaper, and Uri Goff, an Israeli journalist, were detained by Israeli forces, when they were covering attacks by Israeli forces on a peaceful demonstration in Bil‘ein village, west of Ramallah.

- On 18 June, Israeli forces arrested Hammoud Sa‘id ‘Amira, a photojournalist from the Public Committee against the Wall and Settlement, in Ne‘lin village, west of Ramallah.

- On 18 September, Israeli forces detained Nasser Hussein al-Shyoukhi, a cameraman from The Associated Press, when he arrived in Beit Ummar, north of Hebron, to cover a peaceful demonstration organized to protest Israeli settlement activities.

- On 02 November, Israeli soldiers detained Mohammed ‘Eissa al-Ashqar, a correspondent from Maan News Agency and al-Salam Television, in military vehicles, when he was reporting on an Israeli incursion into Tulkarm. During the two-hour detention, Israeli soldiers interrogated al-Ashqar about his work.

- On 26 December, Israeli forces detained journalist Mohammed ‘Olayan, who works for al-Quds Daily, when he was covering attacks by Israeli forces on Palestinian civilians and international human rights defenders who organized a peaceful demonstration near Qalandya checkpoint, north of Jerusalem. ‘Olayan was detained for two hours.
Denial of Access to Certain Areas

In 2010, Israeli forces prevented 43 journalists and media professionals from covering certain incidents. The most notable of such cases were:

- On 01 January, Israeli forces prevented Nasser al-Shyoukhi, a cameraman for The Associated Press, from working in al-Bwaira area, northeast of Hebron, claiming that it was “a closed military zone.”

- On 24 April, Israeli forces prevented Najeh al-Hashlamoun, a cameraman of NBA, from working in Beit Ummar, north of Hebron.

- On 23 July, Israeli forces prevented Yusri Mahmoud al-Jamal, who works for Reuters, and Hazem Jameel Bader, who works for France Press, from working in al-Bwaira area, northeast of Hebron. They were detained for two hours.

Denial of Travel

On 11 May 2010, Israeli forces prevented ‘Aadel al-Za’noun, who works for France Press, from traveling through Beit Hanoun (Erez) crossing to travel to Jordan.

House Raids

- On 07 January, Israeli forces raided and searched a house belonging to Diaa’ Ahmed Houshiya, who works for Palestine Television, in Qatna village northwest of Hebron.

- On 20 December, Israeli forces raided and searched a house belonging to Nawaf Ibrahim al-‘Aamer, who works for al-Quds Television, in Kufr Qalil village south of Nablus.
In 2010, Israeli forces continued to demolish Palestinian civilian property in the oPt, especially in Jerusalem. They demolished or destroyed civilian facilities such as houses, industrial and commercial establishments. They also destroyed agricultural lands and crops. The suffering of the Palestinian civilian population is aggravated as a consequence of this policy, especially in the Gaza Strip, which has a serious shortage of construction materials required for the reconstruction of destroyed houses. It is worth noting that the Gaza Strip was subject to extensive destruction of civilian property by Israeli forces, which had been the widest since 1967, in the context of a wide scale offensive on the Gaza Strip in December 2008 and January 2009. During the offensive, Israeli forces destroyed houses, factories, industrial, commercial, educational and health facilities. They also destroyed agricultural lands, and the civilian infrastructure; including electricity networks, water sources, sanitation and roads. Israeli forces have undermined all local and international efforts to reconstruct the Gaza Strip. They have continued to impose a tightened closure on the Gaza Strip, under which they have banned the entry of raw construction material required for reconstruction. Israeli forces have further continued to demolish and destroy Palestinian civilian property in the West Bank, including Jerusalem where Israeli occupation authorities are engaging in actions in an effort to create a Jewish majority in the city.

These acts constitute grave breaches of international humanitarian law, and amount to war crimes according to the Geneva Convention Relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War of 1949, which is applicable in the oPt. As a Contracting Party to the Convention, Israel has an obligation to respect the Convention, including ensuring protection for the Palestinian civilian population in the oPt. Among the legal obligations of Israel as an occupying power include abstention from destroying real or personal property belonging individually or collectively to private persons, to the State, to other public authorities, or to social or cooperative organizations, except where such destruction is rendered absolutely necessary by military operations as codified by Article 53. Also, the occupying power may not forcibly transfer any individual or group nor can they move any population into the occupied territory according to Article 49 of the 4th Geneva Convention. Furthermore, the occupying power must abstain from punishing any protected person for an offence he or she has not personally committed which amount to collective penalties under Article 33.

Demolition and destruction of civilian property also constitutes a flagrant violation of international human rights law, including the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights of 1966. As a state party to these instruments, Israel has legal obligations to take necessary measures to ensure respect for human rights in the oPt, and Israel must abide to these obligations in the oPt according to the UN Human Rights Committee.

Destruction of Civilian Property in the Gaza Strip

Israeli forces have continued to destroy civilian property in the Gaza Strip, including houses, agricultural areas, factories, workshops, health facilities and commercial establishments, during incursions into Palestinian communities or as a result of shelling.

According to PCHR’s documentation, Israeli forces completely destroyed 13 houses, which included 88 housing units where 60 individuals, including 268 children, used to live. They also partially destroyed 35 houses, which included 74 housing units where 375 individuals, including 235 children, used to live. Israeli forces destroyed these houses when they bombarded nearby facilities, during incursions into Palestinian communities or by directly bombarding them because their owner was allegedly wanted.

Israeli forces also destroyed civilian facilities, including establishments used for industrial, health, agricultural, sports, service and commercial activities. In 2010, Israeli forces completely destroyed 6 civilian facilities and partially destroyed 29. This number includes 6 industrial facilities, 2 health facilities, 4 agricultural facilities, a sports facility, a service facility and 19 commercial facilities.

Agricultural lands were extensively razed and agricultural facilities were destroyed in the Gaza Strip, especially in Khan Yunis and the central Gaza Strip. In 2010, Israeli forces razed 87 dunums of agricultural land, including 23 dunums planted with olives, 49 dunums planted with vegetables and 15 dunums planted with wheat.
Section (1): Israeli violations of Human Rights and International Humanitarian Law

Destruction of Civilian Property in the West Bank

Israeli forces continued to demolish Palestinian houses in Area “C” (under full Israeli control under the Oslo Accords) for the purpose of settlement expansion. In 2010, this policy was also focused on the Arab areas of occupied East Jerusalem, where Israeli forces demolished Palestinian houses under various pretexts, including the lack of building licenses.

Israeli forces require Palestinians to obtain building permits in East Jerusalem and areas located near Israeli settlements and bypass roads, but prolonged and complicated procedures must be followed to obtain such licenses, which are granted only in very rare cases. The procedure that Palestinians must undergo to apply for a building permit and the fact that very few applications are successful illustrate the discriminatory regime towards Palestinian civilians. This is especially true when it is taken into account that Israelis can obtain such licenses easily. Due to the extreme difficulty in obtaining licenses and the need to repair or expand houses, Palestinian civilians are forced to build houses without licenses, even though they are aware this could cause them problems in the future.

In 2010, Israeli forces demolished 194 houses in the West Bank, including 63 in East Jerusalem. Further, they furthered 15 Palestinian civilians in East Jerusalem to demolish their own homes. Additionally, Israeli officials issued 1,393 demolition orders for houses in East Jerusalem and Area C. Palestinian civilians, forced by the Israeli forces, often destroy their houses themselves in order to avoid having to pay extremely high fines.

10 This policy cannot be isolated from the policy of settlement expansion and the construction of the annexation wall, which will be highlighted below.
Settlement Activities and Attacks by Settlers against Palestinian Civilians and Property

The Israeli government, its occupation forces and settlers living in the oPt in violation of international law have continued the expansion of settlements in the West Bank. Armed Israeli settlers, protected by Israeli forces, have also continued to commit crimes against Palestinian civilians and property. In 2010, Israeli settlers escalated their attacks against Palestinian civilians and property, encouraged by the Israeli government led by Benjamin Netanyahu.

Settlement Expansion

In 2010, the Israeli government intensified settlement activities in all areas of the West Bank, especially in East Jerusalem. In spite of the Israeli government’s declaration of a partial suspension of building in settlements and in spite of increasing international criticism, the Israeli government increased its construction in settlements, allegedly to meet the needs of natural growth in settlements. The construction peaked in the last quarter of 2010. PCHR emphasizes that Israeli settlement activities in the oPt clearly violates international humanitarian law, particularly the Fourth Geneva Convention. PCHR calls upon the international community to immediately intervene to force the Israeli government to stop all settlement activities in the oPt, especially in East Jerusalem, and dismantle Israeli settlements, which constitute a war crime under international humanitarian law.

Israeli occupation authorities waged an intensified campaign against Palestinian construction in Area “C,” which is under full Israeli control pursuant to the Oslo Accords signed between the PLO and the government of Israel in 1993. This campaign of demolitions was carried out under the pretext that no building licenses had been obtained from the Israeli organization and construction department in “Beit Eil” settlement. It is worth noting that Israeli occupation authorities impose restricted and complicated procedures on Palestinians applying for building permits. Palestinian families often build on their private land to meet the needs of natural growth, but Israeli occupation authorities still pursue demolitions on the basis of a failure to get a license. This is yet another example of the discriminatory use of Israeli law that Palestinian communities must endure, as opposed to those in Israeli settlements.

Confiscation of Palestinian Civilian Property

In 2010, Israeli occupation authorities continued to confiscate Palestinian civilian property for the purpose of settlement expansion, in violation of international humanitarian law, which prohibits changing the nature of an occupied territory without military necessity, a condition that is not fulfilled in this case. During the year, Israeli forces confiscated and/or leveled at least 13,149 dunums of land across the West Bank. This figure includes areas of land annexed by Israeli settlers and does not include closed areas, such as the Jordan Valley in the eastern section of the West Bank, to which access is prohibited for Palestinians by Israeli forces.

Additionally, Israeli forces and Israeli settlers uprooted or burnt at least 10,346 olive trees in the West Bank.11

Efforts to Create a Jewish Geographic Majority in Jerusalem

The Israeli government and its occupation forces have continued settlement activities in East Jerusalem and its suburbs in an effort to create a Jewish majority in the city. They have cut the city off from the West Bank, constructed new sections of the annexation wall and continued activities of settlement expansion inside and around the city. The Israeli Municipality of Jerusalem has continued to demolish Palestinian houses under the pretext of unlicensed construction. In 2010, there was an escalation in demolition notices for civilian property, including homes, delivered to Palestinian civilians in East Jerusalem and its suburbs. Israeli forces even forced Palestinian civilians to demolish their houses by themselves.

In 2010, Israeli forces, through the Municipality of Jerusalem, continued to demolish Palestinian houses throughout the city and its suburbs, usually claiming unlicensed construction as the justification. The municipality continued to impose prolonged and complicated procedures on Palestinian civilians who attempt to obtain construction licenses. Many Palestinians are under pressure to build new houses or expand existing homes due to natural growth, and thus do so without obtaining licenses.

Israeli occupation authorities, through the Municipality of Jerusalem, the Ministry of Housing, the Ministry of Interior and settlement associations, approved the construction of thousands of housing units for Israeli settlers inside and around the city. PCHR stresses that Israeli practices in Jerusalem are illegal and that the Municipality of Jerusalem discriminates in its approach to issuing building licenses to the Palestinian population.

In 2010, the Israeli government approved a law that classifies Jerusalem as “a priority area” and puts it among “development areas in the fields of housing, education and employment.” In this context, an Israeli ministerial committee approved the construction of ten thousand settlement units and hotel rooms in Israeli settlements in Jerusalem, and Israeli authorities actually started the construction of 1,200 settlement units.

The District Organization and Construction Committee of the Israeli Municipality of Jerusalem approved the new structural plan of al-Buraq Wall, which includes the expansion of Davidson Center to absorb at least 400,000 visitors each year, digging new tunnels linking al-Buraq Wall with Silwan village and establishing public car parks for buses and cars.

In addition to these illegal measures, the Israeli Ministry of Interior continued to withdraw identity cards from Palestinian civilians living in the city and expel them to areas in the West Bank or abroad. In a serious development in this context, on 08 December 2010, Israeli authorities illegally transferred Mohammed Abu Tair, Member of the PLC from the Change and Reform Bloc (Hamas movement), from Jerusalem, his place of residence, to Ramallah. Those same authorities also summoned Abu Tair, two PLC Members – Ahmed ‘Atwan, 42, and Mohammed Toutah, 41 – and former Minister of Jerusalem Affairs, Khaled Abu ‘Arafa, 49, in June 2010 to al-Maskoubiya detention center, where they were informed of a decision to withdraw their identity cards. Israeli authorities gave them temporary residence permits that would expire on 03 July 2010. While ‘Atwan, Toutah and Abu ‘Arafa sought refuge in the headquarters of the ICRC in the Sheikh Jarrah neighborhood and remained there in a tent until the end of the year, Israeli occupation authorities arrested Abu Tair and detained him until the date of his transfer. PCHR believes that the transfer order constitutes a form of forcible migration, which is prohibited under Article 49 of the Geneva Convention Relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time... of War of 1949.

Additionally, Israeli forces have continued to impose severe restrictions on activities of Palestinian NGOs in Jerusalem, claiming that they are linked with PLO and/or the PNA, even though the identity and activities of those NGOs are clear. Measures by Israeli officials included raiding the offices of NGOs and prohibiting or closing down official and public meetings even if they were of a social nature, claiming that such activities are linked with the PLO or the PNA.

Israeli forces have further continued to violate Palestinian religious rights by denying access to religious sites in the city and continued excavations in the vicinity of the al-Aqsa Mosque.

Efforts to create a Jewish demographic majority in Arab Jerusalem began with the occupation of East Jerusalem in 1967, and continued with the confiscation of Palestinian property, the establishment of Jewish settlements, construction of the annexation wall, the prevention of the construction of new houses and demolition of existing ones, the issuance of racist orders that aim at expelling the Palestinian population and the isolation of the city by cutting it off from surrounding Palestinian communities. PCHR believes that encouraging or orchestrating the forced migration of Palestinian civilians from Jerusalem is one of the methods by which Israel creates a new reality in the city, where Jews constitute the overwhelming majority of the population. Successive Israeli governments have made efforts to ensure that the number of Palestinians never exceeded 22% of the city's total population. To achieve this goal, those governments have taken a series of measures, the latest of which have been the construction of the Annexation Wall (which has effectively left thousands of Palestinian Jerusalemites inside the city municipal boundary but outside the wall cut off from the city), the confiscation of Jerusalem identity cards from Palestinians and the integration of Israeli settlement blocs located in East Jerusalem as part of the city.

Attacks by Israeli Settlers against Palestinian Civilians and Property

In 2010, attacks by Israeli settlers against Palestinian civilians and property continued. Such attacks included shootings, running down civilians with vehicles as well as destruction of or damage to civilian property. In 2010, a Palestinian child was killed by Israeli settlers near Ramallah. This brings the number of Palestinian civilians killed by Israeli settlers to 48 since the beginning of the second Intifada in September 2000.

Attacks by Israeli settlers often take place in plain view of Israeli forces, who often protect the settlers, especially in Hebron. Israeli forces also neglect to follow up on complaints submitted by Palestinian civilians concerning attacks carried out by settlers, thus encouraging the latter to launch more attacks.

On 13 May 2010, an Israeli settler shot and killed a Palestinian child from al-Mazra’a al-Shrqiya village, northeast of Ramallah.

The child and 3 of his mates were in al-Bayada area in the west of the village, nearly 50 meters away from Ramallah-Nablus road. They threw stones at an Israeli settler’s car. Immediately, the settler stepped out of the car and fired at the children. As a result, one of them was killed by a bullet that entered his chest and exited from his head.

A Palestinian woman miscarried on 28 May 2010, when a number of Israeli settlers living in “Bat Jonathan” settlement outpost in Silwan village to the south of the Old City of Jerusalem attacked a number of Palestinian women.

In 2010, PCHR documented 291 attacks by Israeli settlers, the majority of them in Jerusalem. Attacks in 2010 were distributed as follows: 72 in Jerusalem; 64 in Hebron; 67 in Nablus; 25 in Ramallah and al-Bireh; 28 in Qalqilya; 20 in Salit; 7 in Bethlehem; 1 in Jenin; 4 in Tulkarm; and 3 in Jericho. The categories of the attacks were: 5 cases of shooting; 46 cases of harassment; 24 attacks against houses; 78 attacks against farmers, shepherds and their property; 27 attacks against religious sites; 2 attacks of running down people in vehicles; and 109 other attacks, including closing roads and throwing rocks at Palestinian civilian vehicles.
The Annexation Wall in the West Bank

In late June 2002, the Israeli government, headed by Ariel Sharon, decided to construct a separation barrier between Israel and the West Bank, in order to prevent Palestinians from entering Israeli territory except through a security system that would be established. At first, the Israeli government claimed that the barrier was a security measure and had no political implications. Over time, as new facts were created on the ground, some Israeli politicians declared that the barrier would constitute the border line between Israel and a future Palestinian state.

Over the past few years, Israel has completed construction of many sections of the wall, which is mostly being constructed inside West Bank territory rather than along the Green Line (the pre-1967 border) separating the West Bank from Israel. Israel, which cites security concerns in order to unilaterally create new facts on the ground, has used the wall in its negotiations with Palestinians, who aspire to establish their state within the 4 June 1967 boundaries. The wall effectively annexes Palestinian land has created a new reality on the ground that makes it difficult to discuss the establishment of a viable, contiguous Palestinian state.

On 9 July 2004, the International Court of Justice (ICJ) issued its Advisory Opinion, Legal Consequences of the Construction of a Wall in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, in response to a request by a UN General Assembly resolution of 3 December 2003, to determine the legality of the wall. The Court ruled that the wall's construction inside the oPt, including Jerusalem, violates international law. The court also decided that Israel is obliged to cease its violations of international law, stop the construction of the Wall, dismantle the sections already constructed, abolish all relevant legislation and orders and compensate Palestinians harmed by the construction of the wall.

In spite of the ICJ’s Advisory Opinion, Israeli occupation authorities have continued its construction of the annexation wall. In 2010, the construction mainly focused around Jerusalem. Israel has completed the construction of the majority of the wall around the city according to the plans of the Israeli Municipality of Jerusalem. The main factor in determining the route in the Jerusalem area is that the route follows the city’s municipal borders. In 1967, Israel attempted to unilaterally annex substantial parts of the West Bank to the municipality of Jerusalem, a total of approximately 70,000 dunums. Some 220,000 Palestinians now live in these areas. There are two sections in which the Wall does not run along the municipal border. One is in the Kufr ‘Aqab neighborhood; the other is in the area of the Shu’afat refugee camp. These are separated from the rest of the city by the barrier even though they lie within the city’s municipal area.

The Israeli judiciary has continued its traditional role of serving the policies of Israeli occupation authorities. In this context, the Israeli High Court rejected a number of petitions submitted by Palestinian civilians against the confiscation of their lands for the purpose of the construction of the wall. In very rare cases, the court ordered slight changes to the route of the wall, but these changes have not been implemented.
Restrictions on Movement on Both Sides of the Annexation Wall

Israeli forces have imposed severe restrictions on the movement of Palestinians on both sides of the wall since its construction. In 2010, Israeli forces imposed additional restrictions on the movement of Palestinians.

Israeli forces reduced the hours during which gates established along the wall are opened, restricting access of Palestinian farmers to their agricultural lands, which are located on the other side of the wall from where they live. Such measures aim at reducing working hours of farmers, depriving them of their sources of income.

The construction of the wall has brought especially harsh restrictions on the movement of Palestinians living near the wall. These new restrictions are in addition to the widespread restrictions that have been in place since the outbreak of the second Intifada. Thousands of Palestinians have difficulty accessing their fields and marketing their produce in other areas of the West Bank. Farming is a primary source of income in the Palestinian communities situated along the wall’s route. The harm to the agricultural sector has drastic economic effects on the residents – whose economic situation is already very difficult – and many families are driven into poverty.

The impact of restrictions on the movement of Palestinians living near the wall has not been limited to the agricultural sector, but includes numerous other aspects of life. Palestinians’ access to medical care, education and their relatives has been restricted, as Palestinians are required to obtain permits to move through gates established on the wall, which are operated under a strict security system. Israeli forces often close these gates for no apparent reason.
The Absence of Justice in the Israeli Legal System

The Israeli legal system is fundamentally biased against Palestinians. The system itself, including mechanisms of investigation adopted by the Israeli military, are biased and partial. While Israel has initiated some investigations into the events of ‘Operation Cast Lead,’ the number of investigations initiated comprises only a small fraction of the overall complaints submitted. The results of such investigations have always shown that Israel is unwilling to conduct genuine investigations and prosecutions. No senior Israeli officials has been questioned or prosecuted in accordance with international standards. The UN Committee of Independent Experts on Follow-up to Recommendations in the Goldstone Report indicated that “there are no indications that Israel has opened investigations into acts of those who designed, planned, ordered and supervised ‘Operation Cast Lead.’”

According to PCHR's documentation, Israel has systematically failed to ensure accountability for violations of international human rights law and humanitarian law during its offensive on the Gaza Strip. Over the two years since the offensive, Israel has demonstrated a desire to protect and hide those who are responsible for crimes from justice. Only 3 Israeli soldiers have been convicted of committing crimes during the offensive. One of those soldiers was sentenced to 7 months of imprisonment for stealing a credit card. Two soldiers were also convicted of using a 9-year-old Palestinian child as a human shield, and their military service was suspended for 3 months. Such results from the Israeli judiciary demonstrates strongly its disregard for the rights of innocent people and it willingness to provide effective remedies.

Additionally, these investigations fall far short of accepted international standards. In accordance with its obligations under international law, Israel must investigate, punish those responsible for crimes, provide an effective remedy for victims, provide fair and adequate compensation and establish the truth. Israeli investigations fail to meet these basic requirements. Investigations also fail to meet international standards regarding the independence of the judiciary. Israel’s has not conducted timely investigations and prosecutions nor have investigations been conducted outside the military hierarchy in order to ensure a fair and independent investigation and prosecution, which is fundamental to the concept of separation of powers. Simply put, justice for Palestinians is unattainable. Israel also imposes legal, financial and material obstacles on the population of the Gaza Strip, including thousands of victims of ‘Operation Cast Lead,’ which inhibits their ability to access Israeli courts and results in depriving them of their fundamental rights.

1. Legal Obstacles

According to Israeli law, civil claims must be filed within two years from the date of the event or victims lose their right to seek a legal remedy. To meet the two year statute of limitations is extremely difficult, especially in light of the restrictive Israeli measures imposed on the Gaza Strip. Before 1st of August 2002, the period to file a civil claim had been 7 years, but the Israeli Knesset amended the law decreasing it to two years, apparently to deprive Palestinians of their right to file judicial claims.

2. Financial Obstacles

Israeli courts often require plaintiffs to pay insurance fees before initiating a claim. Such fees are left for courts to set. When the claim is related to property damage, the fees are set at a proportion of the value of the property. In claims related to killings and injuries, there is no specific range for fees. Based on PCHR’s experience, such fees are at least 10,000 NIS (approximately US$2,800). In one of the claims filed by PCHR, the plaintiffs... were required to pay an amount of 20,000 NIS (approximately US$ 5,600). So, the imposed fee corresponds to the gravity of violations. In most cases, Palestinians from the Gaza Strip, many of whom suffer from severe economic conditions, are unable to pay such fees, which means that their rights before courts are lost.

3. Material Obstacles

Under Israeli law, for testimony or an affidavit to be legal, an eyewitness or a victim must physically appear before a court. Since 2007, in spite of decisions by courts summoning victims or eyewitnesses, Israeli officials have prevented them from traveling outside the Gaza Strip. In addition, there have been restrictions placed on the movement of lawyers. PCHR has been forced to appoint lawyers inside Israel, which adds additional financial burdens. All applications submitted by Israeli lawyers to meet their clients in the Gaza Strip have been rejected, which have impacted their ability to represent victims adequately.

