Palestinian Centre for Human Rights

The Centre is an independent Palestinian human rights organization (registered as a non-profit Ltd. Company) based in Gaza City. The Centre enjoys Consultative Status with the ECOSOC of the United Nation. It is an affiliate of the International Commission of Jurists-Geneva; the International Federation for Human Rights (FIDH) – Pairs; member of the Euro-Mediterranean Human Rights Network – Copenhagen; member of the International Legal Assistance Consortium (ILAC) – Stockholm; member of the Arab Organization for Human Rights – Cairo; and member of the World Coalition against the Death Penalty – Rome. It is a recipient of the 1996 French Republic Award on Human Rights, the 2002 Bruno Kreisky Award for Outstanding Achievements in the Area of Human Rights and the 2003 International Service Human Rights Award (UNAIS). The Centre was established in 1995 by a group of Palestinian lawyers and human rights activists in order to:

- Protect human rights and promote the rule of law in accordance with international standards.
- Create and develop democratic institutions and an active civil society, while promoting democratic culture within Palestinian society.
- Support all the efforts aimed at enabling the Palestinian people to exercise its inalienable rights in regard to self-determination and independence in accordance with international Law and UN resolutions.

The work of the Centre is conducted through documentation and investigation of human rights violations, provision of legal aid and counseling for both individuals and groups, and preparation of research articles relevant to such issues as the human rights situation and the rule of law. The Centre also provides comments on Palestinian Draft Laws and urges the adoption of legislation that incorporates international human rights standards and basic democratic principles. To achieve its goals, the Centre has recruited a committed staff of well-known human rights lawyers and activists.

The Philosophy of the Centre’s Work

The Centre determined after a thorough legal assessment of the peace accords signed by the PLO and the Israeli government that the occupation would continue both physically and legally. According to these agreements Israel has redeployed its forces inside the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, while Israeli settlements and military installations maintain their presence in Palestinian territory. The major legal aspects of the Israeli occupation remain in place. Israeli military orders that safeguard Israeli control over the Palestinian people and their land remain valid in accordance with the peace agreement. The Israeli military court is still functioning and to this day thousands of Palestinians languish in Israeli prisons. The essential elements of the Palestinian issue remain unresolved - the right to self-determination, the right to an independent Palestinian state with its capital in Jerusalem, the right of return for Palestinian refugees, and the right to remove illegal Israeli settlements from the Occupied Territories. All of these constitute basic unfulfilled rights of the Palestinian people. In light of this wide-ranging disregard for Palestinian rights, the Centre concludes it must continue its work to protect Palestinian human rights from ongoing violations by the Israeli government and courts.

The peace accords and the major political changes resulting from the agreement, including the establishment of the Palestinian National Authority in part of the Occupied Territories, has led to a vital and active role for the Centre in protecting civil and political rights and in promoting the development of democratic institutions, an active civil society, and a democratic legal system in Palestine.

Work Units of the Centre

The Centre is composed of specialised working units which carry out their activities in an autonomous but integrated manner.

Field Work Unit

The field work is considered the basic activity of the Centre. Well-trained field workers located in different areas of the Gaza Strip obtain accurate and documented legal information on human rights violations in the Gaza Strip. They gather information in the field from victims and witnesses of human rights violations. The information is received by the co-ordinator of the unit and other researchers to verify accuracy. Through the field workers’ presence in the field the Centre has been able to maintain close contacts with the community. In this way, the community is able to influence the work of the Centre and the Centre is able to meet the community’s interests and demands.

Legal Unit

This unit is composed primarily of a team of lawyers who give free legal aid and counselling to individuals and groups. The unit also carries out legal intervention with concerned bodies and makes legal representations before courts in cases that involve broad principles of human rights that affect not just the individual before the court but the community as a whole. Furthermore, the unit attempts to support the independence of the judiciary and the rule of law.