PCHR has filed 490 lawsuits on behalf of 1,046 victims of ‘Operation Cast Lead.’ Most of these cases include the most hideous crimes, such as those committed against the families of al-Sammouni, Abu Halima and al-Dayah. PCHR stresses that a culture of impunity has prevailed for decades and is entrenched in the judicial structure in Israel with regard to Palestinian civilians. Such a culture has led to an escalation of systematic violations of international human rights law and humanitarian law in the oPt. In light of this situation, PCHR, in cooperation with a number of international legal and human rights organizations has turned to universal jurisdiction to pursue justice. This legal principle empowers national courts, acting as agents of the international community, to attempt to prosecute those accused of international crimes – which include grave breaches of the Geneva Conventions, crimes against humanity, genocide and torture – no matter where these crimes occur.
Section 2: Palestinian Violations of Human Rights and Obstacles to Democratic Reform

This section of the report focuses on Palestinian violations of human rights and obstacles to democratic reform in the PNA controlled areas in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. The internal political conflict and separation between the West Bank and the Gaza Strip has led to further deterioration of the human rights situation. The vast majority of human rights violations internally were attributed to the conflict between Hamas and Fatah movements, mutual reactions between the two sides and measures taken by the two governments and their security services in Gaza and Ramallah. This section includes the following subsections: Violations of the Right of Life and Attacks on Personal Security; Continued Disruption of the Legislature; Deterioration of Judicial Authority; Obstruction of General and Local Elections; Violations of the Right to Freedom of Opinion and Expression; Violations of the Right to Peaceful Assembly; Violation of the Right to Association; Death Penalty; Impacts of the Political Division; Impacts Economic and Social Rights in the Gaza Strip and Concerns over Potential Imposition of the Ruling Party’s Ideology on the Gaza Strip Society.
Violations of the Right to Life and Attacks on Personal Security

In 2010, violations of the right of life and attacks on personal security in the oPt continued. In 2010, 42 Palestinians, including 3 children and 6 women, were killed and at least 297 others were wounded. The majority of victims were killed in the Gaza Strip, where 30 Palestinians were killed and 292 others were wounded. These Palestinians were killed as a result of various forms of violence and misuse of weapons, which constitute part of the state of lawlessness and security chaos spreading across the oPt. PCHR has repeatedly called on official bodies to seriously investigate such incidents and bring their perpetrators to justice. However, PCHR has not learnt of any serious investigations having been conducted nor any serious measures having been taken to ensure the non-recurrence of such incidents.

Misuse of Weapons

The misuse of weapons continued in the oPt in 2010, which resulted in many deaths and injuries. Examples of the misuse of weapons are excessive use of force by law enforcement officials, storage of weapons or explosives in populated areas, using weapons in personal and family disputes and killing for “family honor.”

Following are the most significant incidents of misuse of weapons in the Gaza Strip, which resulted in 30 deaths:

- On 03 February, an explosion from an unknown source occurred in a rented flat in a 3-storey apartment building in al-Sahaba Street in the east of Gaza City. As a result, a man was killed and 5 persons, including a couple and their two children, were moderately to seriously injured. The Palestinian police arrived at the scene and opened an investigation. The official web site of the ‘Izziddin al-Qassam Brigades (the armed wing of Hamas) identified the man who was killed as one of their members - Abu Dajana ‘Abdul Rahman, 23, from the Sheikh Radwan neighborhood in Gaza City - and stated that he was killed in the course of a Jihad mission.

- On 14 March, a quarrel erupted between two groups of young men from the Mo’ammar family near al-Rayyan Mosque in al-Shouka village, northeast of the southern Gaza Strip town of Rafah. The quarrel developed into an exchange of gunfire resulting in the death of Mohammed Marzouq Mo’ammar, 65, from a gunshot wound to the chest. Another 3 persons were wounded.

- On 12 April 2010, the body of Sherin Khamis Zayed (al-‘Attar), 32, from the northern Gaza Strip town of Beit Lahia, was killed by several bullets to the head and the chest. The chief of police in Beit Lahia told a PCHR fieldworker that the police opened an investigation into the incident and arrested a number of the victim’s relatives, including her father. The father told the police that five masked gunmen... raided his house on Monday morning and pulled his daughter outside the house and fired at her. Information provided by the police indicates that this crime was committed allegedly to “maintain family honour.”

- On 28 April, medical sources in el-Shifa Hospital in Gaza City announced the death of Mahmoud Ahmed al-Masri, 21, from Jabaliya refugee camp in the north of the Gaza Strip. Al-Masri died from wounds he sustained when he was targeted by unknown gunmen two days earlier. Al-Masri was wounded on 26 April 2010 by seven bullets to his legs. Masked men fired at him when he was standing in front of his home. A passerby, Jihad Mostafa ‘Afana, 22, was also wounded by a bullet to the abdomen.

- On 02 May 2010, Ibrahim Suleiman al-Malalha, 18, was killed and four members of his family were wounded when a projectile landed on their house in the west of Khan Yunis. According to the father, the projectile came from the eastern side of the house because military training was being conducted inside a military site for one of the Palestinian resistance groups approximately 700 meters away from the house.

- On 13 July 2010, Ashraf Mahfouz al-Masri, 39, from Khan Yunis, died in the European Hospital in Khan Younis from wounds sustained in a family dispute on Monday evening, 12 July. Al-Masri was hit by a bullet to the abdomen when he intervened to settle a dispute between his relatives.

- On 02 August 2010, a heavy explosion rocked Deir al-Balah refugee camp in the central Gaza Strip. The explosion occurred in a 100-square-meter, uninhabited house. As a result of the explosion, 58 Palestinians living in the surrounding area, including 13 children and 9 women, were injured, and a pregnant woman miscarried. Additionally, 7 houses were destroyed or rendered uninhabitable, and another 30 houses were damaged. According to eyewitnesses, a red glow came from the house before the explosion rocked the area. After the explosion, activists of the Palestinian resistance arrived in the area and surrounded the affected house. The Palestinian police also arrived in the area and prevented people from reaching the house. Resistance activists collected shrapnel of the explosive devices from the house and transported them in a car.

- On 03 November, 2010, ‘Alaa’ Mohammed al-Souri, 24, was killed by a bullet to the chest, and Mohammed Naji Ghabboub, 22, was wounded by two bullets to the chest and the left shoulder, when a gunman, who is a police officer in the Municipality of Gaza, fired at them in al-Shati refugee camp, west of Gaza City. At the time of the shooting the two victims were in a
- On 20 December, Zohair al-Ghandour was killed in a family dispute in Jabalya refugee camp in the northern Gaza Strip. Al-Ghandour was shot during a family dispute that erupted between cousins in his family. The clash occurred near his home located in Block 6 of the Jabalia refugee camp. This dispute originated from an existing problem within the al-Ghandour family involving three brothers kidnapping a relative of theirs in the area. As the dispute escalated, members of the family involved with security services intervened to help release the kidnapped person. This led to the exchange of fire between both sides and the death of Zohair al-Ghandour.

- On 22 December 2010, the body of Mohammed al-Ashram, 28, a police officer from Gaza City, was brought to Shifa Hospital in Gaza City. He was shot and killed by a bullet to the chest during a family dispute between the victim and one of his family members. The quarrel took place inside the al-Ashram Tile Factory in al-Tuffah neighborhood in east of Gaza City and escalated to the point where shots were fired resulting in the death of al-Ashram.

Following are the most significant incidents of misuse of weapons in the Gaza Strip, which resulted in 12 deaths:

- On 01 May, Rami Sa‘id al-‘Absi, 16, from Hebron, was killed by a bullet to the back, when members of the Palestinian National Security Forces fired at him and his father as they were driving. The driver did not obey orders of security members to stop, so they fired into the air and then at the car.

- On 16 May, Mahmoud Ibrahim Turkman, 55, from Ya‘bad village southwest of Jenin, was killed by two bullets to the abdomen, fired at him by ‘Izzat al-Fari, 30, from the nearby Kafrit village, because of a family dispute. The killer surrendered to the police.

- On 02 September, Yousef ‘Izzat ‘Omar, 61, from al-Jaroushiya village, north of Tulkarm, was killed by two bullets fired by his eighteen-year-old son during a family dispute. Hassan, the son, turned himself to the police and an investigation was opened into the incident. Forensic doctor Samir Abu Za‘arour reported that ‘Omar was killed by two bullets fired at his chest and neck from a range not exceeding two meters.

- On 07 November, a gunman fired at Ayman Jebril al-Rajabi, 32, from Hebron, when police officers were moving him from a police vehicle to a court in the northwest of the town. Al-Rajabi was instantly killed by two bullets to the chest. On the following day, the killer surrendered to the police. It is worth noting that al-Rajabi was detained for killing a member of the al-Ajlouni family in the context of an old family dispute.

Misuse of Weapons by Known and Unknown Armed Groups

In 2010, armed groups, both known and unknown, committed crimes that contributed to the persistence of the state of security chaos and assaults on the rule of law in the Palestinian Territory. The most significant of such crimes was the detonation of a bomb near a convoy of ICRC vehicles, firing at houses, detonating bombs in official buildings or cars, kidnapping and torturing individuals, attacking UNRWA summer camps, attacking NGOs or cultural centers, attacking wedding parties or gatherings of people, armed clashes between armed groups of Palestinian factions and setting fire to tourist resorts.

The most significant of such attacks in the Gaza Strip were:

- On 04 February, a bomb planted by unknown persons exploded near a convoy of 4 vehicles belonging to the ICRC as they traveled on Saladin Road opposite al-Shawa fuel station near Beit Hanoun in the northern Gaza Strip. The explosion of the bomb, which had been planted two meters to the east of the road, resulted in shattered front and side windows and damaging the front of the last vehicle in the convoy, which holds a plate number (900441-13759). No casualties were reported. Mr. Eyad Nasser, Spokesman of the ICRC in Gaza, stated that the vehicles were transporting 8 international staff members of the ICRC towards Beit Hanoun (Erez) crossing.

- On 01 March, unknown persons detonated a bomb in a car belonging to Talal Banat, 44, chief of police operations in Gaza, when it was parked near his house on al-Nasser Street in the north of Gaza City. The car was heavily damaged, but no casualties were reported.

- On 14 March, 3 unknown gunmen traveling in a car kidnapped Salah al-Masri, an employee in the PNA, from al-Nasser neighborhood in Gaza City. Al-Masri told PCHR after his release that the gunmen took him into a building in an area that he does not know and questioned him about his relationship with the government in Ramallah. They tied his hands behind his back and forced him sit in a painful position. Then they violently beat him. They questioned him for several hours. During questioning, the beat him with an iron chain on his head and they tortured him with electrical shocks to his feet. At midnight, they drove him to the currency market in the east of Gaza City. They left him there and drove away.

- On 23 May, a large number of masked gunmen broke into the UNRWA camp designated for the summer games at the beach in the Sheikh ‘Ejleen area in the west of Gaza City. They attacked the guard with the butts of their guns, handcuffed him and took his mobile phone. They then began damaging the contents of the camp, tearing down the canvas walls and setting fire to the equipment used by children. Before they left, one of gunmen put a letter and three bullets in the pocket of the handcuffed guard. The letter included a threat against three UNRWA officials, including John Ging, Director of UNRWA Operations in Gaza. On 19 May, an unknown group named “Homeland Freemen” issued a press release strongly criticizing UNRWA and its administration, particularly with regard to the summer camps, which were described as aiming at teaching girls “swimming, fitness and dancing.” In the press release, the group threatened that “the dignified and honored Gaza will resist such corruption and stop it.” The group further criticized the government in the Gaza Strip, asking: “You, government of Gaza, what is your attitude towards these criminal acts?”

- On 28 June, a large group of masked gunmen broke into the UNRWA camp designated for the Summer Games on the beach in the west of al-Zawayda village, in the central area of Gaza Strip. The attackers handcuffed the guards and blindfolded them. They then proceeded to attack the camp, setting fire to some parts of it. Before leaving, the gunmen released one of the guards, who released the others and began to try to extinguish the fire.

- On 13 July 2010, unknown persons riding a motorcycle threw a hand grenade into the building of YMCA in al-Jalaa’ Street in the center of Gaza City. Shrapnel from the grenade spread over the playground, but no casualties or damages were reported.

- On 15 July 2010, eight masked gunmen carrying guns and clubs attacked a wedding party being held for Baker Abdul Qader al-Shawwaf, 25. The party was held on a 10-dunum piece of land belonging to his family in the ‘Abassan village, east of Khan Yunis, in the southern Gaza Strip. The gunmen threw two sound bombs near the party and then started firing into the air to disperse the participants, after which they attacked the remaining participants with clubs and set fire to the party stage.

- On 17 August 2010, armed clashes erupted between militants from the al-Quds Brigades (the armed wing of Islamic Jihad) and others from the National Resistance Brigades (the armed wing of Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine (DFLP), near Hamza Mosque in Khuza’a village, east of Khan Yunis. Clashes erupted after a dispute between the two parties regarding the eligibility of each party in the observation area (al-Ribat). The Palestinian police intervened and ended the clashes, but the clashes started again after the police had left. Accordingly, the police dispersed the militants and evacuated the area. The clashes, which continued until the following day morning, resulted into wounding two civilian bystanders with shrapnel.

- On 19 September, more than 20 masked gunmen broke into Crazy Water Park, which belongs to the Panda Tourist Company and is located in Sheikh ‘Ejleen area in the southwest of Gaza City, near the beach. The gunmen handcuffed and blindfolded the two guards, who were inside the Park, and took them to the guards’ room after confiscating the keys to the buildings in the Park. A number of gunmen attacked the security guard by beating him, set fire to the Park’s buildings and restaurants and then left. Large parts of the buildings and restaurants were damaged.

The most significant attacks in the West Bank were:

- On 08 February, unknown persons fired from a distance of approximately 25 meters at the office of ‘Emad Noufal, Member of the Palestinian Legislative Council, which is located on the second floor of the Eyad commercial compound in the centre of Qalqilya. No casualties were reported. Soon after, Palestinian security services arrived and established a number of checkpoints across the town in an attempt to arrest the attackers.

- On 11 February, unknown gunmen fired at the house of Mustafa ‘Ali Sabri, 43, a journalist, in the northern West Bank town of Qalqilya. No casualties were reported.

- On 24 September, unknown militants fired at offices of Jaffa Cultural Center on Schools Street in Balata refugee camp, east of Nablus. ‘Arafat stated: “I immediately went to the offices once I received a phone call that they were fired upon. A security force was in the area and initiated investigations. The shooting, which targeted the eastern side of the offices, where the administration is located, caused damage to air conditioners and windows, but caused no casualties.” ‘Arafat further said that security services informed him on the following day that they had arrested 5 suspects and they were interrogating them. Jaffa Cultural Center was established to develop the skills and behaviors of children.
Arrests, Torture and Other Form of Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment

In 2010, there were illegal arrests and torture and other forms of cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment was practiced by security services in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank. This is a reflection of the political division between the two parts of the country that has existed since 2007. This section of the report highlights illegal (political) arrests and repeated summons against members and supporters of Fatah movement in the Gaza Strip, and those of Hamas and Islamic Jihad in the West Bank, and accompanying house searches and confiscation of personal belongings. It also focuses on refusals to implement court rulings ordering release of political detainees, particularly in the West Bank. It further addresses the practices of torture and other forms of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment in detention centers in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Arrests and Summons on Political Grounds

In 2010, security services in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank intensified campaigns of repeated summons and detentions of political rivals, often under the auspices of security. Such acts often did not follow legal procedures for arrests in accordance with Palestinian and international human rights law, and detainees were not even held under conditions that ensure their human dignity. Palestinian lawyers, including those of PCHR, have faced difficulties in visiting their clients in prisons and detention facilities in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank. In 2010, PCHR lawyers were repeatedly prevented from visiting their clients who were detained by the ISS in Gaza.

Gaza Strip

Hundreds of activists of Fatah movement, including a number of women, were repeatedly summoned to the headquarters of security services throughout the Gaza Strip, and a number of them were arrested. Those activists were subjected to cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment, by detaining them in cells or small rooms or forcing them to stand for long hours in cold weather or under the sun. The most serious case was the death of Nazira al-Swairki, from Gaza City, while in the police custody.

The most significant incidences of summons and arrests in the Gaza Strip in 2010 were:

- On 01 January 2010, Nazira Jaddou‘al-Swairki, 56, from the Tuffah neighborhood in the east of Gaza City, died while in the police custody. Four Palestinian police vehicles arrived at al-Swairki’s home at approximately 20:00. The policemen demanded to see the victim’s son, Mohammed al-Swairki, 22, who was in his shop on the ground floor of the building blowing out candles that had been lit on the balcony, apparently to celebrate the anniversary of the establishment of Fatah movement. Fatah supporters light candles to celebrate the anniversary of the movement because security services in Gaza prevent them from organizing celebrations on this occasion. A dispute arose between the policemen and the victim’s sons Sami, 40, ‘Amer, 27, and Mohammed, 22. The policemen beat the three civilians and arrested Mohammed and ‘Amer. In his testimony to PCHR, Sami al-Swairki stated: “When she saw my two brothers in the jeep, my mother - who was in the shop - tried to pull them out of the jeep. My mother suffered from heart disease, hypertension and diabetes. One of the policemen hit her on the back and another policeman pulled her into the jeep. They then drove away at a very high speed.” In his testimony to PCHR, ‘Amer al-Swairki stated: “My mother began to suffocate and told my brother and me to take her to the hospital. The policemen did not respond to her appeals and continued to drive to al-Tuffah Police Station. She began to lose consciousness. The policemen then transported her to Shifa Hospital in the jeep. Her health condition continued to deteriorate until she died before arriving at the hospital.”

- On 19 May, the ISS arrested Dr. Ussama al-Farra, 49, Member of the Revolutionary Council of Fatah movement, from his house in the southern Gaza Strip town of Khan Yunis. Dr. al-Farra was taken to Ansar Prison in the west of Gaza City, where he was detained from 21:30 until 01:30 on the following day, when he was released. The detention of Dr. al-Farra was apparently a reaction to the detention of Dr. Mohammed Ghazal, a leader of Hamas, by the Preventive Security Service (PSS) in Nablus.

- On 20 May, the ISS began to summon activists of Fatah movement, including women, to ISS centers throughout the Gaza Strip. Those activists stated in their complaints to PCHR that they went to ISS centers, where they were repeatedly detained from the morning until the evening, and a number of them were interrogated about their activities in Fatah movement in the Gaza Strip. They were also informed that activities of Fatah movement are banned in the Gaza Strip. The activists also stated in their complaints that there were detained in hot containers or in cells with bad ventilation. A number of the activists stated that they were detained in bad-smelling toilets. The activists also stated to PCHR, that summons were repeatedly renewed for the following days. The last of such summons documented by PCHR were on 01 and 02 July, when at least 50 activists of Fatah movement, including women, in Rafah and the northern Gaza Strip were summoned to come to ISS centers on 03 July. They were also ordered to take their passports with them. When the activists went to ISS centers, they were detained for several hours, and their passports were confiscated, apparently in an attempt to prevent them from traveling outside the Gaza Strip, in response to ban imposed by the Ramallah government on providing the Gaza Strip with empty passports.

- On 29 September, a number of leaders and members of Fatah movement in Khan Yunis were summoned, and some of them were detained without interrogation. Mazen Shaheen, members of the leadership of west Khan Yunis section of Fatah movement stated: Eyad Nasser, secretary of west Khan Yunis section, a number of members of the movement and I were summoned by the ISS. We were detained in single cells. Several hours later, I was taken to the interrogation room, where I sat for an hour and a half, before someone came and told me that summoning me was a message to me to reduce my activities in the movement.” The same happened with Eyad Nasser. The two were released at noon.

- On 11 November 2010, an ISS force stormed the office of PLC Member Ashraf Jom’a on the fourth floor of Qishta building in Rafah, while a documentary about the late Khalil al-Wazir (Abu Jihad), one of the most prominent leaders of Fatah movement and Palestine Liberation Organization, was being shown. The ISS members cut the electricity to the office and attempted to confiscate computers and other equipment, but Jom’a stopped them. Before leaving the office, the ISS members arrested at least 30 out of the approximately 50 persons who were in the office, and forced the others to leave the office. The detainees were transported to the ISS headquarters in Tal al-Sultan neighborhood in the west of Rafah, where they were interrogated. The detainees were also forced to sign an oath not to participate in any activity organized by Fatah movement or for the commemoration of the late Palestinian President Yasser Arafat.13

- On the morning of 08 December 2010, the ISS in Jabalya refugee camp in the northern Gaza Strip summoned 9 leaders of Fatah movement, and detained them in a room after confiscating their identity cards and handcuffing them. The detainees were released in the evening, and were ordered to come back to the ISS center on 11 December, when they came the same thing happened to them. They were ordered to come back again to the ISS center on 15 December. The nine persons are:

1. Jamal Sa‘id ‘Obdai, Secretary of Fatah movement in the northern Gaza Strip;
2. Yasser Mohammed al-Sayed;
3. ‘Abdul ‘Aziz Hassan al-Maqadma;
4. Sami Jouda Abu Rukba;
5. ‘Eissa Khalil al-Mughrabi;
6. Eyad ‘Olayan al-Matlan;
7. ‘Abdul Hai Mohammed al-Najjar;
8. Mohammed ‘Aadel al-Masri; and

- On 12 December, Amal Tawfiq Hamad, from the northern Gaza Strip, and Member of the Revolutionary Council of Fatah movement, received a summons from the ISS to show up at its center on the following morning, which she did. She was interrogated about her activities in Fatah movement and the General Union of Palestinian Women. The interrogators told her that she was banned by higher parties from traveling outside the Gaza Strip. She was released on the same day.

- On 18 December, Inas Ibrahim Abu Shawish, from Khan Yunis, received a summon to go to the ISS headquarters in Gaza City on the following day, and she did. She was detained in a room for an hour and a half. Two female interrogators questioned her about her activities in Fatah movement and informed her that such activities are banned in the Gaza Strip. At the end of interrogation, they ordered her to deliver her passport to them on 23 December, but she refused because she was accompanying her sick daughter for medical treatment abroad.

- In the last week of December, the ISS summoned dozens of members and activists of Fatah movement throughout the Gaza Strip.14 According to those summoned, they were detained in rooms, some of them blindfolded and others with their faces to walls. A number of them were also interrogated about expected activities of Fatah movement for the anniversary of its establishment on 1 January. They were also informed that activities of Fatah movement are banned in the Gaza Strip. Some persons were summoned more than once.

The West Bank

Palestinian security services in the West Bank waged campaigns of illegal arrests and summons against members of Hamas and Islamic Jihad, including a number of academics, members of local councils and women. In some cases, they used unjustified force against families of the detainees. They also searched houses and confiscated personal belongings of detainees. In 2010, a number of civilians were arrested and tried by military services and judicial authorities. PCHR also documented a number of cases in which security services did not adhere to civil court rulings ordering release of civilians who were illegally detained.

- On 12 January, the Palestinian Supreme Court of Justice ordered release of Tariq ‘Abdul Raziq Abu Zaid, from Jenin, who had been

About 15 minutes later, he was requested to sign a letter that he received his son. Both Abu al-Baha’ and his father left the PSS headquarters and got into their car. Torture and Ill-Treatment

In 2010, the practice of torture and other forms of cruel treatment in prisons and detention centers of Palestinian police and security services in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank were evident. The practice of torture is often linked to detainees who are seen as part of the ongoing political division, criminal reasons or differences between detainees and security officers. Methods of torture included: insults; beating using batons, sharp tools, feet and hands; tying the feet and hands to a chair and beating with...

batons or wires; and other methods. Additionally, detainees were held in cells or small rooms, were placed in solitary confinement and were forced to stand for long hours in cold weather or under the sun.

Gaza Strip

In 2010, PCHR documented many cases in which a number of individuals were subjected to torture and other forms of cruel treatment by the ISS in the Gaza Strip during their detention on political grounds, particularly because of their activities in Fatah movement. Others were also subjected to torture during their detention on criminal grounds. The following are examples of such cases:

- On 06 October 2010, a number of militants wearing civilian clothes forced Na’im Suleiman Khammash, 21, from Deir al-Balah, to travel with them in a vehicle in Abu Houli area in the south of the town. They transported him towards a police station near al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital. They stopped there and violently beat him. They then transported him to the anti-drug police station near the Municipality of Deir al-Balah, where they detained him until the following day evening. During interrogations about his relations with a relative who was wanted by the police, he was subjected to beating and torture. In his testimony to PCHR, Khammash stated:

  “Police officers tied me to a pillar, and two of them tied my feet reversely. They then tied my hands backwards and upwards. While I was tied, they violently beat me using sticks. Nearly 7 hours later, I felt sick, so the police officer transported me to al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital, where I underwent medical checking. I was then taken back to the police station. They phoned my father who came to took me out.”