Democratic Development Unit

This unit specialises in the promotion of democracy and the promotion of civil society and the rule of law. The unit’s team carries out research and organises workshops and seminars to discuss issues on human rights and democracy. The unit’s team also prepares comments on draft laws prepared by the Palestinian Authority in an effort to influence the decision-making process and the adoption of democratic laws. The unit has been also involved in providing training on human rights and democracy for youth groups.

Economic and Social Rights Unit

This unit seeks to ensure the importance of economic and social rights through research and study. Such work is particularly important because it tends to be neglected, to some extent, by other human rights organisations. To achieve its goals the unit conducts studies, workshops, and seminars that focus attention on economic and social rights in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. The unit seeks to develop recommendations and standards for each of these rights to be fulfilled in the Palestinian situation. Moreover, the unit reviews and assesses the legislation and draft laws pertaining to these rights adopted by the Palestinian Authority in an effort to secure legislation that is in harmony with international standards. The unit further seeks to provide an informative training base for governmental and non-governmental personnel who are empowered to set plans and implement programs and policies relevant to these rights. The goal of such training is to help bring economic and social rights into alignment with the standards accepted internationally and to ensure the maximum degree of implementation of these rights.
Woman Rights Unit

This Unit was established as a pilot project in May of 1997 for one year, renewable upon assessment of its accomplishments. The initial project was established after a thorough and comprehensive study of the conditions of Palestinian women and the work of women’s institutions in the Gaza Strip. The Unit aims to provide legal aid for women and women's organisations. Intervention on behalf of women in Shari’a courts is included in its mandate. The Unit further aims to raise awareness of women’s rights established by international human rights conventions and to raise the awareness of Palestinian women in regard to their rights under local law. Finally, the Unit is carrying out studies on Palestinian women and the law, while supporting the amendment of local laws inconsistent with women's rights.

The Training Unit

The Training Unit is a main instrument in PCHR's work in disseminating and developing a human rights culture, and promoting democratic concepts in the local community with all its various segments. The Unit organizes and holds training courses and workshops in order to develop theoretical knowledge and provide professional skills that can contribute to a real change in the behavior of the society, which in turn can promote respect for, and protection of human rights and participation in community building. The target groups of the training courses and workshops are particularly the youth, including university students, activists of political parties, lawyers, media, union members, and other civil society groups.

The Library

The Centre has established a specialised legal library in subjects related to local and international law, human rights, and democracy. The library includes books and periodicals in both Arabic and English and includes all Palestinian laws and Israeli military orders. Documents pertaining to laws of neighbouring Arab countries are also available. Furthermore, the library includes a variety of books and periodicals detailing the Palestinian question and the Arab-Israeli conflict. The library is open for the free use of researchers, academics, and students.

Funding of the Centre

The Centre is funded by the generous contributions of a number of international non-governmental organizations in the fields of human rights, democracy, and social justice and a number of Governments which has friendly relationships with the Palestinian people. PCHR highly appreciates the contributions of funding organizations, especially:

- Al Maqdese for Society Development

The Palestinian Centre for Human Rights is an independent legal body dedicated to the protection of human rights, the promotion of the rule of law, and the upholding of democratic principles in the Occupied Territories. Most of the Centre's activities and interests concentrate on the Gaza Strip due to the restriction on movement between the West Bank and Gaza Strip imposed by the Israeli government and its military apparatus.

Introduction

This report documents the outcome of the activities carried out by the Palestinian Centre for Human Rights (PCHR) in 2012. PCHR has been publishing Annual Reports since 1997.
PCHR’s 2013 Annual Report is divided into two sections:

Part One
provides a comprehensive picture of the human rights situation in the occupied Palestinian territory (oPt) from 01 January to 31 December 2013. It is divided into two sub-sections:
1. Violations of international human rights and humanitarian law perpetrated by the Israeli forces in the oPt; and
2. Human rights violations perpetrated by the Palestinian National Authority (PNA) and obstacles to democratic reform in the PNA.

Part Two
documents all PCHR’s activities from 1 January to 31 December 2013. It covers activities by PCHR and its units at both the local and international levels over the year.

PCHR’s 2013 financial report, which is prepared by an independent professional auditing institution, will be published as a separate document.

Like previous reports, PCHR hopes that this report will contribute to the struggle for human rights by providing a comprehensive picture of the human rights situation in the oPt. It also hopes that relevant parties will follow the recommendations mentioned in this report, particularly those which are directed to the international community and the PNA. This report serves as a guide for PCHR’s future work and also reflects PCHR’s strong belief in the importance of transparency for a non-profit, non-governmental organization that provides services to the community. It should also serve as a call for victims of human rights violations to approach PCHR for advice and assistance.
PART (1)
HUMAN RIGHTS
SITUATION IN THE OPT
The year 2013 was one of the worst years at the level of the human rights situation, not necessarily from the perspective of the number of victims, but in light of the deterioration of the national cause. Both local and international interest in the major issues related to the Palestinian cause, especially ending the Israeli occupation of the oPt and allowing the Palestinian people to practice their right to self-determination, which is ensured under the International Bill of Human Rights. Such interest shifted to daily humanitarian issues related to subsistence.

In the Gaza Strip, Israeli forces continued to impose tightened restrictions on the movement of persons and goods, creating a man-made crisis. Interest was limited to issues related to the provision of basic humanitarian needs, such as food, water and electricity supplies. PCHR has always warned of the institutionalization of the closure imposed by Israel, and the international community’s satisfaction by alleged facilitations by Israeli forces, while collective punishment measures against the Palestinian civilian population continued for the 7th consecutive year.

In the West Bank, Israeli forces created an apartheid system under which they controlled Palestinian lands; confiscated water resources; expanded settlements; confiscated property; fully protected Israeli settlers who often attack Palestinian civilians and property; made efforts to create a Jewish demographic majority in Jerusalem; imposed severe restrictions on movement; killed, wounded and arrested Palestinian civilians; and committed other violations of human rights.

While Israeli forces continue to commit serious violations of human rights, they have continued to deny Palestinian victims their right to justice and compensation through the Israeli legal system, and prevent access of Palestinian victims to justice through imposing financial and legal obstacles. Therefore, Palestinians resort to universal jurisdiction. Undoubtedly, the international silence towards such crimes and the international community’s failure to apply the international law, including the international humanitarian law, especially the Geneva Convention Relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, encourage Israel to continue to challenge the international law and act as a state above the law.

At the internal Palestinian level, developments were disappointing contrary to expectations and hopes for achieving reconciliation by the beginning of 2013 and the overwhelming positive atmosphere at that period. The internal division continued and even deepened in the Palestinian political regime. Under these circumstances, the human rights situation deteriorated further. In the Gaza Strip, more restrictions were imposed on public liberties, including the right to freedom of movement, the right to freedom and expression, the right to freedom of association and the right to peaceful assembly. Security forces continued also to summon and arrest activists of Fatah Movement and subject them to torture and inhuman and degrading treatment. In 2013, more death sentences were issued, while already issued sentences were executed. Additionally, the year witnessed more attacks related to the proliferation of weapons and the state of lawlessness, due to which more Palestinians were killed or injured.

In the West Bank, security services continued to summon and arrest activists of Hamas, the Islamic Jihad and other factions. PCHR observed also imposing more restrictions on public liberties, including the right to freedom of opinion and expression, the right to freedom of association and the right to peaceful assembly. Additionally, the year witnessed more attacks related to the proliferation of weapons and the state of lawlessness, due to which more Palestinians were killed or injured.