- On 9 November, the police investigation bureau arrested Ghassan Raji al-‘Abeed, 28, from al-Nuseirat refugee camp in the central Gaza Strip, when he was near his uncle’s house in al-Nasser neighborhood in Gaza City. He was taken to Ansar detention center, where he was subjected to torture by police officers. Al-‘Abeed was arrested because of a quarrel that erupted between him and his neighbor, who is a member of the police investigation bureau. In his testimony to PCHR, al-‘Abeed stated:

  “On 7 November, a quarrel erupted between me and a neighbor, who is a member of the investigation bureau. On 9 November, a 4-member force of the investigation bureau came to my uncle’s house in al-Nasser neighborhood in the north of Gaza City and arrested me. They transported me to the Ansar center. They took me into a room and violently beat me for 10 minutes using iron pipes. I sustained fractures to my left hand and foot. They then transported me to Shifa Hospital in Gaza City, where I received medical treatment.”

- On 2 December, the police investigation bureau arrested Sameer Hajjaj Abu Salah, 41, a trader of junks from ‘Abassan village east of Khan Yunis. His brother, 42-year-old Muneer, stated to PCHR that the family did not know where he was being detained until 7 December, when they learnt that he was detained in al-Qarara police station. He was accused of robbery. Muneer added:

  “My brother, Dr. Bashir, and a relative were able to visit him in the police station. They told us that his health condition seriously deteriorated as he was subjected to extreme torture. We asked the police to take him to the hospital, and they allowed us to do so on 8 December. On the following day, the police took him to the hospital again, and he was admitted into the intensive care unit.”

According to medical sources, there were blue areas throughout his body.

- On 26 December, the ISS in Rafah arrested an activist of the Palestinian Democratic Union (Fida) in the town. They handcuffed and detained him in a room. ISS officers interrogated him about his activities in Fida, the meetings of the National Work Committee, which were held in Fida’s office, and Fida’s focus on women’s activities in Rafah. During the interrogation, the activist was beaten with a plastic hose. His health condition deteriorated and he was evacuated to a hospital in Rafah. On the following day, the same activist was interrogated again. He was violently beaten by the interrogators.

West Bank

In 2010, Palestinian security services in the West Bank continued to practice torture and other forms of cruel treatment against detainees. A number of detainees were taken to hospitals when their health condition deteriorated due to effects of torture. PCHR also received testimony from detainees who had been released indicating that many of those who were arrested during repeated campaigns of arrests against activists of Hamas were detained under cruel and degrading conditions.

The following are examples of such cases:

- On 31 August, Fat’hi Suleiman al-Joulani, from the University neighborhood in Hebron was arrested by the GIS. He was taken to the GIS headquarters in Hebron, where he was detained with others in an open area without a bathroom. He was then interrogated. During the interrogation, he was subjected to Shabeh. He was forced to sit on a chair without a back, and was deprived of sleep for 3 days. This caused his health to deteriorate and he was evacuated to the hospital. Al-Joulani was released on 16 September 2010.

- On 19 September, the PSS in Hebron arrested Ahmed ‘Abdul Salam Sahlab, 41. Ten days later, he was transferred to the PSS prison in Jericho. On 16 October, his brother received a phone call from the PSS, in which he was informed that Ahmed would be released from al-Ahly Hospital in Hebron. When the family went to the hospital, they found Ahmed in bad health. He was suffering from acute pain in his back and legs. According to Ahmed Sahlab, during his detention, the PSS officers denied him access to medication.

- On 22 September, the National Security Forces (NSF) arrested Ahmed Rebhi Abu Se’da, 26, and his brother Sa’eed, 17, from a car wash belonging to Ramzi Mohammed Abu Se’da in Ras al-‘Ein neighborhood in Nablus. They were transported to Junaid prison. Later on the same day, the NSF arrested their brother Abdullah, 23, as well. Abdullah and Sa’eed were subjected to torture through their feet being beaten (Falaka) over several periods of time. As a result, Sa’eed suffered from severe exhaustion, and was then transported to Nablus Specialized Hospital for medical treatment. A PCHR field worker, who visited Sa’eed at hospital, reported that there were blue bruises on his feet. Doctors said that he suffers from spasm of nerves and cannot breathe normally. It should be noted that detention of the three brothers stemmed from a personal dispute between Abdullah Abu Se’da and an NSF member that took place in the evening of the same day at the car wash.

- On 11 November, the GIS arrested Bilal Nabeel Diab, 25, a member of Islamic Jihad from Kufor Ra’ei village southwest of Jenin. According to his family, his health condition deteriorated during his detention and he was evacuated to a hospital in Jenin. Members of the family were not able to visit him.
Continued Disruption of the Legislature

The PLC continued to be entirely unable to function because of the political fragmentation in the Palestinian executive, which impacted all components of the political system, and because of the activities of Israeli forces. The current crisis of the legislature and the legislative process is a result of the same factors that led to the unprecedented deterioration of PNA institutions following Hamas’ victory in the legislative elections of January 2006. One reason for the crisis of the legislature are violations that Israeli forces continue to commit against the Palestinian civilian population, including continued detention of 14 PLC members, mostly from the Change and Reform Bloc (Hamas movement) prevent any ability to govern. In 2010, Israeli forces arrested 3 PLC Members from the Change and Reform Bloc (Hamas movement). On 18 October, Israeli forces arrested Hatem Qaffisha. On 10 October, Israeli forces arrested Dr. Mahmoud ‘Abdul Rahman al-Ramahi, 47, Secretary of the PLC, and on 20 November they placed him under administrative detention for 6 months. And, on 1 December, Israeli forces arrested Nayef al-Rajoub, 53, former Minister of Religious Affairs.

Additionally, Israeli officials imposed additional restrictions on PLC Members in Jerusalem. In June, Israeli officials summoned three PLC Members: Mohammed Abu Tair; Ahmed Mohammed ‘Attoun, 42; and Mohammed ‘Omran Toutah, 41, and former Minister of Jerusalem and PLC Member, Khaled Abu Arafa, 49. Israeli officials confiscated their Jerusalem identity cards and issued temporary residence permits to them that would expire on 3 July. ‘Attoun, Toutah and Abu ‘Arafa went to the ICRC office in Sheikh Jarrah neighborhood, where they have stayed. Israeli forces arrested Abu Tair, and on 8 December, an Israeli court sentenced him to 4 months imprisonment which they suspended and expelled him to Ramallah, pending a final judgment by the Israeli Supreme Court.

The second factor that has contributed to the deterioration taking place in the legislature is the internal crisis and the fragmentation of PNA following the events of June 2007 and the Hamas takeover of the Gaza Strip. The takeover by Hamas was the culmination of numerous political rifts between Fatah and Hamas.

Over the year, a number of PLC Members in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip were attacked and harassed by Palestinian security services, including incidents of shooting and restrictions of their movement, in violation of the Palestinian Basic Law. In 2010, PCHR documented 4 attacks on PLC Members in the West Bank, and two attacks in the Gaza Strip.

- On 08 February, unknown persons fired at the office of PLC Member ‘Emad Noufal, from approximately 25 meters. The office is located on the second floor of the eyad commercial compound in the centre of Qalqilya. No casualties were reported. According to sources in the Palestinian security services and the police, a car stopped near the building and a person stepped out, fired at the office and then got into the car and left the area. Soon after, PSS arrived and established a number of checkpoints across the town in an attempt to find the car.

- On 03 July 2010, three masked gunmen stopped PLC Member ‘Abdul Hamid al-‘Eila, representing Fatah movement, while he was driving his car in a bystreet leading from Juhr al-Dik village, southeast of Gaza City, to Salah Addin street. The gunmen surrounded the car and told Mr. al-‘Eila to open the window because they wanted to talk to him. At this time, one of the gunmen struck the back of the car with a heavy tool. Mr. al-‘Eila immediately fled the area and drove to Gaza City. The police arrived to meet Mr. al-‘Eila in a house belonging to one of his relatives to open an investigation into the incident, took his statements and surveyed the damage to the car.

- On 24 July, a Palestinian security force stormed the house of PLC Member Sameera Halaiqa, from the Change and Reform Bloc (Hamas movement), in Shyoukh village, northeast of Hebron. They arrested her eldest son, 24-year-old Anas. As soon as her youngest son, Osama, 20, became aware of the situation, he left his uncle’s house, where he had gone to investigate after the house had been attacked. Upon witnessing his brother’s arrest, Osama called for the members of the security force to release his brother. As a result, a large number of the security force attacked and violently beat him with the butts of their guns and kicked him all over his body. All this occurred in front of his mother and many members of the family. In the meantime, the Palestinian force opened fire into the air.

- On 21 September 2010, a joint force of the security services and Palestinian police surrounded the house of PLC Member ‘Abdul Rahman Zeidan, from the Change and Reform Bloc (Hamas movement), in Deir al-Ghsoun village, north of Tulkarm. The joint force consisted of about 100 members, including 3 women, in 18 vehicles, some of which belong to the police. They violently broke into the house after breaking the door, and started thoroughly searching the contents of the house. Zeidan said that members of the force insisted on searching his wife and three daughters aged between 10 and 19. Before they left the house, the security forces confiscated two laptops, a mobile phone, all files and papers in the house, excluding identification papers, cut wires of the telephone and TV, handcuffed him and transported him in his night clothes to the security compound in Tulkarm. He was detained for 10 minutes, then released at approximately 02:30 into the street, wearing his night clothes.

- On 11 November a force of the ISS stormed the office of PLC Member Ashraf Jom’a on the fourth floor of Qishta building in Rafah, while a documentary about the late Khalil al-Wazir (Abu Jihad), one of the most prominent leaders of Fatah movement and Palestine Liberation Organization, was being shown. The ISS members cut off the electricity to the office and attempted to confiscate computers and other equipment, but Jom’a stopped them. Before leaving the office, the ISS members arrested at least 30 of the approximately 50 persons who were in the office, and forced the others to leave.

- On 21 November, a force of the Palestinian security services surrounded the house of PLC Member Fat’hi al-Qar’awi from the Change and Reform Bloc, in the southwest of Nour Shams refugee camp, east of Tulkarm. The security forces started climbing the outside fence and entered the yard. Al-Qar’awi went out of the house and told them that he was a PLC member and has parliamentary immunity. Nonetheless, the force broke into the house, cut the wires of the telephone and TV, collected the mobile phones, searched the house and damaged its contents, confiscated a computer, a laptop, documents relevant to al-Qar’awi’s work and confiscated the university notebooks belonging to his son Hamza, who is detained by the GIS in Jneid prison in Nablus. Before leaving the house approximately an hour and a half later, the security force arrested al-Qar’awi’s son, Hazem, 24, and transported him to an unknown destination. On the following day, Palestinian security forces stormed the house, searched the library and confiscated a book.

Throughout the year, the state of political fragmentation imposed a heavy burden on the work and performance of the PLC, which was completely unable to carry out its important role in legislating, monitoring and accountability over the executive. In Gaza, the Change and Reform Bloc of Hamas has continued to hold PLC sessions since November 2007, claiming that such sessions were legal.\(^{18}\) Since then, the Change and Reform Bloc has discussed, ratified and issued a number of laws, without ratification by the PNA President, as required by Article 41 of the Palestinian Basic Law. In Ramallah, Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas has continued to issue decrees that have the power of laws without presenting them to the PLC, relying on Article 43 of the Palestinian Basic Law: “The President of the National Authority shall have the right, in cases of necessity that cannot be delayed, and when the Legislative Council is not in session, to issue decrees that have the power of law.”

PCHR has expressed reservations regarding the adoption of legislation by the PNA under the ongoing state of fragmentation, because they are beyond current needs for the population and solidify the ongoing political split. This legislation must be addressed in a Palestinian national dialogue and be reconsidered because they are a product of the political division.\(^{19}\)

\(^{18}\) On 7 November 2007, the Change and Reform Bloc of Hamas held a session for the PLC in Gaza City which was attended by PLC members in Gaza. Prior to the session, the Change and Reform Bloc members in Gaza gathered authorizations from PLC colleagues imprisoned by Israel. The other parliamentary blocs, including that of Fatah movement, considered these authorizations illegal, because they lack validation from the Basic Law or PLC bylaws. PCHR views the 7 November session and subsequent sessions as part of the outstanding political crises. PCHR believes that those sessions were legally irrelevant and were part of the crisis serving only to deepen the division and separation between the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

\(^{19}\) For more details, see «PCHR has Reservations about Regulations Adopted in the Context of Ongoing Political Fragmentation,» position paper, PCHR, 23 June 2009.
Deterioration of Judicial Authority

The political fragmentation and conflict within the PNA affected the judiciary, as two separate judicial systems have been operating in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. The government in Gaza established a separate system, which the population in the Gaza Strip is subject, in violation of the Basic Law. On the other hand, the judicial system in the West Bank applies only to those who live in the West Bank.

Palestinian civil society organizations, including PCHR, appealed to the concerned parties in Ramallah and Gaza to exclude the judiciary from the ongoing conflict. The organizations demanded that these parties take necessary steps to preserve the independence of the judiciary and to refrain from politicizing the judicial system in order to protect the interests of the populace. These warnings and pleas, regrettably, were not heeded, and the judiciary was brought into the conflict through a series of measures and decisions taken by both the government in Ramallah and the government in Gaza. The first days after the Hamas takeover of the Gaza Strip in mid-June 2007 witnessed hasty actions that resulted in the obstruction of the judicial authority’s work, especially in the Gaza Strip. The most notable development was the decision of the Chief of Police to suspend the work of the civilian police force in the Gaza Strip. Simultaneously, the Attorney General suspended his work in the Gaza Strip. The Attorney General is responsible for public prosecution and claims, investigating crimes, and filing criminal charges.

In the context of the state of emergency declared in response to Hamas’ takeover of the Gaza Strip, President Mahmoud Abbas issued a presidential decree on 6 July 2007 pertaining to the military judiciary during the state of emergency. The decree transferred the jurisdiction of civilian courts to military courts. PCHR’s position was that this decree would open the door to a militarization of Palestinian society, potentially leading to a military dictatorship and destroying civil society and the civilian judiciary under the pretext of the existing state of emergency, through: 1) The usurpation of the authority of the civil judiciary in favor of the military judiciary; 2) The usurpation of the authority of the Attorney General in favor of the military judiciary; and 3) The usurpation of the authority of judicial warranty officials in favor of all members of security services.

On 14 August 2007, Dr. Yousef al-Mansi, acting Minister of Justice of the government in Gaza, suspended the Attorney General from his work claiming that the appointment procedures for the Attorney General had not been completed. Two days later, on 16 August 2007, the Executive Force raided the Attorney General’s office in Gaza, assaulted the Attorney General and detained him and his assistants. On 29 August, the government in Gaza appointed an Assistant Attorney General and several prosecutors to fulfill the functions of the Attorney General in the Gaza Strip.

On 4 September 2007, the government in Gaza issued a decision establishing a “Higher Justice Council,” and charged the Justice Minister with nominating its members. On 11 September 2007, the government in Gaza approved the Justice Minister’s 6 nominees for the council, presided over by lawyer Abdul Ra’ouf al-Halabi. PCHR affirmed that the Gaza government’s decision was a usurpation of the authority of the Higher Judicial Council that is functioning legally and is governed by the Judicial Authority Law. PCHR stated that the council is an unconstitutional and illegal body. In addition, PCHR affirmed that the decision creates an alternate judicial body and causes a split in the Palestinian judicial authority, creating a state of judicial chaos that paralyzes the civilian judiciary and undermine the people’s interests.

The most serious development took place on 26 November 2007 when the civilian court compound in the Gaza Strip was attacked by members of the so-called “Higher Justice Council” formed by the Gaza government. They broke into the offices of the President of the Higher Judicial Council and President of the High Court. The Court Compound was thus illegally brought under the authority of the Higher Justice Council. As a result, the Higher Judicial Council announced an indefinite suspension of the work of the civilian court system in the Gaza Strip.20

In recent years, the collapse of the Palestinian judiciary has been further entrenched, and separate judiciaries exist in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. In 2010, the Attorney General appointed by the government in Gaza continued his work. In this regard, PCHR reaffirms that such an appointment violates the constitution, as article 107(1) of the Amended Basic Law of 2003 states that the Attorney General “shall be appointed by the President based on nomination by the Higher Judicial Council, and the Palestinian Legislative Council’s approval is not required.”

In the West Bank, the executive has continued to control the judiciary, undermining its dignity and independence. The military prosecution has continued to usurp the authorities of the Attorney General, and the executive has continued to disobey court rulings, especially with regard to the release of political prisoners or reopening closed charities.

20 With a full understanding of the seriousness of the situation, PCHR, in conjunction with other human rights organizations and the Palestine Bar Association, exerted extensive efforts to save the civilian court system from total collapse, to return to the situation prior to the takeover and to exclude the judicial system from the ongoing power struggle. Regrettably, these efforts failed. It was clear that the government in Gaza was not serious in reaching a solution other than its own, and was not keen to rescind its illegal decisions. In a press conference on 6 December 2007, human rights organizations demanded that the Gaza government immediately overturn this illegal measure that would destroy judicial authority. These organizations expressed full support for the decision of the Higher Judicial Council to suspend its work in the civilian courts, and for the decision of the Bar Association to suspend the work of lawyers. Human rights organizations held the government in Gaza fully responsible for the consequences of the collapse of the judicial authority, and the resulting impact on the interests of the populace.
Obstruction of General and Local Elections

The political split and conflict in the PNA impacted the progress of democratic reform in 2010; this includes the fact that general and local elections were not carried out. The year 2010 ended without holding presidential, legislative and local elections in accordance with the legal schedules, or even an agreement between the parties of the conflict on dates for holding these elections. With the end of 2009 and the beginning of 2010, the public authorization offered by the Palestinian people to their representatives expired. Elections of local council were not held either, although the legal terms of the current councils expired, as they were elected in 4 stages between December 2004 and December 2005.

Obstruction of Presidential and Legislative Elections

On 22 January 2010, the Palestinian President issued a decree postponing both presidential and legislative elections. According to article 1 of the decree “holding presidential and legislative elections as scheduled in decree #35 of 2009, which was issued on 24 September 2009, shall be postponed.” According to article 2 of the decree, “the date of holding presidential and legislative elections shall be decided by a presidential decree once the conditions are appropriate for holding them.”

It is worth noting that on 23 October 2009, Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas announced that he was issuing a decree calling for free and fair presidential and parliamentary elections in the PNA to be held on Sunday, 24 January 2010. The decree added a new dimension to the ongoing political crisis as it raised conflicting reactions and positions. The presidential team considered the decree to be constitutionally legitimate and a non-contradictory component of the reconciliation process, while Hamas and the government in Gaza considered the decree unconstitutional given that the President’s term in office ended in January 2009. Therefore, they claimed the President does not have the authority to issue such a decree prior to the finalization of a national reconciliation agreement, which would necessarily include an agreement regarding the presidential office, and the problems arising following the end of the presidential term.

Although elections are a demand of all national powers and civil society groups they are not possible without reaching a comprehensive national reconciliation that can end fragmentation and restore the dignity of the legislative, executive and judicial institutions of the Palestinian government, which have been impacted by the crisis and have become reflective of the ensuing fragmentation. PCHR further points out that holding elections requires an appropriate electoral environment, including allowing public freedoms, releasing political prisoners and lifting the ban imposed on political activities in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

By the end of 2010, the human rights situation in the PNA territories continues to deteriorate due to the ongoing political split between the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, which obstructed holding presidential and legislative elections agreed between the two parties of the crisis. The two parties did not demonstrate any signs of serious willingness to hold elections. According to the Palestinian law, the Palestinian President must call for legislative elections three months prior to holding them.
Appointments Instead of Elections in Local Councils

The lack of elections of local councils has constituted another setback in the progress of democratic reform in the PNA. By the end of 2010, the PNA had failed to organize elections for local councils, whose term in office had expired. The fourth stage of elections of local councils took place in December 2005, while elections have never been organized for 59 local councils in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, including those of major cities, elections of those councils were supposed to be held during a fifth stage of elections.

Instead of holding elections, in 2010, the two governments in Ramallah and Gaza continued to appoint local councils. In Gaza, the government appointed local councils for major towns, such as for Rafah on 8 November and for Deir al-Balah in mid-2010. In the West Bank, the PNA continued to appoint local councils in areas where elections had not been held, and replaced some local councils with new councils politically affiliated with the government, in violation of the law.

In its weekly session held on 08 February 2010, the Cabinet of the Palestinian Government in Ramallah called for elections in all local councils in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip on 17 July 2010. On 25 April 2010, the Cabinet issued decision #02/46/13, stating: 1) Preparations for holding elections of local councils in the West Bank on 17 July 2010 shall continue; 2) Elections of local councils in the Gaza Strip shall be postponed until the Central Elections Commission (CEC) is able to fulfill the necessary administrative and technical requirements for holding them according to the law; 3) Instructing the CEC to continue its work and make necessary preparations for holding the elections of local councils in the Gaza Strip according to the law.

In its session held on 10 June 2010, the Council of Ministers in Ramallah issued decision (#01/52A/M.O./S.F) of 2010 annulling two previous decisions it had issued – (#01/36/13/M.O./S.F) of 2010 concerning elections of local councils and (#02/46/13/M.O./S.F) concerning the timing of elections of local councils – and declared that a new date for elections would be decided later.

PCHR welcomed the decision taken by the Palestinian government in the West Bank to cancel local elections, which were scheduled to be held in the West Bank on 17 July 2010. In spite of the information available to PCHR about the motives that led to this decision, particularly the differences among candidates of Fatah movement, PCHR believed that the cancellation of local elections respond principally to increasing demands to provide an atmosphere necessary to ensure fair elections that reflect the electorate’s will, especially ending the current state of political fragmentation and reaching a national agreement on the whole electoral process.

On 13 December 2010, the Palestinian Supreme Court of Justice annulled the decision taken by the Palestinian government in the West Bank to postpone the elections which were scheduled to be held in July 2010. This decision came in response to an appeal filed by leftist and democratic electoral blocs; Ramallah for All in Ramallah and Watan Bloc in Tulkarm.

PCHR emphasizes its opposition to holding local elections in the PNA territories as long as the atmosphere is inappropriate, especially under the ongoing political division and the lack of a national agreement on the issue of elections as a whole, which raise doubts about the possibility of holding free and fair elections that can reflect the electorate’s will.

21 PCHR criticized holding local elections under the ongoing political division, the deterioration of the human rights situation and public freedoms and the lack of appropriate conditions to hold free and fair elections. See PCHR’s position paper issued on 18 February 2010.

Violation of the Right to Freedom of Opinion and Expression

In 2010, violations of the right to freedom of expression and assaults on freedom of the press escalated in an unprecedented manner. The two parties of the intra-Palestinian conflict, the two governments in Ramallah and Gaza, and their executive services perpetrated serious violations of this right in their respective areas of control. Violations of this rights included arresting, detaining and summoning journalists and other people on the ground for their opinions and expressions, storming or closing media institutions, obstruction of the work of journalists, beating and humiliating journalists and other violations. Palestine Television, its reporters and correspondents as well as al-Hayat al-Jadeeda newspaper were prevented from working in the Gaza Strip, and al-Aqsa Television and its reporters, Palestine and al-Resala newspapers were prevented from working in the West Bank.

In the Gaza Strip, the most significant violations of this right were as follows:

- On 2 January, a number of students of Hayel Abdul Hamid Secondary School in Beit Hanoun received a summons issued by the police investigation bureau on the ground of distributing leaflets issued by Fatah movement at school on the 45th anniversary of the establishment of Fatah movement. The students aged 16 were interrogated about the source of the leaflets and a number of them were violently beaten. As a result, a student sustained a fracture to the right hand and bruises throughout the body, and another one sustained bruises throughout the body.

- On 27 April 2010, after the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP) issued a press release condemning the performance of the government and security services in the Gaza Strip, the police and security services in Gaza detained many PFLP’s members in Khan Yunis, Gaza City and Jabalya. According to PCHR’ documentation, on Tuesday, 27 April 2010, the police detained 15 members of the PFLP, including 11 from al-Shati’ refugee camp and four from Tal el-Hawa. The detainees were transported to al-Shati’ and Ansar police stations, where they were interrogated regarding the press release. During the interrogations these individuals were subjected to ill-treatment. In Jabalya refugee camp, at approximately 01:30 on the following day, the police detained two members of the PFLP while they were at the entrance of the market in the camp. They were interrogated regarding the source of the press release. In Khan Yunis, members of the police and the Internal Security Service tried to break into the PFLP’s office located in the center of Khan Yunis, and arrested a PFLP member. The detainees were later released following the intervention of national figures.

- On 21 June, Nasser Fo’ad Abu Foul, 23, Correspondent of Meelad News Agency and the Palestinian Network for Press and Media, went to the office of the ISS at Abu Khadra compound in the center of Gaza City, after receiving a summons. Abu Foul was questioned by ISS members regarding his work as a journalist. He was then taken by the ISS to a photography shop in Sheikh Radwan neighborhood and to his cousin’s house. There, the ISS force confiscated two computers that Abu Foul uses for his work, and he was then returned to the ISS office. At approximately 13:00 on the same day, after his press and ID cards were confiscated, Abu Foul was released.

- On 7 July, the security force of the Ministry of Interior in the government in Gaza stationed near Beit Hanoun (Erez) crossing in the northern Gaza Strip prevented sales representatives of the three daily newspapers published in the West Bank (al-Quds, al-Ayyam and al-Hayat al-Jadeeda) from receiving copies of the newspaper to sell them in the Gaza Strip, after Israeli forces allowed these newspaper into the Gaza Strip. When the sales representatives contacted the Ministry of Interior in Gaza, they were informed that the three newspapers would be denied access to the Gaza Strip as long as the government in Ramallah continues to prevent the publication and distribution of Palestinian and al-Resala newspapers, which are issued in the Gaza Strip, in the West Bank.

- On 4 August, Ahmed Mousa Fayadh, 36, Correspondent of aljazeera.net, was violently beaten by the Palestinian police in the southern Gaza Strip town of Khan Yunis, while he was reporting on a show of the Jordanian Tyour al-Janna band in the town.

- On 10 November, Dr. Ibrahim Khalil Abrash, from Gaza City, a university professor and former Minister of Culture in the government in Ramallah, received a summons to appear at the headquarters of the ISS in Abu Khadra compound on the following day. He appeared as requested and was held for an hour while an officer questioned him about his writings that are published on a number of web sites.

- On 11 November 2010, an ISS force stormed the office of PLC Member Ashraf Jom’a on the fourth floor of Qishta building in Rafah, while a documentary about the late Khalil al-Wazir (Abu Jihad), one of the most prominent leaders of Fatah movement and Palestine Liberation Organization, was being shown. ISS arrested 4 journalists who were in Jom’a’s office: Bassam Mas’oud, Ahmed Zaqqout, Ibrahim Abu Mustafa, working for Reuters, and Mohammed al-Jahjouh, working for al-Arabiya Satellite Channel. Journalist Mas’oud stated to PCHR that ISS members transported them to the ISS headquarters, where their mobile phones and camera tapes were confiscated, and they were held for an hour. Mas’oud added that the ISS members returned the confiscated equipment to them and released them following the intervention of a number of public figures.

- On 11 December 2010, about 30 young people gathered near Sharek Youth Forum, which is located in al-Shohada’ Street in the west of Gaza City, to protest against the Attorney General in Gaza’s 30 November 2010 decision to close Sharek.25 A police car arrived immediately, and policemen started dispersing the participants and confiscating their posters and banners under the pretext of not obtaining a license for holding the assembly in advance. The policemen also prevented staff of al-Jazeera International from covering the events; their equipment was confiscated and they were told to go to a nearby police station. The journalists were kept in detention until 15:15 on the same day. The detained staff members were: reporter, Nicole Johnston; cameraman, Maher Abu Touqa; producer, Sami Ziarah; and cameraman assistant, Rami Mas’oud.

- On 21 December 2010, two ISS members intercepted Hatem Sa’di Omar, who works as a correspondent for the Chinese News Agency, when he was working at Martyr Abu Yusef al-Najjar Hospital in the southern Gaza Strip town of Rafah. They confiscated Omar’s camera and mobile phone. As a result, he left the hospital. About an hour later, after making calls to officials he was able to retrieve his camera and mobile phone. Omar was covering the injuries of members of the Izziddin al-Qassam Brigades, the military wing of Hamas movement, that resulted from Israeli shelling that targeted a site of the brigades.

In the West Bank, the most significant violations of this right were:

- On 09 March 2010, a press team from Palmedia Group, comprised of journalist Mos’ab Fat’hi al-Khatib and photographer Ashraf Abu Shawish, went to the house of journalist Mustafa ‘Ali Sabti, 43, in the Ghayada neighborhood in Qalqilya, to interview him following his release from Palestinian jails. As soon as the team entered the house and started preparing for the interview, Palestinian security forces besieged the area. A security man knocked on the door and Sabri opened it. Immediately, 3 security men, one of whom was wearing civilian clothes and introduced himself as the officer of the unit, entered the house. He requested that the journalists not conduct the interview.

- On 28 March, the GIS arrested Muhannad ‘Adnan Salahat, 29, from Tallouza village north of Nablus, at al-Karama International Crossing Point when he was coming to the West Bank from Jordan. Salahat is a journalist, a documentary producer and a staff member of the Palestinian Human Rights Foundation (Monitor). He was detained for 15 days, during which he was interrogated about his work. When Salahat attempted to travel through the crossing point again, he was informed that he was banned from travel.

- On 17 July, a GIS force stormed the office of Watan Television in Ramallah, after the TV station showed video recordings of a peaceful demonstration organized by the Islamic Liberation Party (Hiz Ut Tahreer). The GIS officer requested the video tapes of the demonstration and to hand over the journalists who photographed the demonstration, but the administration refused and contacted official bodies. The GIS officers left the office after debates with the staff.

- On 03 August 2010, officials from the Customs Department and another official from the Ministry of Telecommunications and Information Technology came to the offices of Nablus TV and demanded that the staff close the office and stop broadcasting. Staff members of the TV channel immediately stopped the broadcast and the Director of Nablus TV requested the official document ordering the closure of the channel. He was told that they did not have a document with them. After a debate between the two sides, officials of the Customs Department left the offices.

- On 25 August 2010, a number of al-Haq’s staff members went outside their office because they heard noise coming from the main street in Ramallah. They had information that GIS members were attempting to stop an assembly of political and civil society organizations which was scheduled in the hall of the Protestant Church opposite al-Haq offices. The assembly was supposed to discuss positions towards direct negotiations between PNA and the government of Israel. Wissam Ahmed, 33, Program Officer at al-Haq, took a video camera and went to the street to film the event, but he was beaten by a person in civilian clothes. Later, it was found out that this person was a GIS member. The camera was taken from Ahmed and thrown onto the ground. After Ahmed had managed to get his camera back, he asked why he was prevented from filming the event. In response, more than 10 GIS members surrounded him and beat him on the head and the neck. They took his camera and pushed him away. Mrs. Nina Ata Allah, Head of the Observation and Documentation Department at al-Haq, who intervened to stop the GIS attack was also attacked. A GIS member stepped on her feet. Her feet were injured as a result and she was transferred to the hospital of the Palestinian Red Crescent Society in Ramallah for treatment.

- On 27 August 2010, dozens of Palestinian policemen, wearing civilian clothes and some of them carrying guns, entered Dura mosque in the center of Dura near Hebron and spread out among the worshipers. Four policemen moved towards PLC Member Nayef al-Rjoub and requested him to stop the Friday sermon. Policemen clashed with the supporters of PLC Member Nayef al-Rjoub and the other worshipers. In the meantime, a heavily armed police force broke into the mosque, and the masked policemen started beating al-Rjoub’s supporters and those who resisted them with clubs. Al-Rjoub and many worshipers left the mosque heading to Hanina Street in the south of the town to “Mojahed” mosque, which is 400 meters away from the Dura mosque. After they had entered the mosque, the police force followed them to prevent al-Rjoub from delivering a sermon, and cut off the loudspeakers’ cables.27

- On 19 September, the GIS in Bethlehem arrested Mamdouh Mahmoud Hamamra, Correspondent of al-Quds Satellite Channel, from Housan village near Bethlehem. Hamamra was transferred to the public prosecutor’s office, and he was accused vilifying, disparaging and insulting Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas through publishing a disgraceful photo of the Palestinian President on his Facebook page.

- On 3 October, the PSS in Tulkarm arrested Saleem Ahmed Tayeh, 47, Correspondent of Quds Net News Agency, after searching his house and confiscating his computer and some documents related to his work. During his detention, Tayeh was interrogated about his work and about interviews he made with members of Hamas.

- On 21 December 2010, GIS forces broke into the main office of Pal Media Agency in the center of Hebron. The force members checked the IDs of persons in the office. They asked Akram As‘ad al-Natshah and Mahmoud Mohammed Hamamrah, who work for al-Quds TV, to accompany them after showing them an arrest warrant issued by the Attorney General. Before leaving, the force members searched the offices of al-Natshah and Hamamrah and confiscated their laptops, mobile phones, some documents and CDs. The two journalists were questioned at the GIS headquarters in Hebron regarding a press release on political arrests in the West Bank and an interview performed by al-Quds TV with the mother of one of those detained in the security services’ prisons in the West Bank. On 22 December 2010, the journalists were transported to the Attorney General’s office, where they were accused of “incitement.” They were released in the afternoon on a bail of 500 JD, their equipment and documents remained confiscated.

Violations of the Right to Peaceful Assembly

In 2010, violations of the right to peaceful assembly were reported. The majority of which were carried out against activists of Fatah movement in the Gaza Strip and activists of the Hamas movement in the West Bank, which reflects the political fragmentation within the PNA. The two governments in Gaza and Ramallah, through their security services, imposed severe restrictions on the right to peaceful assembly, which is ensured by the Palestinian Basic Law, the Public Meetings Law of 1998 and international human rights instruments. Such measures have created self-restraint among political parties, preventing them from organizing activities in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank. While the two governments displayed differences in the majority of their decisions, they employed the same illegal measures for curbing peaceful assembly of the political opposition, including the Executive Bill of the Public Meetings Law. These measures went beyond their scope and affected private meetings, which do not fall under the category of public meetings that require a notification of competent official bodies, including colloquia, parties or conferences that were to be held in closed locations.

The most significant violations of the right to peaceful assembly in the Gaza Strip were as follows:

- On 29 January, the Palestinian police violently beat a number of participants at a festival titled “Loyalty to the Wise Man” that was organized in the central Gaza Strip to commemorate the second anniversary of the death of George Habash, the late leader of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, after they had left the areas. Seven persons sustained bruises.

- On 24 May, the Palestinian police banned the organization of a peaceful sit-in by the Palestinian NGOs Network near a summer games camp of UNRWA in Sheikh ‘Ejlin area in the west of Gaza City, intended to condemn the attack on the camp on 23 May 2010.28

- On 13 July 2010, members of the security forces numbering in the dozens, including some members in civilian clothes, deployed throughout the al-Maqqousi yard near al-Maqqousi apartment buildings in the north of Gaza City, where Hizb Ut Tahrir was planning to organize a ceremony to commemorate the 89th Anniversary of the Demolition of the State of Islam. Members of the security services used clubs to disperse members and supporters of Hizb Ut Tahrir who were in the area and prevented civilians from accessing the area. They opened fire into the air to disperse the civilians. Riham Rabi’ Abu Marasa, 10, was wounded by a bullet in the chest when she on a balcony in her house overlooking the scene. Abu Marasa was transferred to al-Shifa Hospital in Gaza City where she was admitted to the intensive care unit because her wounds were serious. In addition, a number of the supporters of Hizb Ut Tahrir sustained bruises from the beatings they received by the members of the security forces. Fifteen other supporters were arrested and transferred to unknown destinations. They were later released. According to information made available to PCHR by the Media Office of Hizb Ut Tahrir, on 09 June 2010, Hizb Ut Tahrir sent a notice to the Chief of the Police in the Gaza Strip informing him of their intention to organize the ceremony. Later, Hizb Ut Tahrir received a phone call from an officer from the Office of the Chief of the Police informing them that their application had been approved.

- On 10 August 2010, the PFLP organized a sit-in in the Unknown Soldier Square in the center of Gaza City, to protest the continued electricity crisis in the Gaza Strip. There were approximately 500 participants, including leaders and members of the PFLP in Gaza. The participants held signs calling upon the governments in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank to find a solution for the crisis affecting the population of the Gaza Strip. At approximately 20:00, the Palestinian police arrived and requested that the participants leave the area and end the sit-in, claiming that the sit-in was not licensed by the police. The PFLP members refused to leave the area and insisted on continuing their activities according to the program prepared in advance. However, the Palestinian police called backup, fired into the air and attacked dozens of participants with the butts of their guns and clubs. Many of the participants were transported to hospitals for medical treatment.

- On 6 November 2010, the National Action Commission submitted an application to the Office of the Police Chief in the Gaza Strip, Brigadier Javmal al-Jarrah, to obtain a license in order to hold a celebration marking the sixth anniversary of the death of the late Palestinian President, Yasser Arafat (Abu 'Ammar), in al-Katiba square, in the west of Gaza City, set for Thursday 11 November 2010. However, they received a phone call from the Police Operations’ Department on 9 November 2010, informing them that they had not been granted a license to hold the celebration without giving any clear reason.

Banning Private Meetings That Do Not Need Permission According to Public Meetings Law

- On 4 January, the General Union of Palestinian Women organized a celebration on the anniversary of the Palestinian revolution in al-Sammak Restaurant at the Gaza beach. Four members of the ISS wearing civilian clothes arrived at the restaurant and requested that the women stop the celebration, but they refused. The four security officers sat in the restaurant and wrote down notes. When the celebration ended, the security officers arrested the director of the restaurant, Mo'in Abu al-Khair. He was taken to the nearby Ansar security compound, where he was questioned about hosting the celebration. He was forced to sign an oath not to host celebrations in the restaurant without permission, his identity card and mobile phone were confiscated and he was then released.

- On 22 March, the Palestinian police prevented the organization of a graduation ceremony for students of the College of Physical Education of al-Aqsa University in al-Hilu International Hotel in the north of Gaza City. A police force arrived at the hotel, while students were preparing for the ceremony. Police officers ordered those who were in the hotel to leave within 10 minutes. They also produced an order preventing the organization of the ceremony, claiming that it was unlicensed.

- On 12 April, PCHR apologized for not organizing activities which were planned to commemorate Palestinian Prisoners Day because of measures and restrictions imposed by the Ministry of Interior in the Gaza Strip. PCHR stated in a press release issued on that day that: "As part of PCHR’s preparations to organize these activities, PCHR’s Public Relations Officer in Khan Yunis, Mr. Abdul Halim Abu Samra, wanted to book the hall of the Palestinian Red Crescent Society (PRCS) and make other necessary preparations. However, PCHR was surprised by the PRCS’s refusal to book the hall to PCHR without official permission from security services to organize the planned seminar... On 11 April 2010, Mr. Sharif Abu Nassar, a PCHR lawyer, headed to the office of Ali al-Qedra, the chief of police in Khan Yunis, and debated the legality of the decision. Abu Nassar told the Chief of Police that this decision is in violation of the Public Meetings Law and of the Constitution. He explained that the hall is a closed location and that the law does not require even a notification in this case. Al-Qedra insisted that PCHR get permission in accordance with the decision of the Ministry of Interior in this regard.30

- On 24 April 2010, a force of the Palestinian police broke into Rashad al-Shawa Cultural Center in Gaza, where a show was taking place with hundreds of people in attendance. The show was organized by “B Boy Gaza,” a local band which includes a number of young people. The policemen cancelled the show, expelled the audience and arrested six of the show’s organizers. The detainees were taken to al-Abbas police station in the center of Gaza City. The policemen confiscated the videotapes and cameras that were used in the show. According to the testimony of one of the organizers, the police forced two of those arrested to sign an oath not to organize shows without obtaining permits from the Palestinian police. PCHR was informed that all of the arrested persons were released.

- On 24 May, Mr. Jamil Sarhan, Director of the Gaza Strip Program for the International Commission for Human Rights, received a phone call from a person who identified himself as a member of the ISS. The caller asked Sarhan to cancel a workshop titled “The Reality of Rights and Freedoms—a Review of ICHR’s Report for 2009,” which was scheduled to be organized at 11:00 in Grand Palace Hotel, claiming that ICHR had not obtained a license from the Ministry of Interior. Earlier, at approximately 10:30, the administration of the Grand Palace Hotel received a phone call with the same message to cancel the workshop, explaining that failure to do so, would result in the hotel being held accountable.

- On 7 September, the Palestinian police broke into al-Sammak Restaurant in the west of Gaza City, where a cultural activity of the Cinema Club was being conducted. They stopped the activity and ordered the attendants to leave the place, although the organizer informed them that their activity was licensed by official bodies.

The most significant violations of the right to peaceful assembly in the West Bank were as follows:

- On 10 July 2010, PSS imposed tight restrictions and arrested a number of civilians in Hebron in the south of the West Bank, in order to prevent the organization of a lecture titled “the 89th Anniversary of the Demolition of the State of Islam.” Hizb Ut Tahrir invited civilians to attend the lecture in the Omari Mosque in Ethna village, west of Hebron. Members of the security forces used clubs to disperse the civilians who were on their way to the Mosque or to their nearby houses. A number of these civilians sustained bruises throughout their bodies. The security members also fired into the air while they were trying to arrest civilians who were leaving the Mosque. According to data collected by PCHR, the security services arrested 19 civilians who were transferred to police stations. The majority of the arrested civilians were released after they signed pledges requiring them not to participate in political activities or demonstrations organized without prior permission.

- On 25 August, Palestinian police stopped an assembly of political and civil society organizations which was scheduled to be held in the hall of the Protestant Church in Ramallah. The assembly was supposed to discuss the various positions towards direct negotiations between the PNA and the government of Israel. The police arrested one of the organizers of the assembly. In the same context, dozens of persons carrying portraits of Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas and wireless communication devices broke into the hall cheering for Fatah movement. They also accused the participants of conspiring against the PNA and of collaborating with Syrian and Iran. The participants were forced to leave the hall. They headed towards Rukab Street in the center of Ramallah. On their way, two civilian vehicles, one of which had a governmental plate, attempted to disrupt the gathering. Police officers then intervened and stopped the gathering.

- Security services banned the organization of activities of Hamas, including celebration of the anniversary of its establishment on 14 December and any other peaceful assemblies.
Violation of the Right to Freedom of Association

In 2010, the right to freedom of association continued to be systematically violated by the two governments in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, in spite of their repeated claims of maintaining public liberties. Such violations were perpetrated allegedly to maintain the rule of law or combat corruption. But the goal in the two cases is apparent; to control civil society organizations and push them into the ongoing political conflict between the two parties of the crisis in Gaza and Ramallah.

The two parties of the conflict attempted to use relevant laws for their own interests to attack or control organizations, through allegations of moral suspicions, administrative or financial corruption, incomplete legal procedures and other allegations. In the few instances where the organizations were able to gain a legal remedy from the judiciary, the two parties ignored and did not comply to judicial rulings.

Additionally, in 2010, other violations of the right to freedom of association were perpetrated by unofficial bodies in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, including robbery and gunfire on institutions.

Commonly, organizations close to or affiliated to Hamas were attacked in the West Bank, and those close or affiliated to Fatah movement were attacked in the Gaza Strip.

In the Gaza Strip, in 2010, violations of the right to freedom of association escalated, especially against organizations close to Fatah movement. PCHR documented dozens of assaults against civil society organizations, the most notable forms of which were: 1) Official incitement against civil society organizations; 2) Closure of civil society organizations; 3) Dissolution of civil society organizations; 4) Interference into the boards of organizations; 5) Summoning persons in charge of the management of organizations; 6) Storming offices of organizations by security services. The most serious assault in 2010 was the closure of Sharek Youth Forum through a decision issued by the Attorney General in Gaza in late November. This decision came after a series of abuses and attacks perpetrated against this organization since May 2010; beginning with the main office and branch offices being stormed and followed by interrogations of its staff by security services, including the ISS. Following the decision to close Sharek Youth Forum, PCHR communicated quietly and from a legal perspective with all relevant parties. It held meetings with a number of ministers, during those meetings our position was clear, that authorities have the right to take appropriate legal procedures against those who violate the law but should do so without abusing the organization. PCHR repeatedly attempted to meet with the Attorney General in Gaza, but these attempts failed because the latter was allegedly busy. In the same context, PCHR attempted to hold meetings with security officials to settle the issue, but those attempts failed. Therefore, PCHR sent a memorandum to the Prime Minister in Gaza, Isma’il Haniya. In the memorandum, PCHR expressed strong reservations regarding the Attorney General’s decision to close Sharek Youth Forum, and the refusal of security forces that implemented the decision to provide a copy of the decision to the Forum’s staff. The decision was only announced in the media. Some media reported that the Attorney General directed accusations against 4 persons, including the executive director of the organization, in violation of the Code of Penal Procedures #3 of 2006, and the report was then changed. PCHR also explained its legal position towards the closure of Sharek Youth Forum.31

In 2010, the Minister of Interior in the government in Gaza issued a number of administrative decisions imposing additional restrictions on the practice of the right to freedom of association. The first decision was issued on 11 February 2010, banning public employees from working in charities and NGOs while off-duty, even if it was voluntary and without wages. Article 1 of the decision stated: “All public employees shall be banned from being employed in another job with or without a wage, during or after working hours, unless they get prior permission by their bosses.” Article 2 of the decision stated: “All public and private institutions, charities, NGOs, shops, technical offices and others shall not employ any public employee without prior permission of the director of his/her public department, whether temporarily or permanently. Violation of this prohibition shall be considered a breach of the foundations of licensing societies and institution.” Article 3 of the decision read: “Any public employee who violates this decision shall be subjected to legal responsibility and punishment according to the law.”

On 11 July 2010, the Minister of Interior in Gaza, issued Decision no. 48/2010 Concerning Civilians Abstaining from Joining Their Jobs in the Civil Service Sector. Article 1 of the Decision stipulated that: “All civil employees abstaining from joining their jobs in the civil service sector shall be prohibited from being affiliated to general assemblies of charities and civil society organizations, or joining these organizations as employees or as members of their boards of directors.” Article 2 of the same Decision provided that: “The board of directors of any of the abovementioned organizations shall not be approved if it includes a member who is an employee abstaining from joining his/her job in the civil service sector.”

PCHR considers the decision a violation of the Basic Law, which guarantees the right of civilians, including public sector employees, to form associations and unions. PCHR demanded that the Minister of Interior annul this decision, broaden the scope of liberties of civil society organizations and take necessary measures to reinforce the independence of these organizations.32

On the other side, violations of the right to freedom of association continued in the West Bank. Restrictions imposed on this right remained effective, including the presidential decree issued by the Palestinian President following the incidents of June 2007, which gives the Minister of Interior “the power to review all licenses of organizations and institutions issued by the Ministry of Interior or any other governmental bodies.” These measures were a precursor to the dissolution of legally licensed civil society organizations or to restrict their work and role in the context of the state of emergency declared in the oPt. The decision to dissolve 103 societies close to Hamas remained effective, and the government in Ramallah did not reconsider the decision in spite of the demands of civil society organizations.

In 2010, the Ministry of Interior refused to register any new society affiliated or close to Hamas under the pretext of security. In a statement to Watan Media Center on 11 July 2010, Ms. Fadwa al-Sha’er, Director General of Organizations Department in the Ministry of Interior, said that “if there are security reasons to abstain from licensing NGOs, the Ministry will not hesitate to uphold such abstention.” So, the restrictions imposed on the right to freedom of association were not lifted.