In light of some positive signs at the end of 2013, especially statements by the Prime Minister in Gaza, Ismail Haniya, that his government was willing to conclude Palestinian national reconciliation and that 2014 would be the year of reconciliation, PCHR hope that these statements will be on the right direction and will be followed by practical steps and measures by both parties of the division to achieve reconciliation, end the division, restore the dignity of Palestinian governance institutions and achieve Palestinian national unity in order to restore respect for the executive, legislature and judiciary, and continue the struggle to realize the right to self-determination and the establishment of an independent Palestinian State.
In 2013, the Israeli forces continued to commit war crimes and human rights violations against Palestinian civilians and their property throughout the oPt. Whereas the closure, which has been ongoing for more than six years, was the clearest manifestation of human rights violations against the Gaza Strip, the fierce settlement activities and attacks by Israeli settlers were the clearest manifestation of human rights violations in the West Bank, including occupied Jerusalem. The Israeli forces further committed more crimes of willful killing and violations of the right to life. Additionally, they continued to arrest Palestinians and subject them to torture methods and degrading treatment. PCHR documented many cases of destruction of civilian property, including houses. Moreover, the Israeli forces continued to construct the annexation wall inside the West Bank territory.

1. Willful Killings and Other Violations of the Right to Life and Personal Security

In 2013, Israeli forces committed more crimes and violations of the right to life and personal security against Palestinian civilians in the oPt. The number of Palestinians who were killed by Israeli forces was 46 victims in circumstances where no threats were posed to the lives of Israeli soldiers. Five of these victims died of wounds they had sustained in previous years. Of the total number of victims, there were 41 civilians, 33 of whom were in the West Bank and 8 ones in the Gaza Strip, including 6 children, 2 women; and 5 non-civilians including one in the West Bank and the other 4 ones in the Gaza Strip. In 2013, 496 Palestinians sustained various wounds, 430 of whom were in the West Bank and 66 others in the Gaza Strip, including 142 children and 10 women.

Thus, the number of persons, who were killed by the Israeli forces and settlers from 2000 to the end of 2013, increased to 7,032 persons, including 5,455 civilians (77.5%), 3,597 of whom were in the Gaza Strip and 1,839 in the West Bank. The civilian victims included 1,328 children (24.5%); 959 children in the Gaza Strip and 368 children in the West Bank. Besides, 282 women were killed (5%), including 221 women in Gaza and 61 ones in the West Bank. Tens of thousands were wounded during the Intifada, the majority of whom were civilians; and hundreds of the wounded suffered from permanent disabilities.

According to investigations conducted PCHR, testimonies of eyewitnesses and evidences, it was undoubtedly proven that the Israeli forces used excessive and disproportionate force against the Palestinian civilians protected according to the international humanitarian law. They also did not consider the principles of distinction between civilian and military targets, and proportion in responding to the other military force. It was also clear that the Israeli forces conducted reprisal acts against Palestinian civilians. Those civilians were killed in circumstances that did not pose any threat to the lives of the Israeli soldiers.

1. One of whom was killed in Israel.
2. Mohammed Rabah Assi was killed on 22 October in an armed clash with Israeli forces in Bilin village, west of Ramallah. Assi had been wanted to the Israeli forces.
3. 4 persons were killed in an armed clash with Israeli soldiers in the border area.
2. Ongoing Policy of Total Closure and Violation of the Right to Freedom of Movement

In 2013, Israeli forces continued to impose a tightened closure on the Gaza Strip. The closure resulted in the aggravation of the humanitarian situation and consequently the emergence of serious indicators relevant to poverty, unemployment and food security especially for children. In addition, the economic and social conditions were negatively affected by the Israeli policy that succeeded in undermining any real chances to revive the Gaza Strip economy. This systematic policy reflected a constant violation of the right of the Palestinians to an adequate standard of living, including health, education, the right to work, social security and the right to adequate shelter. Statistics of 2013 indicate that the so-called easing of the Israeli closure is artificial and aimed to the institutionalization of the closure in a clear violation of the international humanitarian law. Facts reveal that such limited easing will not contribute to putting an end to the suffering of Palestinians who have experienced 7 years of closure. The right way to deal with the closure is to admit its illegality and that it constitutes a form of collective punishment, to immediately put an end to it, and to remove all restrictions imposed on the freedom of movement and allow the free movement of goods from and to the Gaza Strip.