Continued Application of the Death Penalty

In 2010, Palestinian courts issued 12 death sentences, all in the Gaza Strip. Military courts issued 9 of these sentences, while the remaining three were issued by civil courts. Thus, the number of death sentences issued by Palestinian courts since the establishment of the Palestinian National Authority has mounted to 112; 89 in the Gaza Strip and 23 in the West Bank.

Moreover, the execution of death sentences increased dramatically in 2010 in comparison to previous years with 5 death sentences being carried out. On 15 April, the Ministry of Interior carried out two death sentences by firing squad against Nasser Salam Abu Fraih, 35, from Jabalya, and Mohammed Ibrahim al-Sabe', 36, from Rafah. On 18 May, death sentences were carried out by hanging 3 men from Gaza City: Mutreb Harb al-Shoubaki, 35; Rami Mohammed Juha, 25; and ‘Aamer Saber Jundiya, 33.

PCHR expresses its grave concern regarding this significant increase in the number of death sentences issued or carried out, especially in the Gaza Strip. PCHR emphasizes that the Palestinian political division has led to an unprecedented escalation in the application of this cruel, inhuman and degrading punishment. PCHR reiterates that increasing calls by officials of the government in Gaza and senior leaders of Hamas to execute death sentences by finding ways that allow the government to execute such sentences are illegal. The Palestinian Basic Law stipulates that ratification of death sentences is an exclusive right of the President of the Palestinian National Authority according to the Code of Penal Procedures #3 of 2001, and that the execution of death sentences without the President’s ratification is illegal and unconstitutional. In this context, PCHR expresses its satisfaction that the Palestinian President has not ratified any of these sentences and hopes that his abstention from ratification will be a step towards the abolishment of the death penalty.

PCHR is extremely concerned over the continued application of the death penalty in PNA controlled areas, and calls for the abolishment of this cruel, inhuman and degrading punishment. The death penalty violates the right to life and international human rights instruments, especially the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1948), the Covenant of Civil and Political Rights (1966), and the UN Convention against Torture (1984). PCHR reiterates that abolishing the death penalty does imply leniency towards dangerous criminals, who must be subjected to punishments that act as a deterrent, but also maintain human dignity. PCHR calls upon the PNA to review all legislation relative to the death penalty, especially Law No. 74 (1936) that remains effective in the Gaza Strip, and the Jordanian Penal Code No. 16 (1960) that remains effective in the West Bank and to enact a unified penal code that conforms to the spirit of international human rights instruments.

Impacts of Political Division on Economic and Social Rights in the Gaza Strip

The political crisis in the PNA and the conflict between the two Palestinian governments in Gaza and Ramallah have negatively impacted the already deteriorated economic and social conditions of the Palestinian population in the Gaza Strip. Measures taken by the two governments, including the cutting of salaries of thousands of public services employees, the employment of new individuals in violation of the Civil Service Law, and the dismissal, marginalization and substitution of hundreds of employees in the public service in the Gaza Strip, accompanied by the total closure imposed by Israel on the Gaza Strip, have left a severe impact on the living conditions of employees and undermined their ability to provide means of subsistence for themselves and their families. Additionally, expansive measures taken by the two governments against dozens of charities and NGOs in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip have impacted the rights of thousands of individuals who used to benefit from their services. The two governments in Ramallah and Gaza closed dozens of charities and NGOs in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip under various pretexts, preventing them from providing health, agricultural, relief and development services. Workers in the affected charities and NGOs are now unemployed.

In 2010, all services provided to the population of the Gaza Strip were impacted by the ongoing political and power conflict between the two governments in Ramallah and Gaza.

Health conditions in the Gaza Strip deteriorated due to the political conflict because all public health facilities in the Gaza Strip suffered from acute shortages of medicines and medical needs. Measures taken by the Ministry of Interior in Ramallah deprived many patients, whose medical treatment was not available in the Gaza Strip, from traveling abroad by refusing to renew their passports or allowing the issuance of passports in Gaza. Consequently, they were forced to search for other alternatives, such as service offices in Gaza, in order to renew their passport which has a much higher cost. On the other hand, the Ministry of Interior in Gaza prevented many people, especially members of Fatah movement, from traveling abroad either through Rafah International Crossing Point or Beit Hanoun (Erez) crossing, including patients who were transferred to hospitals abroad for medical treatment.

Health Conditions in the Gaza Strip

PCHR closely observed developments related to health conditions in the Gaza Strip, which continued to deteriorate. In May 2010, PCHR received a number of complaints from patients, including those suffering from chronic diseases, regarding the delay in obtaining medications or medical treatment in the Gaza Strip’s hospitals due to the lack of medical supplies needed for their treatment. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, such delays result of the General Directorate of Pharmacy in Ramallah not supplying needed medicines regularly. Medical consignments delivered to the Gaza Strip constituted less than 47% of the requests approved by the Directorate General of Pharmacy in Ramallah in 2009 and 50% in 2008 respectively. By mid-May 2010, no medications or medical consignments were delivered to the Gaza Strip. Such medications and medical supplies consignments constituted only 12% and 18% of those approved by the directorate in 2009 and 2008 respectively.

On 18 May 2010, the Directorate General of Pharmacy at the Ministry of Health in the Gaza Strip announced that 110 types of medications and 123 types of medical supplies had run out. It further added that an additional 76 types of medications and 60 types of medical supplies are expected to run out within the next three months. The General Directorate stated that the shortage of medications and medical supplies has led to a health crisis, which threatens the lives of thousands of patients, particularly those suffering from chronic diseases. The health services offered to 1.5 million civilians in the Gaza Strip has been deteriorating for some time, especially following the vast destruction of health facilities during the latest Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip and the ongoing closure that prevents the import of materials needed for reconstruction of those facilities and prevents the supply of medical consignments to the Gaza Strip's hospitals and health centers.

PCHR closely observed health conditions and the acute shortage of many medications and medical supplies.33

PCHR expressed its grave concern regarding the obstruction of the supply of medications and medical supplies consignments to public health facilities in the Gaza Strip. This deficiency places the populations’ right to enjoy the highest levels of physical and mental care at risk, including appropriate medical care at public health facilities and the delivery of medication to patients, especially to those who suffer from chronic diseases and need medications regularly. PCHR believed that stopping and/or hindering the regular supply of medications and medical supplies to the warehouses of the Ministry of Health in the Gaza Strip constitutes a violation of the Palestinians’ right to access to medical services. Thus, it is a clear violation of the legal obligations of the Ministry of Health in Ramallah regarding respecting, protecting and promoting the right to health. PCHR is aware that the international community contributes to the annual budget of the Palestinian Authority, including all the medications and medical supplies approved in the budget of the Ministry of Health. PCHR called for prompt intervention by the Palestinian President to ensure that the Ministry of Health in Ramallah supplies all consignments of medications and medical supplies needed at health facilitates in the Gaza Strip.

Restrictions on Freedom of Movement in the Gaza Strip and Obstruction of Traveling Abroad

In 2010, many Palestinian civilians from the Gaza Strip suffered from measures taken by both Palestinian governments, which violated their right to freedom of movement, including traveling from the Gaza Strip to the West Bank or abroad. These measures placed Palestinian civilians directly into the ongoing political conflict between the two governments. Measures taken by the Ministry of Interior in Ramallah deprived many Gazans, including patients whose medical treatment is not available in the Gaza Strip, from traveling abroad as the Ministry refused to renew their passports nor did it allow the Ministry of Interior in Gaza to issue new passports. On the other hand, the government in Gaza continued to prevent many Palestinians, including those affiliated to Fatah movement, from traveling to the West Bank or abroad under the pretext of security.

In 2010, the Ministry of Interior in Gaza cancelled procedures related to the registration of travelers in the Traveling Registration Office in Abu Khadra governmental compound in Gaza City. The offices was established on 25 November 2009 allegedly to facilitate the travel of the population of the Gaza Strip abroad. At the time, the Ministry required those who wished to travel abroad to go to the above office to get a permit three days prior to the actual time of traveling. However, the travel...

of dozens of employees of the Palestinian Authority, who had abstained from assuming the responsibilities of their jobs, was restricted and obstructed.

PCHR followed a number of cases, in which the travel of patients was obstructed. PCHR viewed such restrictions as a violation of the right to freedom of movement and called for lifting them. PCHR intervened and was able to obtain approvals for the travel of patients to Egypt through Rafah International Crossing Point.

On the other hand, PCHR condemned the discriminatory policy adopted by the Palestinian Ministry of Interior in Ramallah with regard to issuing passports to Palestinians of the Gaza Strip and the intervention by the GIS. PCHR demanded the Ministry of Interior comply with Palestinian law, to not discriminate among Palestinians based on political affiliation and to not draw Palestinian civilians into the ongoing fragmentation.

Upon the receipt by PCHR of a number of complaints from Palestinians in Gaza who claimed that the Ministry of Interior in Ramallah refused to issue them passports because of their political affiliation (affiliates with the Hamas movement), on 23 June 2010, the PCHR coordinator in the West Bank traveled to the Ministry of Interior in Ramallah in an attempt to verify these claims and to understand the reasons why passports were not issued in the cases of the Palestinians in question.34

Ahmed Safi, Director-General of the Directorate-General of Passports in the Palestinian government in Ramallah, stated that the Palestinian Ministry of Interior recognizes every Palestinian’s right to obtain a passport, regardless of his/her political affiliation. Mr. Safi explained the cases in which passports cannot be issued, including: following a decision made by the Court, the Attorney General or the police, or if the competent bodies (the security department) in the Ministry of Interior have doubts regarding information inserted in the passport application. Mr. Safi stated that decisions made by courts and by the Attorney General relate to criminal cases only. Mr. Safi demanded that the PCHR coordinator in the West Bank provide him with a list of Palestinians who were denied passports by the Ministry of Interior.

On 27 June 2010, the PCHR coordinator traveled to the office of the Director-General of the Directorate-General of Passports and delivered to him a list of six Palestinians who were denied passports. Mr. Safi checked the names in his computer and told the PCHR coordinator that the information of the persons in the list was not inserted in the records of the Ministry of Interior, which means, according to Mr. Safi, that their applications were not delivered to the Ministry. The PCHR coordinator continued to follow up the issue with other officials.

On 06 July 2010, the PCHR coordinator submitted an application, in his personal and professional capacity and in accordance with a power-of-attorney granted to him by a Palestinian civilian, to the GIS office in the Ministry of Interior in Ramallah. On 11 July, the PCHR coordinator went to check with GIS, but was told that the application was rejected without being offered an explanation. GIS officers said: “The majority of countries in the world, including the United States, require citizens applying for passports to submit certificates of good conduct.” PCHR discovered that it is the second time that the application of this applicant was rejected.

On 11 July 2010, the PCHR coordinator submitted applications, in his personal and professional capacity and in accordance with powers-of-attorney granted to him by seven Palestinians, to the GIS office in the Ministry of Interior in Ramallah. On 13 July, the PCHR coordinator went to check with GIS, but he was told that four of the submitted applications were rejected and the other three applications were accepted. Thus, in total, five out of eight applications were rejected. The following day, the PCHR coordinator traveled to the Gaza Passports Department in the Ministry of Interior in Ramallah to deliver the three approved applications, but the relevant officer referred him to the Military Intelligence Service because two of the approved applicants are governmental employees.

On 13 July 2010, the PCHR coordinator traveled to the office of His Excellency the Undersecretary of the Ministry of Interior and explained to him the previous events and gave him copies of the applications that he submitted to the GIS. Mr. ‘Alawi promised to call the PCHR coordinator either that afternoon or the following morning. On 14 July, the PCHR coordinator traveled to the office of Mr. ‘Alawi, but he was not able to meet with him because Mr. ‘Alawi was busy with internal meetings. Later that day at approximately 11:00, the PCHR coordinator traveled again to the office of Mr. ‘Alawi, and presented him with copies of the applications that were delivered to him the previous day. Mr. ‘Alawi marked the applications with “to be finished upon the approval of the Minister.” On the same day, the PCHR coordinator submitted the five applications which were rejected earlier. However, on 27 July 2010, the PCHR coordinator was told that the applicants were rejected because “they are not committed to legitimacy.”

PCHR notes that one of the rejected applicants is suffering from kidney failure and undergoes dialysis treatment twice a week. He has a medical report issued by the Artificial Kidney Department of Shifa Hospital explaining his condition. On 05 July 2010, he was issued a medical referral from the Specialist Medical Treatment Department in the Ministry of Health to undergo kidney transplant surgery at the Nasser Institute Hospital in Egypt.

It should be noted that on 12 July 2010, the Ministry of Interior in Ramallah issued a press release that stated: “The Palestinian passport is a natural right of each Palestinian. This right is guaranteed by the law after Palestinians submit documents required by the law without any other requirements. We all assume responsibility to protect this right and, at the same time, maintain the credibility and quality of passports.”

In view of its investigation of this issue, PCHR reiterated the following:

- First: although the Ministry of Interior in Ramallah daily issues more than 500 passports to Palestinians from the Gaza Strip, the process involves long and complicated procedures.

- Second: the Ministry of Interior provides many justifications for its procedures, especially background checks for Palestinians applying to get passports.

- Third: PCHR definitively discovered that GIS is the body that approves or denies the issuance of passports and that the Ministry of Interior completely adheres to the GIS's decisions.

- Fourth: the GIS did not explain the criteria for approving or denying passport applications. The GIS gave only general statements such as “the responsibility of security services for the protection of our people.” The appearance of the rejected applicants is required before the officers of the Ministry of Interior, and they require “certificates of good conduct,” and GIS attempt to justify their decisions by referring to a “Non-commitment to legitimacy.”

- Fifth: the applications which were submitted by PCHR are only an example, which is indicative of a larger pattern of discrimination. The rejection of these applications suggests the number of Palestinians who are arbitrarily denied their right to get passports in accordance with the domestic law and international human rights instruments.

In view of the above, PCHR renewed its demand to keep Palestinian civilians neutral with regard to the current political division and not to draw their interests and rights into the ongoing conflict between Fatah and Hamas movements. In this regard,
PCHR called upon the Palestinian government in Ramallah to comply with the law and to issue passports in accordance with the law and not submit to political pressure.

The Electricity Crisis in the Gaza Strip

In 2010, PCHR monitored the repercussions of daily electricity outages, which often last for long hours, on all aspects of daily life in the Gaza Strip. PCHR called on the two government in Ramallah and Gaza to maintain the interests of the civilian population, to ensure the transfer of the revenues of electricity consumption collected by Gaza Electricity Distribution Company to the Energy Authority in Ramallah and for the latter to provide the Gaza Power Plant with necessary industrial fuel in order for it to be operated. PCHR repeatedly intervened to assist in finding a solution for the electricity crisis and called on all parties to demonstrate cooperation to maintain the daily public interest and the operation of vital services, including health, education and sanitation. In 2010, the electricity crisis was further aggravated, peaking in the end of June, when the electricity generated by the Gaza Power Plant decreased to less than the half the needed amount of electricity. The operation of the plant also stopped completely twice; in April and June.

The two governments in Ramallah and Gaza each accused the other of being responsible for the electricity crisis, which impacted all aspects of daily life in the Gaza Strip, including access to water, health and education services. The electricity crisis reached the point that outages often lasted 8 hours daily and that number increased to 18 hours daily in April and June, when the operation of the Gaza Power Plant was completely stopped. The electricity crisis impacted the access of the civilian population to water in several areas.

Several agreements were concluded between the two governments in Gaza and Ramallah, under which the government in Ramallah would provide enough industrial fuel to operate the Gaza Power Plant, while the government in Gaza would transfer the revenues collected by the Gaza Electricity Distribution Company to the Energy Authority in Ramallah. However, the understanding did not continue for long and the suffering of the Palestinian civilian population continued, despite several measures taken to mitigate the effects, including the increase of amount transferred by the Gaza Electricity Distribution Company from US$ 4 million to $ 7 million, and discounting 170 NIS from the salary of each public employee in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

PCHR expressed its grave concern over continued electricity outages in the Gaza Strip, which impacted all aspects of daily life and services in the Gaza Strip. PCHR issued a number of press releases calling for keeping the electricity sector out of the political conflict, and expressing its position towards the electricity crisis and its impacts on the daily life of the Palestinian civilian population.

On 01 July 2010, PCHR issued a position paper on the electricity crisis in the Gaza Strip, in light of the complete stoppage of the operation of the Gaza Power Plant due to the lack of industrial fuel. The position paper focused on the developments of the crisis and PCHR’s views on possible the solutions.

At midnight on 25 June 2010, the Gaza Power Plant ceased operation because the industrial fuel necessary for it to produce 65 megawatts of electricity ran out. The stoppage coincided with a wave of hot weather in the Gaza Strip and seriously impacted basic services provided to 1.7 million Palestinians, including drinking water and health and sanitation services. The stoppage also caused extreme suffering to at least 36,860 students who were attending final exams for the 35 See Position Paper on Aggravation of Electricity Crisis in the Gaza Strip, PCHR, 01 July 2010.

Genera Certificate of Education (Tawjihi) beginning 12 June 2010. Electricity outages increased from 8-12 hours daily to 10-16 hours daily in most areas in the Gaza Strip. PCHR called upon both governments in Ramallah and Gaza to prioritize the interests of the population, including the transfer of part of the funds collected by the Electricity Distribution Company in Gaza to the Energy Authority in Ramallah, to ensure enough supplies of industrial fuel to operate Gaza Power Plant, in accordance with the April 2010 agreement between the two sides.

PCHR made contact with all concerned parties in Gaza and Ramallah and followed up on their positions expressed in the media. PCHR was able to obtain information and data that can serve as a basis for a solution to the crisis of electricity outages and the stoppage of Gaza Power Plant. PCHR called upon the electricity distribution company to uphold the beneficiaries’ right to obtain information on the electricity crisis, including the publication of names of people who do not pay highly accumulated fees, even though they are able to. PCHR reiterated that the government in Gaza has a duty to coordinate and cooperate with the Electricity Distribution Company in Gaza to collect accumulated debts from beneficiaries who are able to pay and have high accumulated debts, as a first step towards pressuring other beneficiaries to pay. This measure would constitute a part of a strategic solution for the chronic electricity crisis, regardless of the availability of external funding.

PCHR believes that people who pay electricity fees regularly should not bear the burden of the failure of concerned parties of the electricity crisis, as these parties must provide them with electricity supplies in all circumstances. PCHR is fully aware that the ongoing closure that has been imposed by Israeli occupation authorities for three years has created a catastrophic economic situation for thousands of families, making them unable to pay the costs of electricity supplies; thus there is a need to reconsider mechanisms of assistance to such families, in which costs of electricity supplies should be taken into consideration in order for the electricity fees be paid to the Electricity Distribution Company.

It is worth noting the Gaza Electricity Distribution Company and the Palestinian Energy Authority in Ramallah reached an understanding on 11 April 2011 with the support of representatives of Palestinian political factions and independent figures. According to the understanding, the Energy Authority in Ramallah would pay an 36 million NIS, which is the cost of industrial fuel necessary for the operation of Gaza Power Plant. On the other hand, the Gaza Electricity Distribution Company would transfer the amount it collects from beneficiaries to the Energy Authority in Ramallah after deducting operational expenditures, which would total around US$ 4 million per month.

On 09 December 2010, the Energy and Natural Resources Authority in Gaza issued a statement, in which it accused the government in Ramallah of obstructing all previous understandings, including the one that increased the transferred money by the Gaza Electricity Distribution Company to about US$ 7 million, and the agreement between Dr. Salam Fayad, Palestinian Prime Minister in Ramallah, and Dr. Ghazi Hamad, under which 170 NIS would be discounted from the salary of each public employee in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip as of September 2010. The statement indicated that the government in Ramallah only provided enough industrial fuel in November for the Gaza Power Plant to operate for one week.
Concerns over Potential Imposition of the Ruling Party’s Ideology on the Gaza Strip Society

PCHR has increasing concerns over some actions that could be viewed as attempts to impose the ideology of the ruling party on Gazan Society. In spite of an official denial by the government in Gaza of any intent to impose a social agenda and assuring statements that there is no official policy in this regard, PCHR has noticed some actions and practices that need to be explained by the government in Gaza in terms of whether they are individual actions or politically motivated. PCHR stresses the need to respect personal liberties stipulated in the law, and any measures taken by the government and its security services must be valid under the law.

PCHR had already expressed concerns over attempts to amend Palestinian codes in ways that served the political and ideological visions and goals of the Change and Reform Bloc (Hamas movement), which was demonstrated for example in amendments to the Penal Code.36

Over the subsequent period, such practices developed at various rates, and the following actions were noticed:

1) Attempts to Impose the Islamic Veil on Female Lawyers: On 09 July 2009, Counselor 'Abdul Ra'ouf al-Halabi, Chief Justice of the Higher Court of Justice and Head of the Higher Justice Council, issued a decision concerning the clothing of lawyers, which would enter into force on 01 September 2009. At that time, PCHR issued a press release, in which it stressed that that this decision constitutes a violation of the law and an unjustified intervention into lawyers’ affairs. It also undermines personal freedoms and women's rights through forcing female lawyers to wear traditional robes known as “Jilbab” and veils (Hijabs). Although the decision was later cancelled, subsequent observations indicate that many female lawyers wear the Hijab to avoid any problem or mistreatment by some administrative personnel or judges in courts.

2) Imposing restrictions on internet cafés, including termination of existing licenses by the Ministry of Local Government, restrictions on issuing new licenses, obligating the cafés not to work after 5:00 PM, and storming cafes and expelling customers.

3) The Ministry of Religious Affairs in Gaza launched a religious campaign in mid-2009 called “Virtue Campaign.” The campaign, which continued for several months, included banning men from swimming with bare chests, banning exposing women’s underwear inside and outside shops and urging women to wear the Hijab in the street.

4) Attempts to impose the Hijab on school girls by the administrations of a number of schools. Even though the government in Gaza denied that it was an official decision, the issue remained confusing and was not settled by clear instructions by the Ministry of Education warning schools against imposing the Hijab.

5) Monitoring of Restaurants and Hotels: In 2010, restrictions on major restaurants and hotels in the Gaza Strip escalated. These restrictions included instructions issued by the police command, which ordered preventing mixture between men and women, banning hookahs for women, adhering to public morals and 36 See PCHR’s position paper «PCHR has Reservations about Regulations Adopted in the Context of Ongoing Political Fragmentation», June 2009.

Islamic traditions. If restaurants and hotels did not abide to the instructions, they would be forced to pay fine and their establishments would be closed. Additionally, security services banned organizing celebrations for the New Year in such places.

6) Intervention into cultural activities and banning mixture between men and women in activities organized by cultural centers in the Gaza Strip, such as the popular Dabka (Palestinian folklore dancing).

7) Illegal and unjustified intervention by the police in the work of women's coiffeur shops administered by men in the Gaza Strip with threats to prosecute the administrators.

8) PCHR is also concerned over the uneasy security situation, which affected a number of major restaurants and hotels, such as Crazy Water Park in Gaza City and UNRWA summer games camps. Although the government in Gaza condemned such crimes and opened investigations with regard to them, the results of such investigations were not released, the perpetrators were not disclosed and no legal action was taken against them.
PART (2):

PCHR’S ACTIVITIES IN 2010
Introduction

This report reviews the human rights situation in the oPt, and highlights violations of human rights and international humanitarian law. The report also reviews PCHR’s efforts at the international and national levels to monitor and defend Palestinian human rights. In the context of its continuous activities to defend Palestinian human rights, PCHR continued its efforts to follow up a number of major issues in 2010. Before detailing such issues, we believe it is important to review some titles of publications and issues that represent PCHR’s activities over the year, the most notable of which were:

» Follow-up of the Report of the UN Fact-Finding Mission on the Gaza Conflict (the Goldstone Report)

The report of the UN Fact-Finding Mission on the Gaza Conflict, which investigated crimes committed by Israeli forces during their offensive on the Gaza Strip in the period between 27 December 2008 – 18 January 2009 was a priority on PCHR’s agenda in 2010. Over the year, PCHR made persistent and intensive efforts at the international and national levels to ensure the implementation of the recommendations included in the report. PCHR’s interest in the report was driven not only because it extensively highlights human rights violations and war crimes perpetrated by Israeli forces during their offensive on the Gaza Strip, but also because it was the first time throughout the long history of the occupation that clear and specific mechanisms were outlined to the international level for accountability for war crimes committed by Israeli war criminals against Palestinian civilians. The recommendations in the report explicitly demand the parties to the conflict to conduct internal investigations into war crimes committed during the offensive under a specified timetable. Additionally, they included that if the parties to the conflict fail to conduct such investigations in accordance with the rules if international law, the issue must be referred to UN bodies to eventually be referred to the International Criminal Court (ICC).
In this context, PCHR worked hard and in close cooperation with international, regional and national organizations, to pressure relevant bodies to refer the issue to the ICC. PCHR made these efforts fully aware of the obstacles, attempts to foil the report and keep it a hostage of political wills of certain States. Therefore, PCHR actively participated in relevant discussions and consultation at both international and national levels in order to engage in joint efforts to confront Israeli attempts to undermine the recommendations of the report.

In light of the failure of the Israeli government to conduct credible internal investigations in accordance with customary international law, international humanitarian law and international human rights law, PCHR intensified efforts at the international level to demand implementation of the recommendations of the report, and urging the international community to exert pressure to prevent delaying international criminal justice. In this context, PCHR was a leading organization in following up internal Israeli investigations according to the recommendations of the report. PCHR published a detailed report on Israeli claims regarding conducting internal investigations. The report, entitled “The Principle and Practice of Universal Jurisdiction: PCHR’s Work in the OPT,” refutes Israeli claims regarding internal investigations conducted by the Israeli government. The report is the most comprehensive written reports on the internal Israeli investigations.

Participation in UN Human Rights Council’s Sessions

PCHR intensified its efforts to implement the recommendations of the report of the UN Fact-Finding Mission on the Gaza Conflict. In this context, PCHR held meetings with diplomatic missions in the UN headquarters in Geneva to inform them of the situation and to urge Member States to implement the recommendations of the report in order to achieve justice, provide effective remedy for victims and uphold international law. PCHR was one of the leading human rights organizations that called on the UN Human Rights Council to take necessary steps to follow up the implementation of the recommendations of the Goldstone Report, and end impunity with regard to war crimes committed in Israel and Palestine.

In 2010, PCHR participated in all sessions and consultations related to the report, as PCHR has a consultative status that allows it to participate in sessions of the UN Human Rights Council. In March 2010, PCHR attended the 13th session of the UN Human Rights Council on the Goldstone Report. PCHR submitted a written intervention entitled “Genuinely Unwilling,” in which it stressed that the Israeli and Palestinian sides failed to conduct genuine investigations in accordance with international standards into the violations of the international law during the Israeli offensive in the Gaza Strip in the period of 28 December 2008 – 18 January 2009. Additionally Daragh Murray, PCHR International Legal Officer, presented two oral interventions: The first intervention was to the special session discussing the prevailing impunity system with regard to actions by Israeli forces against Palestinian civilians; and the second was on the deteriorating human rights situation in the OPT.

PCHR also participated in the 15th session of the UN Human Rights Council in September, as a part of a joint mission that included a number of international human rights organizations seeking to achieve international criminal responsibility concerning violations of international law perpetrated by Israeli forces during the offensive on the Gaza Strip. Also in September, Raji Sourani, Director of PCHR, actively participated in a special session of the UN Human Rights Council to discuss the recommendations of the

37 See the report published by PCHR on 08 April 2010, «The Principle and Practice of Universal Jurisdiction: PCHR’s Work in the OPT.»
Goldstone Report. Sourani stated that international law and the report are explicitly clear, and it is time to refer the situation to the ICC and end the impunity being granted to war criminals.

Intensified Communications with the Two Palestinian Governments in Gaza and Ramallah to Implement Recommendations of Goldstone Report

According to the recommendations of the Goldstone Report, the two Palestinian governments in Gaza and Ramallah are obligated to conduct impartial and transparent internal investigations in accordance with international standards. PCHR followed up on investigations conducted by the Palestinian sides and intensified communications with the two governments to urge them to fulfill this obligation. In this context, PCHR held meetings with official bodies and called for the establishment of a professional inquiry commission to conduct serious investigations in accordance with international standards. Nevertheless, PCHR expressed disappointment because the investigations that were conducted were below expectations in terms of impartiality and transparency.

Intensified Efforts to Prosecute Alleged Israeli War Criminals in Foreign Jurisdictions

In 2010, PCHR continued its persistent efforts to search for and prosecute Israeli political and military leaders for crimes committed against Palestinian civilians. PCHR sought to make use of all available legal means, including working through universal jurisdiction, the International Criminal Court and UN mechanisms, to ensure just remedies for victims and to combat impunity.

Accordingly, PCHR, in cooperation with a number of partner international organizations submitted some of these cases to the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court, with evidence that Israeli leaders committed international crimes during the Israeli Offensive on the Gaza Strip in the period 27 December 2008 – 18 January 2009. Between 31 May and 11 June 2010, PCHR participated in the first Review Conference of the Rome Statute held in Kampala, Uganda. PCHR stressed that the ICC was created in order to enforce international criminal law, and to ensure that those responsible for international crimes are held to account. The ongoing situation in the oPt demands that crimes committed must brought before the Court. The international community's continued granting of impunity to Israel denies victims’ rights, undermines international justice and is in conflict with the object and purpose of the ICC. PCHR further expressed regret regarding amendments by a number of States to their universal jurisdiction legislation. This was the case in the United Kingdom and Spain through the Spanish Supreme Court on 13 April to close investigation into the attack on al-Daraj neighborhood in July 2002.

In light of these developments, PCHR, in cooperation with a number of partner organizations, human rights activists and prominent international figures, made efforts to establish a unified front opposing such measures. In this context, PCHR issued a number of press releases with regard to the right to pursue universal jurisdiction. On 01 August 2010, PCHR and Hickman & Rose issued a joint statement, in which they opposed proposed amendments to the universal jurisdiction legislation in the United Kingdom. They stressed that such the proposed amendments were purely political move designed to block the arrest of war criminals, from ‘friendly countries’ in the UK. It was an effort intended to grant immunity under the veil of the law. The proposed change sends out the wrong message to perpetrators, and will lead to the UK being seen as a ‘safe haven’ for international criminals. PCHR also filed a petition at the Spanish Supreme Court with regard to closure of investigation into the attack on al-Daraj neighborhood in July 2002, which took the lives of 14 Palestinian civilians and injured at least 100 others.

The pursuit of universal jurisdiction forms a longstanding component of PCHR's legal strategy. The shortcomings of the Israeli judicial system have been well documented; PCHR believes that this system is biased, partial, and incapable of providing justice to Palestinian victims. In 2010, PCHR, with joint cooperation between its Legal Aid Unit and International Unit filed two petitions in the Israeli Supreme Court in an attempt to assess the possibility of applying the principle of universal jurisdiction, but this effort failed. Consequently, PCHR has turned to universal jurisdiction, a legal mechanism that allows foreign national courts to investigate and prosecute international crimes, no matter where these crimes were perpetrated.

PCHR Organizes Rule of Law and Universal Jurisdiction Conference in Malaga, Spain

On 14 October 2010, PCHR organized a conference in Malaga – Spain, titled “The Rule of Law and Universal Jurisdiction.” The conference was attended by representatives from Europe, North America and South America and representatives of a number of international NGOs, including the International Federation for Human Rights, the International Commission of Jurists, the Center for Constitutional Rights, Human Rights Watch and others.

The conference sought to lay the foundation for an effective legal strategy to ensure prosecution of international crimes and combat impunity. It included consultations with regard to available mechanisms in international legislation, in light of the amendments to laws in a number of European countries, including Spain and the United Kingdom. It further discussed possible legal strategies to be used in the context of efforts to overcome the impunity crisis, the current challenges and lessons that have been learnt and to assess and evaluate achievements of previous years, which witnessed intensive efforts in a number of countries in the pursuit of justice.

Presentations were given by a number of leading international experts, including a number of lawyers who have worked on universal jurisdiction cases, including the case filed by PCHR in the United Kingdom against Doron Alomg, former GOC Command of the Israeli military, for perpetrating grave breaches of the Fourth Geneva Convention; the case filed in New Zealand against Moshe Ya’loun, former Chief of Staff of the Israeli military, for perpetrating grave breaches of the Fourth Geneva Convention; the case filed in Spain against seven Israeli military officials with regard to the bombardment of al-Daraj neighborhood in Gaza City in July 2002; and the case field in Netherlands against Ami Ayalon, former Chief of the Israeli General Security Service, for committing the crime of torture.

This event built on a previous conference organized by PCHR in Malaga, in 2006. That conference – which was the first of its kind – brought together lawyers, human rights activists, and representatives of national and international NGOs.

Legal and Financial Obstacles

We have discussed in detail methods used by Israel in an attempt to deny Palestinian civilians access to justice in the Israeli judicial system, including legal, financial and material obstacles.

Over the past two years, PCHR has doubled its fundraising efforts in order to finance lawsuits filed on behalf of thousands of Palestinian victims of Israeli war crimes. PCHR has sought to establish a special fund to finance all compensation claims that can be put before Israeli courts, but such efforts failed.

Consequently, PCHR has been forced to return hundreds of legal files to victims before the end of the legal period specified by the Israeli law – two years from the date of an event – to file claims. PCHR had already informed its clients of the developments with regard to funding all the cases and urged them to seek alternative means to file claims before Israeli courts, although PCHR was aware of the virtual impossibility for clients due to the extremely high fees imposed by Israeli courts.

Attacks by Extremist Rightist Organizations against PCHR and Other Human Rights Organizations

In 2010, PCHR and other human rights organizations were subject to a systematic campaign of incitement and distortion by extremist and rightist organizations in Israel, regarding efforts by PCHR and other human rights organizations to prosecute Israeli war criminals. PCHR and other human rights organizations were accused by extremist rightist organizations of orchestrating these efforts to prosecute Israeli war criminals before the national judiciaries in a number of European countries, including the United Kingdom, Holland and Spain, and in New Zealand and the United States.

In 2010, the Israeli campaign against human rights defenders was triggered by a report issued in April by a radical Zionist group called IM Tirtzu – The Second Zionist Revolution, which focused on universal jurisdiction cases brought against senior Israeli officials suspected of committing war crimes. The report, available in Arabic and in English, is in fact a poorly researched document which is inaccurate, mixes and confuses information and ultimately misrepresents the overall situation. PCHR issued a press release on 5 May 2010, in which it expressed concern over the document, which lacks any judicially rational basis and was clearly issued as a propaganda tool intended to target every organization currently dealing with human rights in Israel and the oPt. PCHR further expressed solidarity with human rights organizations in their brave efforts to defend human rights and the rule of international law.

Promotion of Work with the League of Arab States

PCHR pays special attention to cooperation and coordination with the League of Arab States. Such cooperation and coordination was enhanced after the Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip in December 2008 and January 2009. PCHR has maintained strong coordination with the League in documenting and exposing Israeli war crimes against Palestinian civilians. In this context, in January 2009, PCHR received the fact-finding mission dispatched by the League to investigate Israeli violations of Palestinian human rights. PCHR provided the mission with assistance during its 5-day visit to the Gaza Strip. PCHR then maintained communication with the League, especially with Secretary General, Dr. Amru Mousa.

Visit of Secretary General of the League of Arab States to the Gaza Strip

On 13 June 2010, Dr. Amru Mousa, Secretary General of the League of Arab States, during his visit to al-Fakhoura School in Jabalya, 13 June 2010
Introduction

League of Arab States visited the Gaza Strip. PCHR welcomed this visit and made efforts to ensure he achieved his goals during the visit. In this context, PCHR organized a number of field tours for Dr. Mousa and the accompanying delegation to various areas in the Gaza Strip, which were directly attacked by Israeli forces during the offensive on the Gaza Strip. It further facilitated a number of meetings between the Secretary General and families of victims, including a meeting in al-Zaytoun neighborhood with the families of al-Sammouni, al-Dayah and Hijji, and in ‘Izbat ‘Abed Rabbu area.

The Secretary General’s visit to al-Fakhoura School in Jabalya refugee camp was a major visit organized by PCHR, to expose the persistent disregard of Israel for the lives of Palestinian civilians who sought shelter inside an UNRWA school. During his visit, the Secretary General met with hundreds of victims and families of Palestinians detained in Israeli jails. During the meeting, Raji Sourani Director of PCHR, delivered a speech, in which he talked about the suffering of Palestinian prisoners in Israeli jails and their families, who have been denied visitation to their loved ones. PCHR, in cooperation with the Palestinian NGO Network, also organized a meeting for the Secretary General with representatives of civil society organizations in Commodore Hotel in Gaza City.

Promotion of Cooperation with Palestinian Civil Society Organizations

PCHR promoted cooperation with Palestinian civil society in the context of efforts to ensure protection for human rights and support for democratic reform. In this context, in 2010, PCHR organized hundreds of activities in partnership with civil society organizations in the Gaza Strip, including workshops, lectures and training courses. Most of these activities were conducted in offices of civil society organizations across the Gaza Strip, which gave PCHR better access to the public, especially in marginalized areas.

Additionally, PCHR participated in activities and initiatives organized by civil society organizations, especially those aimed at ending the political division and ensuring the national unity of the Palestinian people.

PCHR Participates in the Organization of “Visual Stories” Exhibition

PCHR cooperated with the Convergence Group for Contemporary Arts to organize the “Visual Stories” Exhibition in Gaza City on 28 January 2010. The exhibition included many paintings of 23 plastic artists, which narrated stories of the Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip in December 2008 and January 2009. It also included sculptures and photographs that expressed the pains of the Palestinian civilian population during the offensive.
Cooperation with Human Rights Organizations

PCHR promoted coordination and cooperation with Palestinian and Israeli human rights organizations. Israel’s offensive on the Gaza Strip in late 2008 and early 2009 and its consequences constituted a major aspect of joint activities and coordination among human rights organizations. Such work included advocacy and lobbying at various levels, including issuing press releases, holding press conferences and sending letters to relevant international bodies. PCHR took the initiative on a number of joint activities, and in other times, it joined activities organized by other human rights organizations. In this context, on 23 August 2010, PCHR took the initiative to issue a joint statement that addressed the UN Human Rights Council in its 15th session on the Goldstone Report. The statement was issued jointly with Al-Haq in Ramallah, Al-Mezan Center for Human Rights, Badil – Resource Center for Palestinian Refugees and Residency Rights and Defense for Children International – Palestine Section. Through such persistent efforts, PCHR and the other human rights organizations sought to pressure Member States of the UN Human Rights Council to adopt the recommendations of the Goldstone Report, and ensure that effective judicial mechanisms to prosecute Israeli war criminals were implemented.

Cooperation with International Civil Society Organizations

In 2010, PCHR continued its efforts to develop and enhance relations and cooperation with international civil society organizations. PCHR has a wide network of international and regional partners. It is also a member of 6 active international organizations and coalitions: the International Commission of Jurists (Geneva); International Federation for Human Rights – FIDH (Paris); Euro-Mediterranean Human Rights Network (Copenhagen); International Legal Assistance Consortium (Stockholm); World Coalition against the Death Penalty; and the Arab Organization for Human Rights (Cairo).

Over the year, PCHR participated in numerous meetings and activities of these organizations. The Israeli closure imposed on the Gaza Strip and its impacts were a major issue raised by PCHR at the international level, in cooperation and coordination with other active international organizations. PCHR sought to demonstrate the human suffering resulting from the Israeli closure and its impacts, in an attempt to influence international public opinion against Israeli policies. Israeli settlement activities also occupied a major part of PCHR’s work with international organizations to condemn this policy and urge the international community to exert pressure on Israel to stop all violations of Palestinian human rights.

PCHR Contribute to Photographing a Documentary That Won France Television Grand Prix for Mediterranean Documentary and Reportage

PCHR contributed to filming a 55-minute documentary titled “Gaza-Strophic, The Day After,” which won the Force Television Grand Prix for Mediterranean Documentary and Reportage in 2010. The documentary showed images of the Israeli bombardment and brutal attacks using missiles and phosphorous bombs during their offensive on the Gaza Strip. PCHR hosted the directors of the documentary after the end of the Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip in late December 2008 and early International Activists Contribute to PCHR’s Work

PCHR regularly receives dozens of letters, from both national and international sources, in appreciation and support for its efforts to defend human rights. In 2010, PCHR received two individual donations, which represented a message of support from these individuals which PCHR highly appreciates.

- The British journalist and activist David Cronin: He was granted a prominent award from the Campaign to Arrest Blair in the United Kingdom, in appreciation for his journalistic work, especially his article in The Guardian on 24 March 2010, in which he exposed the role of former British Prime Minister Tony Blair in the war on Iraq, explaining how Blair is not suitable to be a peace envoy to the Middle East. When he received the award, Cronin declared that he would donate its value (£ 2,800) to the Palestinian Center for Human Rights, in appreciation for its efforts and work.
- Canadian historian Natalie Zimon Davis, professor of history at the University of Toronto: In 2010, she donated $ 10,000 to support PCHR’s activities, in appreciation for its work. It is worth noting that Davis won the Holberg International Memorial Award, whose value is € 700,000.

Continued Institutionalization and Capacity Building in PCHR

Since its establishment in 1995, PCHR has made efforts to develop its performance through enhancing the processes of institutionalization and capacity building of its staff to improve their professional efficiency. In 2010, PCHR continued such efforts in various ways that can be summed up in the following.

Reform in Leading Bodies

- In 2010, PCHR worked towards the completion of the expansion of its general assembly adding new members from outside PCHR, including a number of public figures and human rights defenders who believe in PCHR’s message.
- PCHR has taken steps towards having a Board of Directors whose members are not from its staff. PCHR is fully capable of taking such steps as it has reached a stage of institutionalization that can ensure maintaining the essence of its message to defend human rights, with an administrative body capable of confronting pressures and challenges under a very sensitive and important stage in the oPt. The reform process is expected to be finalized in the beginning of 2011, as the General Assembly will convene to elect a new Board of Directors, whose head and the majority of its members will be from outside PCHR.

Regular Meetings of Leading Bodies in PCHR

In 2010, the Board of Directors and the Program Committees held regular periodic meetings:
- The Board of Directors held 10
meetings, in which it discussed administrative and financial issues of PCHR, as well as other issues that fall under its mandate.
- The Program Committee, which supervises PCHR’s activities and which includes directors of each unit, headed by Director of PCHR or his deputy for program affairs, held 23 meetings.
- The year witnessed significant improvement with regard to administrative and legal follow-up by Director of PCHR or his deputy for administrative and legal affairs.
Capacity building of PCHR’s staff occupy a major portion of PCHR’s work. PCHR makes every effort to develop the skills of its staff. In 2010, a number of staff members participated in a number of training courses related to their work, and a staff member obtained the Ph.D. in political science from Cairo University.

Efforts to Enhance Work on Gender Issues

In 2010, PCHR continued efforts to support gender issues, which were reflected in:

1. Efforts to encourage both women and men to participate in designing, implementing and managing PCHR’s activities.
2. A balanced policy of employment and training; in 2010, PCHR employed a new female translator and absorbed a number of women to be trained at PCHR (6 lawyers in Women’s Rights Unit, and 5 media graduates with PCHR Media Officer).
3. PCHR adopted an equal opportunity policy in promotions of its staff, and promoted the role of women in decision-making.
4. PCHR measures the effects of its projects and activities through gender-based indicators.
5. PCHR’s activities targeted a large segment of women of various ages and social and educational backgrounds.
6. PCHR monitored and documented violations of women’s rights and made efforts to stop them.

Women’s Rights Unit Moves to a New Office

In 2010, the Women’s Rights Unit moved to a new office, which is a part of PCHR’s head office. As activities of the Unit expanded and its staff increased, PCHR’s administration decided to move the unit to the new office, which was constructed and equipped to facilitate access women to the unit, and ensure privacy for them. This step was derived from PCHR’s belief in the importance of the Unit’s work and its role in supporting and promoting women’s rights.
Field Work Unit

In 2010, the Field Work Unit continued to monitor and document the human rights situation throughout the oPt, including Jerusalem, as set out in its annual plan. This unit is considered the primary source of information and data on violation of human rights.

The unit’s staff is made up of 11 field workers in the West Bank and Gaza Strip who monitor and document the human rights situation in the oPt. Other duties of the unit include accompanying delegations on field tours to show them the aftermath of Israeli war crimes, as well as visiting the families of the victims to urge them to visit PCHR for legal aid. The unit also prepares a weekly report on Israeli violations of human rights in the oPt, including Jerusalem. Furthermore, the unit plays a fundamental role in exposing Israeli violations of human rights through issuing press releases.

In Gaza, an unprecedented and tightened closure has been imposed for over four years; leading to even more violations of civil and political rights as well as violations which pervaded other aspects of life, including economic, social and cultural.

In the West Bank, Israeli soldiers and settlers intensified grave violations on a daily basis. Moreover, the efforts to create a Jewish majority in Jerusalem persist through attempts at removing Palestinian residents from East Jerusalem. Other violations include rendering life difficult for residents through the ongoing building of the Annexation Wall which disrupts cities in the West Bank and the military checkpoints erected throughout the West Bank. In light of these facts, the researchers have doubled efforts to examine, monitor and document these violations by all possible means. Their hard work also included unveiling and reporting crimes perpetrated by Israeli forces.

At the Palestinian level, the political enmity between the two main Palestinian factions, Hamas and Fatah, has had repercussions on the human rights situation in the PNA which in turn have negatively impacted the public freedoms in the oPt. Despite all of this, the unit continued to monitor and document violations of human rights at the hands of Palestinians.

The database which the unit compiled its data has served as a major reference to various concerned institutions both local and international.

Activity (6):
- Preparing a database on all types of killings and injuries, demolitions, land leveling, bombardment of structures and detentions.
  - The unit made about (2,055) data entries. In compiling this, the field workers did the following:

1. Field Visits and First-Hand Information
   Field workers conducted visits to the sites of the alleged human rights violation, despite the dangers often existing in these areas. The field workers make a number of field visits a day depending the event. On average, a field worker can make 2-3 field visits to document one incident.

   » Means of Verification
   - The field workers in the West Bank and Gaza Strip conducted thousands of field visits. One incident may require the worker to revisit the area.

2. Personal Interviews with Victims and/or Family Members and Eyewitnesses and Compiling Affidavits
   Field workers usually conduct interviews with several people on every single violation in order to verify the accuracy of information. Eyewitnesses are very important to draw a clear and real picture of single violations, especially when field workers are not able to reach the scene immediately following a violation having taken place due to dangers they may face. Field workers have to work hard in this regard as they have to interview as many people as possible to ensure the accuracy of information.

   » Means of Verification
   - Field workers conducted thousands of interviews with victims, eyewitnesses and official parties.
   - Field workers gathered at least 323 testimonies from victims and eyewitnesses.

3. Filling Forms on Violations of Human Rights
   These forms are designed to gather clear and accurate information to be entered into the database in order to produce accurate figures on the total number of violations and their proportions. Each form requests basic details on a violation, its location and the persons or places affected by the attack. Completing the forms is time-consuming for a field worker and in many cases he/she may have to revisit the location or the victim.

   » Means of Verification
   - The field workers in Gaza Strip and the West Bank compiled (2,730) forms.

4. Collating Photographic/Video Evidence
   Field workers are required to take photographs or video footage of the scenes of violations wherever possible. Photographic or video evidence is of paramount importance in creating a solid case which can be verified of the extent and ferocity of the violation and is thus a highly significant documentary to expose the crime.

   In 2010, (515) photos of events and crimes were taken.
5. Collating Other Documentation Related to Human Rights Violations

Documents, including medical reports, ownership documents, personal photographs, crime scene sketching and maps and official documents from government sources provide strong evidence on the violation.

Hundreds of documents have been compiled and referred to appropriate units in PCHR where they have proved useful to them.

6. Writing Reports on Human Rights Violations

Field workers write detailed reports on human rights violations, in which eyewitness testimonies and field workers’ observations and notes are included, to give a comprehensive description of violations.

The Unit wrote nearly 1,900 reports with appropriate documentation.

7. Filing Israeli Violations of Human Rights and Making them Accessible to PCHR Units

In 2010, the unit prepared a number of files on various human rights violations perpetrated by Israeli forces in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, which are categorized according to governorates. They are also classified into two types of agendas. Each file consists of data on the place where the violation (killing, demolition, land razing, arrests, shelling, etc.) occurred.

8. Scanning of Documents and other Materials to Be Entered into the Database and Making Them Accessible to PCHR Units.

Materials were scanned and then entered into PCHR’s database under the supervision of the Field Work Unit.

Indicators

- All documented human rights violations were entered into PCHR’s database, which on one hand indicate the nature of the incident and on the other, are employed as vital statistical evidence in all social and press reports.
- Information collected in the field was covered in 51 weekly reports.
- A number of cases were referred to the PCHR Legal Aid Unit. These cases include: land leveling, demolition of houses, willful killings, denial of patients’ access to medical treatment abroad and the detainees in the Israeli prisons.

- Materials available in the unit were used in writing PCHR’s annual report on the human rights situation in the oPt.
- Photographs taken by field workers were put on PCHR’s website and used in publications.
- Materials available in the unit were used in press releases and reports issued by PCHR, especially the Economic, Social and Cultural Rights Unit.
- Materials compiled in the unit were used for the preparation of PCHR reports.
- The unit director received dozens of phone calls from different organizations in both the Gaza Strip and the West Bank working in the field of democracy, human rights, media and development inquiring about human rights violations.
- Materials available in the unit, including figures and statistics, were used by PCHR staff in media interviews and press releases, and proved useful to international inquiry missions that visited Gaza Strip following the Israeli offensive.

- The unit established 12 categories for human rights violations.

- The photos and documented material proved useful to local, regional and international organizations.
- The unit wrote 51 weekly reports and 28 press releases.
- Weekly reports and press releases prepared by the unit were published on PCHR's website.
- All human rights violations (deaths, injuries, house demolitions, bombardments, land leveling, detainees, and deaths on borders) were entered into PCHR's database and proved useful to PCHR units and to the media.
- The unit's staff conducted at least 14 media interviews on human rights violations.
- The unit wrote 17 reports on the status of borders and crossings in Gaza Strip.
- A report on the impact of the Israeli closure on rebuilding the education sector in Gaza Strip.

Activity (6):
- Monitoring the economic and social rights situation in Gaza Strip
- The unit recorded a number of cases of violations, especially in the health and education sectors.

To document human rights violations, field workers carried out the following activities:

1. Field Visits and First-Hand Information
   Field workers conducted field visits to scenes of violations to obtain further information on incidents and to meet with eyewitnesses. The field worker often meets with the person who committed the violation, which could be a public official or an ordinary citizen to interview him/her on the circumstances of the incident. The field worker may also visit police stations and health institutions when the former means do not suffice. Thousands of field visits have been made.

2. Interviews with Victims and/or Families and Eyewitnesses and Collecting Affidavits
   Field workers are required to conduct interviews with several people regarding each incident in order to verify/cross-check information. Difficulties in obtaining accurate and detailed statements include witnesses’ fears of reprisals. Oftentimes, a field worker is confronted with inaccurate or exaggerated affidavits which cost him/her time and effort to discover accurate facts.
   - The total number of interviews with victims and/or eyewitnesses was about (1,350) interviews and (402) affidavits.

3. Collating Photographic Evidence
   - See activities on documentation of violations committed by Israeli forces detailed above.

4. Collating Other Documentation Related to Human Rights Violations
   Documents differ depending on the nature of a violation. However, they are unquestionably one of the most important mechanisms through which the abused person can demand his/her right and seek redress from appropriate authorities. Although obtaining such documents is not an easy job, every effort is made by field workers to obtain such documents which can provide evidence to the damage caused.
5. Writing Reports on Human Rights Violations
   Field workers write detailed reports on human rights violations, in which eyewitnesses' testimonies and the field workers' notes are included, to give a comprehensive description of violations.
   - The total number of field reports was (567).

6. Creating Files of Palestinian Violations of Human Rights
   The same system of filing the Israeli violations is applied here.

   » Indicators:

Raising Awareness on Local and International Levels on Human Rights Violations

The Unit carried out a number of activities as follows:

Activity (1):
- Compiling and distribution of a weekly update on the Israeli violations of human rights and crimes perpetrated in the oPt.

This report includes day-to-day documentation of all kinds of abuses committed against Palestinian civilians and property. This weekly report is the primary means of documentation of human rights violations in the oPt, and gives a real picture of what happens on the ground. The reports and affidavits compiled by the field workers in Gaza Strip and the West Bank form the basis of this report which the Unit Director prepares without excluding any violations whatsoever. Naturally, this requires tremendous effort and verification of every incident to ensure impartiality. The unit releases this report on a regular basis and is responsible for finalizing this report, and an English translation, before the programs committee meets every Thursday.

Indicators
- Issuing a weekly report on the Israeli violations in the oPt.
- Distributing hard and soft copies of the weekly report on these violations.

Means of Verification
- The number of weekly reports issued by the unit is (51).
- Wide media coverage of the report where summaries of the reports are often published in local newspapers and some websites. Some of the headlines in these reports are used for making more specialized reports and inquiries.
- The demands for the weekly report from outside PCHR and from the staff themselves are enormous.
- The unit received various phone calls from institutions, concerned individuals and international media institutions to inquire about some of the incidents described in the report.
- Some information included in the reports was used by PCHR’s staff in their commentaries at conferences, before official and/or governmental bodies and in meetings abroad.

Activity (2)
- Press Releases on Israeli Violations of Human Rights in the oPt and the State of Lawlessness in the PNA

The unit staff members prepare press releases on specific incidents as they occur. They are a major method through which Israeli violations are exposed and also provide PCHR’s stance on these violations. It is crucial to make press releases quickly and accurately to document and report on the crime.

Indicators
- Issuing press releases on the Israeli violation in the oPt.
Means of Verification

- The unit issued 28 press releases on the Israeli violations and 5 on Palestinian violations.
- Press releases are published on PCHR’s website and are often covered by local and international media.

Activity (3)
1. Strengthening Ties with the Community by:

   - Encouraging Victims of Human Rights Violations to visit PCHR’s Offices to Receive Appropriate Legal Aid and Assistance.
     While the field workers are in the field documenting violations, they also advise and urge the victims or their relatives to seek assistance from the Legal Aid Unit at PCHR and to file their complaints. On certain occasions, the field workers facilitate visit from a PCHR lawyer.
   - Media Activities
     The unit staff members were interviewed by local and international media regarding violations of human rights perpetrated by Israeli forces during which they pointed out PCHR’s position on these violations. In the times when a multitude of Israeli war crimes occurred and deterioration of the internal situation in the oPt prevailed, the unit participated in 18 TV, radio and press interviews with local and international media in Gaza Strip and the West Bank.

Activity (4):
- Escorting Local and International Delegations on Field Visits to show them the Situation of Human Rights in the oPt

This activity aims to provide visiting international delegations with a comprehensive view of the human rights situation in the oPt and the destruction incurred from Israeli crimes. In many instances, the field workers coordinated visits between delegations and victims and accompanied them to locations throughout the Gaza Strip. During the Israeli offensive, field workers contributed by accompanying Arab and international delegations on field visits to exhibit the enormity of the destruction and to meet victims.

» Indicators
- The unit staff briefed the international delegations they escorted on the human rights situation in the oPt, which was, in return, employed in pursuing investigations into violations and issuing reports in their own countries or institutions.

» Means of Verification
- In 2010, the unit staff members escorted visiting international delegations and individuals on at least 12 field visits throughout the Gaza Strip.
Legal Aid Unit

In providing legal assistance to victims of human rights violations, both Israeli and Palestinian, the unit made tremendous efforts to implement all activities included in its 2010 annual plan. In 2010, the unit carried out the following activities:

I. Israeli Agenda

The unit staff did their best to accomplish the activities set out in its annual plan by providing legal assistance to victims of human rights violations perpetrated by Israeli forces. In addition, the unit tried to achieve judicial precedents, which will be detailed below. The main activities carried out by the unit are as follows:

Output (1)

Legal Aid for Palestinian Prisoners in Israeli Prisons:

1) Making efforts to stop torture.
2) Ensuring medical care to prisoners.
3) Ensuring the release of prisoners.
4) Ensuring better detention conditions.
5) Determining the legal status of prisoners and locating them in detention centers.

As set out in its annual plan, the unit continued to provide legal aid for Palestinian prisoners in Israeli prisons by representing them before courts, visiting them, filing complaints and appeals to concerned parties. In 2010, 30 Palestinian prisoners benefited from the legal aid provided by the unit. These activities can be further detailed as follows:

- Determining the Legal Status of Prisoners and Locating Them in Detention Centers.
- Representing Palestinian Prisoners before Israeli Courts.

The unit provided legal aid for 30 Palestinian detainees in Israeli prisons by appointing a lawyer from the unit to locate where they were held in detention, define their legal status and to represent them before Israeli courts. The lawyer authorized by the unit conducted 18 visits to Palestinian detainees in Israeli prisons to check on their health condition. The lawyer may visit one detainee several times, and also visit more than one detainee at the same time.

I. Filing Complaints and Making Appeals

- On 12 October 2010, a complaint was filed and sent to the Israeli Military Legal Advisor regarding the deportation of a detainee from the West Bank to the Gaza Strip at the end of the prison term. On 30 Nov 2010, the unit received a positive response from the Legal Advisor allowing him, exceptionally, to return to the West Bank.

2. Petitions: The Legal Aid Unit did not make any petitions concerning Palestinian detainees in the Israeli Prisons.

II. Providing Medical Care to Prisoners

The unit cooperates with a number of Israeli health care organizations, including Physicians for Human Rights and the Public Committee against Torture in Israel, to follow up and improve the health conditions of Palestinian detainees in Israeli prisons by providing physicians who visit the prisoners. In 2010, the unit followed up the health conditions of 4 detainees as follows:

1. The unit followed up the health condition of Anwar Mohammed Hassan Abu Attaya who was abducted at Erez Crossing as he was about to travel to Jerusalem for medical treatment.
2. After corresponding with the Physicians Union and the Public Committee Against Torture regarding the sick detainee, they followed up on his health condition. Abu Attaya was later released.
3. The appointed PCHR lawyer visited a sick detainee, Shawqi Abu Aazra, to follow up and help to improve his health condition.
4. The unit sent a correspondence to Physicians for Human Rights to facilitate a visit to a sick detainee, Mohammed Diyad Jabir. This case is being followed up.
5. A PCHR lawyer visited Mohammed Diyad Jabir in the prison to follow up and try to help improve his health condition.

Freeing Detainees and Ensuring Better Conditions in Prisons:

- Assisting parents of a detainee held in Nafha Prison to obtain a Power of Attorney from him.

- The unit filed one complaint to the Israeli General Prosecution.
- The unit filed one complaint to the Immigration Department in the Israeli Ministry of Interior.

- The unit provided 106 legal consultations to families of Palestinian prisoners.
- The unit followed up on 3 Palestinian prisoners to ensure better health conditions for them.
- The unit was able to obtain bills of indictment of 6 Palestinian detainees, as well as provide them with pocket money used for buying from the canteen inside the prison.
- Participating in seminars on the Palestinian detainees.
- Convening one meeting on the Palestinian detainees.

» Means of Verification
- The unit found that a number of prisoners were suffering from health problems due to the inhumane conditions inside the prisons.
- The unit assisted a number of prisoners to obtain bills of indictment.
- The unit assisted families of prisoners in Israeli prisons by providing pocket money for them to buy from the canteen inside the prison.

Output (2)

Legal Aid for Victims of Israeli Violations of Human Rights and Their Right to Compensation.

1. Compensation for victims
2. Pursuing war criminals
3. Meetings and consultation sessions on universal jurisdiction

1) Compensation for Victims:
   To achieve this, the activity was carried out in the following ways:
   - Legal Documentation:
     The Legal Aid Unit continued to legally analyze and document Israeli war crimes. 18 files were compiled as detailed in Table (1).
PART 2: PCHR’S ACTIVITIES IN 2010

All these violations involve killing, injury, destruction and stealing property as shown in table (2).

1. The unit sent 18 written notices to the Compensation Office in the Israeli Ministry of Defense pursuant to the amendments of the Tort Law on 24 July 2002.
2. A total number of 248 reminder letters were resent; 138 to the Military Prosecutor and 146 to the Compensation Office in the Ministry of Defense.
3. On 29 September 2010, a letter was sent to the Military General Prosecutor regarding the complaints filed by PCHR (494 complaints) on behalf of the victims of the Israeli Offensive on Gaza (27 December 2008-18 January 2009) to inquire about the results of the investigations into these complaints. However, the unit received only 13 responses; the rest are still being followed up.
4. On 10 November 2010, the unit received a response from the Military Legal Advisor dated 15 June 2010 regarding the reminder letters which had been sent in April. The letter confirmed receipt of the damage forms and the letters saying they had been archived and were in the process of being examined and followed up.
5. On 17 November 2010, three letters were sent to the Legal Advisor of the Ministry of Justice, the Legal Advisor of the Ministry of Defense and the Civil Department in the Israeli Military Prosecution requesting an extension on the limitation of time to file cases of damage which occurred during the “Operation Cast Lead” according to the Tort Law of 1952. The issue is still being pursued.
6. On 22 November 2010, the unit sent a reminder letter to the Attorney-General regarding the previous letter sent on 29 Sept, 2010. The issue is still being followed up.

7. On 22 November 2010, a letter was sent to the Legal Advisor of the Claims and Insurance Office of the Ministry of Defense on the damage forms and reminder letters which had been previously sent to the Compensation Office on behalf of the victims of the Israeli offensive on Gaza (27 December 2008-18 January 2009) requesting that the unit be informed of the findings of the investigation. The total number of damage forms was 1,046 and the issue is still being followed up.

8. Complaints Concerning Attacks against Palestinian Fishermen

The Legal Unit pursued numerous cases of Israeli attacks on Palestinian fishermen in Gaza Strip. These attacks include: chasing and interception of fishing boats, opening fire at fishermen in the sea and confiscation of fishing boats. In 2010, the unit filed 12 complaints regarding these incidents and submitted them to the Israeli Naval Forces, the Israeli Prosecution and the Ministry of Defense. These complaints added to the 7 pending complaints from 2009.

Beyond what has been stated, the fishermen are continuously exposed to great dangers. The Israeli Naval Forces engage with fishermen even when they sail in the permitted area. They also open fire at fishermen directly to terrorize them. Even worse, Israeli Intelligence detains and interrogates them before releasing them at Erez Crossing.

Claims before the Israeli Judiciary

The unit continues to file cases before the Israeli judiciary against the State of Israel on behalf of victims of Israeli violations of human rights, including killings, injuries and house demolitions. The unit demanded compensation for these victims. In 2010, 39 cases were filed as follows:

On 31 December, 2010, the unit had brought 39 of these cases to the relevant Israeli courts.

» Indicators
- The unit has made it a priority to open investigations into the Israeli war crimes perpetrated in Gaza Strip during the dubbed ‘Operation Cast Lead’ by filing complaints on behalf of the victims, despite the fact that the Israeli General Prosecutor has closed investigations into these crimes and the attempts are made by the Israeli military authorities to legitimate the crimes committed by Israeli forces.
- The unit followed up 70 compensation claims before Israeli courts on behalf of the victims; 46 of which are earlier cases prior to ‘Operation Cast Lead.’
- The unit paid fees and bails for numerous cases brought before Israeli courts, especially compensation claims.

» Means of Verification
- Monitoring the number of cases: the overall number of cases filed and sent to the Israeli Prosecution on victims of human rights violations was 18. They include crimes related to killing, injuries, demolition and stealing property.
- Monitoring the number of responses: the Legal Aid Unit received a number of responses from Israeli authorities for the complaints filed and sent. The table below lists the details of each complaint.

Monitoring a Number of Judicial Precedents

- The Israeli court agreed to a compromise to pay 450,000 NIS to Naem Almadhun’s family who was killed on his way back from work inside Israel on 8 March 1993 when a settler opened fire at him near Erez Crossing.
- Obtained a compensation of 8,000 NIS from the Compensation Officer at the Ministry of Defense for the loss of a fisherman’s boat.
- Monitoring a number of arbitrary decisions issued by Israel courts, especially extremely high court fees which none of the victims are capable of fulfilling due to the harsh economic circumstances.
- The unit observed a serious threat surrounding a number of cases in which the victims have not been compensated; thereby losing their right to compensation. The number of cases which have been revoked are 26.
- 19 compensation claims have been denied by the Israeli courts. The reason was because they called witnesses to testify before the courts but due to the closure imposed on Gaza Strip, the residents were not allowed to travel to attend the court session. For this reason, the unit submitted affidavits to the judge, but the judge was not convinced and thus extended the opportunity to file cases with a deadline in September for some cases and December for other and solved the problem of witnesses’ appearance before the Israeli courts.
- On 10 June 2010, the case was put back on the court’s agenda after the judge had ordered it to be dropped because the engineer who prepared the photos and maps of the demolished buildings had died. Instead, he gave PCHR another chance to file it during the year provided that the maps and photos are prepared by another engineer, and exempt the plaintiff from the file.
Prosecution of War Criminals

- Prosecution of Israeli war criminals occupies a major part of the unit’s activities, as the Israeli judicial system has failed to ensure justice for Palestinian civilians and has worked to provide a legal cover for crimes committed by Israeli forces against Palestinian civilians.
- Accordingly, the unit initiated professional and legal methods to prosecute Israeli war criminals. Special files have been prepared on hundreds of victims in cooperation with international lawyers to be initiated before international courts in Britain and Spain, in addition following up to earlier cases as follows:

  - Legal Documentation and File Building
  - The lawyers of the unit have taken a number of legal procedures for the prosecution of Israeli war criminals. The most significant actions were: legal documentation, field visits to crime scenes and taking affidavits from victims and eye witnesses. The unit built 18 legal files based on Israeli crimes against Palestinian civilians as shown in the following table.

Strengthening Ties with International Attorneys and Legal Experts

The unit has maintained good connections with a number of international attorneys and legal experts in the context of its efforts to prosecute Israeli war criminals before international courts. Both political and military leaders are equally held accountable for perpetrating crimes against Palestinian civilians.

The unit implemented this in the following way:
1. Preparation of cases on behalf of victims for proceedings before international courts, especially in Britain and Spain.
2. On 25 January 2010, the international legal officer at PCHR participated in a conference in Holland on: “Politics and Law Following the Israeli Offensive on Gaza.” Mr. Raji Sourani was unable to attend the conference due to the imposed closure.
3. On 1 March, 2010, lawyer Raji Sourani was to give a debriefing on Palestine before the Russell Court. However, because of the closure imposed on the Gaza Strip, he was prevented from travelling for this purpose. It is worth noting that this court, which is made up of prominent figures of law and intellectuals, is only a court of opinion which does not have any legal authority.
4. Attending a review conference on the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court in Kampala, Uganda from 31 May 2020 to 11 June 2010, and the impact of this change over first eight years of its work.
5. On 19 May 2010, PCHR accepted an invitation from a Japanese human rights organization and 3 lectures on the situation of human rights in the oPt were delivered by Raji Sourani, Director of PCHR.

6. On 8 June 2010, Raji Sourani delivered a lecture in a conference held in Paris titled: «Pressurizing Israel for the Sake of Making Peace.»

7. From 6-7 October 2010, the Legal Aid Unit Director held a meeting with Novib in Holland. The topics of discussion included: The latest developments on the PCHR agenda, the human rights situation, the latest developments and future plans and projects.

8. On 19 October, 2010, the Legal Unit Director, Iyad Alami, delivered a lecture to the Faculty of Law at Cordova University in Spain under the title «PCHR: The Objectives and Challenges.»

9. The Legal Aid Unit has built ties with a number of human rights organizations such as the Center for Constitutional Rights in New York, which is focused on the prosecution of war criminals and Hickman and Rose Solicitors in London. PCHR has cooperated with these organization for the prosecution of Israeli war criminals. Among these criminals was the retired Major General Doron Almog, former GOC of the Israeli Southern Command. On 10 September 2005, an arrest warrant was issued by the Chief of the London Magistrates’ Court Timothy Workman. However, the arrest failed as Almog evaded British justice.

The unit continues to pursue earlier cases filed against Israeli war criminals before international courts in Holland and Spain.

Consultative Meetings on Universal Jurisdiction

- Organizing meetings building on the Malaga Conference.
  1. From 15-17 October 2010, PCHR organized a conference titled “Rule of Law and Universal Jurisdiction” in Malaga
  3. On 13 October 2010, a press release was issued titled “With Participation of International Legal Experts and Universal Jurisdiction Lawyers, PCHR Organizes Rule of Law and Universal Jurisdiction Conference in Malaga.” (Reference number 79/2010)

Indicators

- The Legal Aid Unit continues its efforts to prosecute Israeli war criminals before the national courts of some European countries. Legal procedures maintain that the criminals must be arrested in order to investigate them. This has resulted in restricting the movement of Israeli war criminals on the international level.
- Preparing dozens of cases to proceed before courts in countries such as the UK and Spain, which recognize universal jurisdiction.
- Participating in 8 meetings, conferences and lectures on this subject.
- The National Court of Spain issued one Decision which instructed 7 Israeli military commanders to appear before the court in Spain within 30 days. The Court further announced that, if intent to exterminate the Palestinian population could be proven, the charge might be increased to genocide.
- On 13 April 2010, the Supreme Court of Spain issued a decision to endorse the decision of the National Court of Spain issued on 20 June 2009, which calls for closing the investigation of bombing Aldaraj neighborhood in 2002.
A total of two (2) judicial cases were filed against Israeli war criminals before the Spanish and Dutch Judiciaries.

Following up the request presented to the Hague Court of Appeal to open a criminal investigation with Ami Ya’alon and issuing an international arrest warrant to ensure his presence in Holland during prosecution. Should this fail, the victim Kahlid Alshami, demands, at a minimum issue, an order to make a “pre-emptive investigation” to make way for opening a criminal investigation against him.

Pursuing prosecution of Israeli war criminals through the national courts of some European countries to bring them to justice.

Restrictions on movement abroad of some Israeli officials who are implicated in war crimes against Palestinians due to the lawsuits filed against them.

The arrest warrant of Major General Doron Almog, issued on 10 September 2005 by the Chief of London Magistrates’ Court Timothy Workman is still in effect.

Means of Verification

The unit observed one decision issued by the National Court of Spain requiring 7 Israeli military commanders to present themselves before the court in Spain within 30 days. Failure to do so would result in an international arrest warrant.

The unit observed one negative decision issued on 20 June 2009 by the Supreme Court of Spain endorsing the decision of the National Court of Spain to close the investigation into the attack on Aldaraj neighborhood.

The unit observed a substantial interest on this subject among Palestinian, Israeli and international figures from across the legal spectrum.

Raising this issue establishes a deterrence which should prevent others from perpetrating war crimes for fear of prosecution before the international courts.

The Legal Aid Unit observed a state of fear among the Israeli occupation leaders as well as restrictions on their movement following the lawsuits filed against them.

Issuing two press releases on organizing the conference on The Rule of Law and Universal Jurisdiction in Malaga.

Providing Legal Aid to Those Denied Freedom of Movement

The unit continued to provide legal aid for Palestinian civilians with regard to restrictions imposed on their freedom of movement in order to receive medical treatment, practice religious rituals, to work and to communicate with others. The closure on the Gaza Strip persists and suffocates nearly 1.5 million Palestinians. The closure of borders and crossings has led to a devastating deterioration in the health of the population as more people who are denied access to medical care from hospitals in Israel, the West Bank or Arab countries, die. In exceptional cases, the borders are opened partially for a limited time to allow a few patients to travel. To accomplish this, the unit has implemented a number of activities as set out in its annual plan:

Filing Complaints and Objections

In 2010, the Legal Aid Unit followed up 508 complaints including those submitted to the humanitarian cases center at Erez Crossing as shown in the following table:

Upon receiving negative responses on those prohibited from traveling for medical treatment, the Legal Aid Unit submitted 32 appeals to the Israeli Appeal Department of State Prosecution concerning freedom of movement. The unit received 14 positive responses and 18 negative ones.

- On 22 November 2010, the Legal Aid Unit filed a complaint to the Israeli Military Prosecution to open an investigation into the death of a patient who was a minor, Nassma Naji Abu Lasheen, who was denied travel to Israel for treatment. The case is still pending.

1. 委任国际倡导活动

在2010年3月22日和23日，PCHR向联合国人权理事会第13届特别会议提交了口头陈述。会议讨论了相关决议：S-12/1和S-9/，有关以色列的侵犯。会议还强调，自以色列对加沙的侵略以来，15个月已过去，而要求对在联合国人权理事会及安理会和一般大会的请求进行调查的要求已提交6个月，而这些请求都没有得到满足，除了指控3名以色列士兵。

PCHR呼吁联合国人权理事会要求联合国安全理事会将巴勒斯坦权力机构和以色列的情况转交国际刑事法院依《联合国宪章》第七章处理。同时，国家在处理此问题时必须承担起自己的责任。

在描述加沙地带、约旦河西岸和东耶路撒冷的人权情况时，PCHR指出，过去的1 1/2年是自占领以来最糟糕的一年。也指出，当时的局势是牺牲人权和国际法以达到不可捉摸的政治进步的结果。

The oPt continues to witness many setbacks, namely the Israeli offensive against Gaza Strip, during which ministerial buildings were targeted. Moreover, the oPt witnessed a state of security chaos in the streets and continued political fragmentation, as well as violations of the rule of law. This was manifested through the division between Gaza Strip and the West Bank which resulted from the political division between Hamas and Fatah; which was characterized by political arrests from both governments and attacks on civil society organizations. All of this has impacted activities conducted by the unit.

This correspondence was sent upon the release of PCHR's recent report entitled: “Torture in PNA Prisons and Detention Centers,” which covered the period from June 2007. The letters, along with copies of the report, were sent to the Palestinian Authority leader Mahmoud Abbas, the Prime Minister in Ramallah, Salam Fayyad and to the Prime Minister in Gaza Ismael Haniya. Similar letters were also sent to the Ministers of Interior in both Gaza and Ramallah and to members of parliament and leaders of the Palestinian factions.

3. Participating in meetings and conferences held by civil society organizations or governmental institutions
   - The unit accepted a number of invitations to participate in activities organized by civil society organizations as well as governmental institutions. The conference discussed the role of international law in the oPt as a means to better understand the legal policies adopted in the oPt. This conference is the first of its kind to be conducted at a Palestinian university. Twenty experts from Palestinian and international universities and organizations participated in this conference. PCHR discussed the issue of international law in the Palestinian context and the Unit Director presented a paper

Efforts to Protect the Right to Freedom of Expression and Peaceful Assembly through Reporting, Advocating and Lobbying on These Violations; Especially on Journalists and Political Groups.

Activities
1) A Periodic Report on Violations of the Rights to Freedom of Expression and Peaceful Assembly in the PNA
   - This is the ninth report in this series which covers the period from Nov. 1, 2009- Nov. 30, 2010.
   - Issued by PCHR on Dec. 29, 2010.

2) A periodic report documents attacks by Israeli forces on journalists and media institutions - Silencing the Press Series

4) Honoring the Journalists on the World Press Freedom Day
   - PCHR and the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights jointly held a celebration named:
“Distinguished Journalists” on the annual World Press Freedom Day. The celebration was in honor of the journalists who had been given international awards during 2009 and 2010 for their work on the oPt. The Democracy Unit initiated and supervised this event which reflects PCHR’s appreciation of the efforts of journalists who worked hard to report the events happening in the oPt, especially during the Israeli Offensive on Gaza in December of 2008-January 2009.

- The celebration was held on May 1, 2010 at Roots Restaurant in Gaza and included over 200 guests including journalists, representatives of media institutions, civil society institutions and senior figures.
- 25 journalists were awarded special honor shields, 3 of whom were from the West Bank but were denied entry into Gaza due to the restrictions on movement imposed by Israel. However, the 3 journalists received their honor shields at a later date at the PCHR center in Ramallah.
- This initiative also exhibits the important ties which exist between human rights organizations and media institutions.

5) Taking part in events and activities to support the right to freedom of journalism, freedom of expression and the right to peaceful assembly.

The unit’s staff take part in all events organized to support the freedom of journalism, freedom of expression and the right to peaceful assembly.

- The first quarter of 2010 witnessed a contentious debate regarding the Journalists Syndicate elections. The Unit was involved in an array of activities welcomed by various media institutions. The Unit also supported demands to make reforms in the syndicate, namely the membership system, before running elections.
- However, the efforts to make reforms failed because the Syndicate’s leadership in Ramallah was adamant about holding elections without making the needed reforms. In light of this, PCHR turned down the Syndicate’s invitation to participate in monitoring the elections and issued a press release on Feb. 2, 2010 after the election, in which it demanded reforms in the Syndicate and the membership system.
- Throughout the year, members of the unit participated in activities carried out by journalists and civil society organizations.

» Indicators

- A decline in attacks on journalists and media institutions: Unfortunately, the division and conflict between Fatah and Hamas has contributed to increasing attacks on freedom of expression and peaceful assembly throughout the oPt.
- Organizing more demonstrations and peaceful public assemblies: A decline in these activities was reported due to the aforementioned reasons.
- Media coverage of reports and other activities: All of the unit’s activities were widely covered in the media.

» Means of Verification

- The unit staff observed and monitored instances of violations.
- Documentation of PCHR’s activities in media.

Abolishment or Suspension of the Death Penalty

The unit carried out a series of activities to accomplish this including the following:

1. A roundtable discussion on the International Day Against the Death Penalty
   - On 10 Oct. 2010, which is the International Day Against the Death Penalty the Unit held a roundtable discussion bearing the title: “The Death Penalty in the Palestinian Occupied Territory.”
   - This activity was held at Commodore Hotel in Gaza. It consisted of two main sessions and comprised academics, Judges, relevant legal figures, journalists and representatives of civil society organizations.
   - Opportunities were given for attendants to discuss, debate and reiterate PCHR’s stance which opposes the death penalty and calls for the PNA to suspend and abolish the death penalty.

2. A Position Paper on the Death Penalty (updated)
- The Unit updated a position paper which was previously released by PCHR.
- This paper was distributed during the roundtable discussion mentioned above.

3. Press Releases

PCHR issued 7 press releases condemning the issuance of death sentences in Gaza Strip and the West Bank.

4. A Letter to President Mahmoud Abbas

- On 10 May 2010, the unit sent a letter to President Mahmoud Abbas calling upon him to act with the force of law and issue a presidential decision to suspend the implementation of the death penalty, until the Palestinian Legislative Council convenes and law amendments which authorize implementing the death penalty are made. PCHR’s request came following the implementation of 5 death sentences executed by the government in Gaza which were implemented without the ratification from the President.

» Indicators

▪ Abstention from issuing and implementing death sentences already imposed:
  - Unfortunately, more death sentences were issued. There was a total of 12 sentences; all of which were in Gaza Strip.
  - The government in Gaza carried out 5 death sentences.
  - In the West Bank, death sentences were neither issued nor implemented. PCHR sees this as a positive indication for the future.
  - PCHR is pleased by the fact that the President has not ratified any sentences of death for five consecutive years and sees this as a positive sign.

▪ Legislative Amendments: No amendments were made to laws that allow the death penalty.

▪ Official statements: The unit observed a number of official statements that called for the implementation of the death penalty, including cases where sentences were carried out without ratification from the President.

▪ Media coverage of activities: The unit’s activities were covered by the media.

▪ Contribution to increasing debate in civil society over the death penalty. For example, it was clear in the roundtable discussion which PCHR organized on the International Day Against the Death Penalty during which the participants reiterated the Center’s firm stance against the death penalty.

» Means of Verification

▪ Monitoring the judiciary and its rulings.
▪ Observation of the PLC’s sessions.
▪ Documentation of official statements.
▪ The unit documented media interviews, in which the unit staff members explained PCHR’s position on the death penalty.
▪ PCHR received positive feedback from supporters who shared the Center’s position on the death penalty.

Output (6) ........................................................................................................................................................................

The legislative branch remains idle due to the division in the PNA. The Change and Reform Bloc (Hamas movement) continues to hold sessions under the name of the PLC in Gaza during which they deliberate and enact laws which are accordingly published in the Palestinian Official Gazette issued by the Gaza government without receiving ratification of the President.

PCHR strongly criticized those sessions which the Reform and Change Bloc (Hamas movement) holds in the name of the PLC in Gaza, and called upon the President to refrain from adopting new regulations on the basis of a lack of quorum.

Activities

1. Meetings with PLC Members
   - The unit met with a number of MPs (see activities in Output 1).

2. Attending Sessions and Observing Activities of the PLC
   - The unit’s staff members attended sessions held by the Change and Reform Bloc for the purpose of gathering information and following up on these sessions which other blocs in Parliament boycott.
   - Following up on the legislation which the PLC issues under the state of division.

3. Press Releases
   - The unit issued 5 press releases related to PLC’s work and attacks against its members.

Indicators

- Feedback: Positive and negative.

Means of Verification

- The unit documents news articles published in media on the unit’s activities.

Output (7)

Independent and Objective Evaluation of General and Local Elections Organized by the Palestinian National Authority to Encourage Holding Free, Fair and Credible Elections

Activities:

2. A Position Paper on the call to hold local elections in the PNA in July 2010
   - On 18 February, PCHR released this position paper in which it stressed its opposition to holding local

Output (3)

Lobbying for the Incorporation of International Standards of the Rights of Women and Children into Palestinian Laws

Family Law
- Lobbying to raise the legal age of marriage to 18.
- Lobbying for the adoption of the ‘best interest of the child’ standard and obligations when determining custody arrangements of children.
- The unit’s agenda includes finalizing amendments on family law, especially regarding the two points stated above. However, the state of lawlessness in Gaza Strip, which followed Hamas’ takeover of the Gaza Strip and the suspension of legislation inhibited efforts with regard to lobbying, advocacy and pressuring decision makers.
- On the other hand, the unit held meetings with the Supreme Judge, Sharia’ judges and lawyers to discuss the performance of Sharia’ courts and called upon them to intervene for the sake of enhancing women’s rights in the courts.

The most significant of these discussions was a discussion panel titled: “The Relationship Between Sharia Legislation and Sharia Lawyers.” This discussion was held in cooperation with the Supreme Judge Cabinet on 26 August, 2010. A number of Judges from the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeal and Sharia’ lawyers took part in the discussion.

The intrinsic value of such meetings lies in initiating a discussion between Sharia’ lawyers and Sharia’ Court judges to develop recommendations for enhancing the performance of Sharia’ courts for the interests of women. In addition, these meetings are considered a form of networking with Sharia’ courts.

The workshop concluded with the following recommendations:
- Increase the complementary relationship between Sharia’ Judges and lawyers.
- To emphasize the continuity of such meetings between Sharia’ lawyers and judges.

In 2010, the Economic, Social and Cultural Rights Unit implemented all activities set out in its annual plan. The activities focused on two important issues: 1) Ongoing monitoring of the comprehensive closure imposed on the oPt, especially Gaza Strip, 2) The continuous military operations which Israeli forces conduct throughout the Gaza Strip, especially in areas near the border and 3) Monitoring the repercussions of the political division on the economic, social and cultural aspects of Palestinian residents of the oPt. The unit contributed in many ways to the documentation of violations and the consequences of the Israeli occupation on the civilian Palestinian population in terms of the deterioration of their social, economic and cultural rights. The researchers in the unit also focused on pursuing all developments in the field related to the social, economic and cultural rights of the Palestinian civilians and their continuous suffering due to the absence of tangible opportunities to rebuild Gaza Strip two years after the Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip.

The unit also monitored, researched and documented the social, economic and cultural rights in the oPt in general and specifically in the Gaza Strip. The Training Unit

The Training Unit has carried out the activities set out in its 2010 annual plan, despite the complicated circumstances in the oPt. Educating people on human rights and democracy has not been affected by the devastation caused by the systematic violations perpetrated by Israeli forces. Concurrently, the international community continues to evade responsibility for holding Israeli forces accountable for their crimes as Israeli war criminals escape punishment and the European governments' apply a double standard to the situation in the oPt.

The situation is worsened by the political division and conflict in the oPt which permeates into all aspects of Palestinians' lives. Large-scale human rights violations in Palestinian society cause a deterioration to government institutions and serve as an impediment to democracy. All this has fragmented the Palestinian political system into two separate governments; each with its own security forces, police, judicial and legislative authorities.

All of these issues cause human rights undermined. The process of educating people on democracy and human rights has been impeded. In return, this has increased the burdens on human rights advocates to restore the culture of human rights among the Palestinian people. Despite all of these impediments, the training unit accomplished its annual plan due to its good connections with NGOs throughout the Gaza Strip and networking with new institutions throughout the year.

Conducting Training Courses on Human Rights and Democracy for 400 Persons, including male and female graduates, volunteers in civil society organizations, lawyers, journalists, women, and civil society activists.

Seventeen activities were implemented to accomplish this output. The unit's strategy of networking with other institutions and civil society organizations helped in carrying out the unit's activities. Five activities were carried out at host institutions in remote areas. The unit plans to continue this outreach strategy in the future and to connect with new institutions as well.

- Good attendance.
- Commitment to the rules of discussion and respect for others’ opinions were good.
- Training places were appropriate, with two exceptions.
- Sessions were short.
- Handouts were useful, especially the training manual.

Tracing effects on trainers at personal and professional levels

Although it was difficult to trace effects of training on trainers at the personal and professional levels, the unit noted the following:
- Three young female lawyers who participated in training courses were selected to work in a project of Women’s Rights Unit to train lawyers on litigation before Sharia’ Courts.
- Twenty-eight young lawyers who participated in training courses obtained licenses to practice in the Sharia’ legal profession and females were appointed to receive training at the Women’s Unit in PCHR.
- A number of trainees expressed their wish to work as volunteers in PCHR.
- At least 45 persons who received training visited PCHR in 2009.
- A number of trainees participated in other PCHR activities after the training.
- Twenty-eight school teachers who received training at PCHR organized visits to PCHR’s offices for at least 736 school children and student unions.
- Directors of a number of other organizations stated to the Unit Director that the employees who received training acquired more knowledge and experience and their relations with their colleagues and organizations improved and expressed their wish to attend more courses.

- Three exhibitions on human rights were organized at UNRWA schools.

Informing people about human rights violations and referring victims to PCHR

Despite the obstacles in monitoring violations in 2010, the unit received information from trainees on human rights violations in at least thirty-one (31) cases. Twelve (12) trainees personally came to PCHR to report a human rights violation. Seven (7) others accompanied victims to PCHR.

Participation in PCHR’s activities

Many trainees participated in PCHR’s activities as follows:
- A number of trainees participated in workshops and conferences organized by PCHR.
- Some trainees assisted PCHR in organizing 3 training courses at their own institutions.
- Providing assistance by informing PCHR about human rights violations and some of them accompanied victims to PCHR.
- A number of trainees invited PCHR’s staff members to deliver lectures or participate in meetings.
Trainees’ initiatives

Trainees made a number of initiatives:
- Trainees coordinated 28 visits for school children and student committees to PCHR’s offices.
- A number of trainees invited PCHR staff members to deliver speeches in workshops organized by their organizations.
- A number of trainees informed PCHR about human rights violations and escorted victims to PCHR’s offices.
- A number of trainees expressed a desire to volunteer at PCHR.
- A number of trainees worked as volunteers in human rights programs in community-based societies.
- Trainees organized 14 lectures for parents, students and teachers at UNRWA.
- Organizing a number of activities on the International Day for Human Rights which included, exhibitions and festivals in which PCHR staff were invited to deliver speeches in these activities.

Requests for organizing training courses

In 2010, the unit received 31 requests from a number of civil society organizations to organize training courses for their members on human rights and democracy and to be invited to participate in activities organized by PCHR. They also requested that their institutions be included in the network of organizations which PCHR contacts and involves in training courses.

Issuing News Releases Related to the Unit’s Activities

In 2010, the unit issued 14 press releases and published 17 news reports covering its activities in PCHR’s Alminzar. The unit activities were also covered by local newspapers.

Output (2)

Rising Awareness of 250 Individuals about the Rights Ensured by International Human Rights Law

Through this activity, the unit seeks to introduce human rights concepts, establish relations with civil society groups and increase the number of people who benefit from training activities organized by PCHR. As the unit is bound by the activities set out in its annual plan, it cannot accept all invitations by civil society groups to organize training courses.

In 2010, the unit carried out 14 activities, including holding training sessions, workshops and raising awareness lectures. Each session lasted between 1-2 hours and covered a variety of topics such as: children’s rights, political participation, universal jurisdiction and the human rights covering development. There were 245 participants from various sectors such as: teachers, representatives of community-based societies, senior local figures and university students. The Health Committees Union and the Creative Women's Society were among the top 2 organizations who collaborated with the training unit.

Maintaining a Network of Trainees (Friends of PCHR Club)

To ensure the continuation of a relationship between PCHR and the trainees, the unit make efforts to maintain contact with trainees who receive training. In this way, PCHR encourages them to get involved in the defense of human rights and democracy. To achieve this, the unit carried out the following activities.

The unit gathered the contact details of 300 trainees. The list includes names, place of residence, workplace, telephone numbers, e-mails, applicable institutions and the dates and location of courses. PCHR benefits from this network of relationships with the trainees. The activities implemented by the trainees include the following:

1. Contributing to PCHR activities through correspondence via emails to update them on PCHR publications and activities.
2. Trainees visit and volunteer with PCHR.
3. Trainees invite PCHR staff to deliver speeches at workshops, conferences and meetings organized by the institutions where the trainees work.
4. Attending workshops and conferences organized by PCHR.
5. Assisting in organizing 3 training courses conducted by the unit throughout the year and also by urging their own institutions to organize courses for them in cooperation with PCHR. Courses were held in Rafah, Jabalia and Gaza City.
6. Reporting violations, either by phone or coming in person to PCHR with victims.
7. Holding a celebration and an exhibition on human rights in Alnusairat on 11 Dec., 2010 and another one on 15 Dec., 2010. The Deputy Manager delivered a speech at these festivals which were organized by human rights teachers in Alnusairat. Three other exhibitions were set up in other locations across the Gaza Strip.
8. Organizing 28 field visits to PCHR for student parliaments in elementary and middle schools. The delegations consisted of 36 students and the visits last form 1-1.5 hours during which they are debriefed...
Activities of PCHR’s Units on PCHR’s mission as well as answering the students questions. The following is a table listing the details of the visits.

Networking with Civil Society Organizations through Training Activities

The unit increases awareness of PCHR with civil society organizations through participation in training activities organized by these organizations. The unit receives many invitations from governmental and non-governmental organizations to organize training courses for their members, to deliver lectures on human rights and democracy or designing training programs due. These requests illustrate the unit’s reputation for professionalism.

The unit accepted invitations from community-based societies to deliver lectures and to conduct training sessions on human rights. The unit implemented 19 activities at organizations and institutions in various places across Gaza Strip, namely Kana Educational Institute, the Creative Woman Society and UNRWA Schools where 564 trainees participated.

Q&A Guide to Human Rights

The unit published an updated training guide which is distributed to all trainees. It included articles from international conventions on human rights which are well-known. This edition has been updated by adding more international conventions and is in the process of printing.
International Unit

The unit’s work is predominantly focused on strengthening PCHR’s external capabilities: improving relations with other organizations, increasing PCHR’s profile and output on the international stage.

The International Unit’s work may be classified into six, often overlapping components:

1. International Legal Work,
2. Publications,
3. International Advocacy,
4. Coordination with national and international organizations,
5. Supporting other units in PCHR, and
6. Supplementary Activities.

1. International Legal Work

The International Unit works closely with PCHR’s Legal Unit to develop and enhance PCHR’s activities with respect to the pursuit of justice through international mechanisms. In particular, in light of the inadequacies of the Israeli legal system, and the Palestinian Authority’s lack of jurisdiction over Israeli citizens, PCHR has turned to universal jurisdiction. This international focus is based on two underlying motivations. First, PCHR seeks to ensure victims’ legitimate rights to an effective judicial remedy. This right is codified in Article 2 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and constitutes the cornerstone of international justice. Second, PCHR firmly believes that the rule of law offers the most appropriate mechanism of securing and protecting individual’s rights. However, if the rule of law is to be relevant, it must be enforced. By pursuing international justice, including through universal jurisdiction cases, PCHR seeks to hold accountable those who commit international crimes. This serves to combat the pervasive culture of impunity, and to promote and strengthen respect for the rule of law.

In 2010, the International Unit cooperated closely with PCHR’s Legal Unit, in particular: the preparation of two petitions to the Israeli High Court of Justice, evaluating the possibility of taking thematic cases to Israeli Courts and coordinating and preparing universal jurisdiction cases for litigation in other jurisdictions.

» Verifiable Indicators

– Progress of current legal cases.
– Development of new legal opportunities.
– Increased international coordination and cooperation.
– Increased awareness on the utility and necessity of universal jurisdiction.

» Output

– On 13 April 2010, the Spanish Supreme Court upheld the previous decision of the Audencia Nacional (National Court, 30 June 2009), to close the investigation into the Al-Daraj attack of July 2002, which resulted in the killing of 14 civilians, the injury of over a 100, and the extensive destruction of civilian property not justified by military necessity. PCHR, along with international legal counterparts, are currently preparing to appeal this decision before the Spanish Constitutional Court.
From 15-17 October, 2010, PCHR hosted a landmark conference on ‘the rule of law and universal jurisdiction’ in Malaga, Spain. This conference brought together a number of leading experts, practitioners, lawyers, international human rights organizations and members of civil society, to evaluate previous experiences regarding universal jurisdiction and to strategize for the future. The meeting was a follow-up to a similar conference, organized by PCHR, in Malaga in 2006.

PCHR continues to consolidate and develop an international network of lawyers dedicated to the Centre’s universal jurisdiction work. Over 2010 significant progress was made in this regard.

The introduction of an International Legal Officer acting for PCHR, has also had a significant benefit with respect to the coordination of international legal activity.

Currently, contacts are being established with the aim of mounting opposition to proposed changes to the UK’s universal jurisdiction law, in particular the arrest warrant procedure. This change would severely constrain – if not terminate – PCHR’s universal jurisdiction work in the UK. Contacts have been made and coalitions formed with, amongst others, parliamentarians, international and national human rights organizations, other legal networks.

The publication of an in-depth report ‘The Principle and Practice of Universal Jurisdiction: PCHR’s work in the occupied Palestinian territory’. This report explains the evolution of universal jurisdiction and its practice in the modern-era. Specific attention is paid to PCHR’s universal jurisdiction activities, including the Centre’s case history. The report is intended to increase awareness of both the principle and practice of universal jurisdiction, and effectively counter opponents of universal jurisdiction. The report also contains an extensive analysis of the elements of crimes which form the basis for universal jurisdiction.

2. Publications

The International Unit produces a number of publications and press releases. During the reporting period, PCHR also prepared a number of reports to assist with the ‘Goldstone process’, in particular ‘Genuinely Unwilling: An Update’ which was submitted to the UN Committee of Independent Experts in August 2010.

3. International Advocacy

PCHR’s international advocacy work intends to increase international understanding of the human rights situation in the occupied Palestinian territory. This work is focused on two audiences. First, it intends to address governments directly, ensuring that they are informed of the reality in the oPt, and urging them to take action. Second, it addresses civil society. This form of advocacy is intended to mobilise popular support behind the Palestinian cause, and to generate domestic pressure on politicians and governments.

With respect to International Advocacy, a substantial part of the International Unit’s work in 2010 focused on supporting the process begun with the Report of the UN Fact Finding Mission on the Gaza Conflict (the Goldstone Report). To this end, PCHR participated at two sessions of the UN Human Rights Council, prepared a number of publications (in particular, Genuinely Unwilling, Genuinely Unwilling: An Update, and Ensuring Respect for the Fourth Geneva Convention). A substantial amount of information was also collated, prepared and submitted to the UN Committee of Experts.