In the West Bank, Israeli forces have continued to restrict the movement of civilians between cities, as well as at international crossing points. Israel has continued its practice of closing off occupied East Jerusalem to Palestinian civilians from elsewhere in the oPt; entry to East Jerusalem is banned for Palestinians from the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. As a result, Palestinians have been denied access to advanced medical care, their right to meet with family members, and access to education, work, and religious sites in East Jerusalem, in particular, the al-Aqsa Mosque.

3. Arrests, Torture and Other Forms of Cruel and Inhuman Treatment

At least 4,800 Palestinians are in Israeli custody in prisons and detention facilities, most of which are inside Israel, in a clear violation of article 76 of the Fourth Geneva Convention, which stipulates: “Protected persons accused of offences shall be detained in the occupied country, and if convicted they shall serve their sentences therein.” Among the detainees there are 162 children and 17 women. In addition, there are 30 Palestinians who were arrested before the Oslo Accords in 1993, including 15 prisoners who served over 25 years in prison. The detention conditions of Palestinian prisoners seriously deteriorated. They are subjected to inhumane and degrading treatment, including naked searches, night raids, medical negligence and torture. Such measures caused the death of a prisoner while being interrogated in 2013.

In the West Bank, Israeli forces arrested hundreds of Palestinians during Israeli incursions, arrest campaigns at checkpoints, and campaigns conducted to arrest wanted persons. In the Gaza Strip, Israeli forces continued to arrest more Palestinians in the access-restricted areas along the eastern and northern border of the Gaza Strip, at sea, and at the Beit Hanoun (‘Erez’) crossing in the north of the Gaza Strip. PCHR documented the arrests of 2,415 Palestinians by Israeli forces in 2013, the vast majority of whom were from the West Bank; 2,3205 Palestinians were arrested in the West Bank, and 95 ones were arrested in the Gaza Strip. The Palestinian prisoners suffer due to medical negligence in the Israeli prisons. Israeli authorities in prisons do not offer adequate medical treatment to hundreds of patients when needed, due to which, the prisoners’ health conditions deteriorate and lead to death. In 2013, 3 prisoners died in the Israeli prisons; one of whom died in suspicious circumstances that he was tortured while he was being interrogated, while the other 2 died due to medical negligence and denial of their right to receive medical treatment and health care.

4. Attacks on Journalists

In 2013, Israeli forces continued to attack journalists, disregarding the protection extended to journalists under international law. It is evident that attacks on journalists by Israeli forces, which violate the right of journalists to personal security as they carry out their work, are part of a campaign to isolate the oPt from the rest of the world and prevent the media from covering crimes committed against civilians by Israeli forces. PCHR documented other attacks on journalists during 2013, the most prominent of which were in the West Bank. The types of attacks included: firing at journalists; beating and other forms of cruel, inhuman, and degrading treatment; detention of journalists; denying journalists access to certain areas; confiscation of and/or damaging journalistic equipment; and raids on media offices and the homes of journalists.

5. Destruction of Civilian Property

In 2013, the Israeli forces continued to systematically demolish Palestinian civilian property in the oPt, especially in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem. PCHR documented the demolition of 199 houses in the West Bank in 2013, including 70 houses in East Jerusalem, 14 of which were demolished by their owners, and 129 others were demolished in other areas throughout the West Bank. PCHR also documented the demolition of 206 civilian facilities used for non-residential purposes such as barracks, stores, fences, tents, roads and electricity networks, including 47 facilities in Jerusalem.

According to the United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA), Israeli forces demolished 663 civilian facilities, including 98 ones in occupied East Jerusalem and 565 in area (C), including the Jordan Valley.

In the Gaza Strip, Israeli forces destroyed 6 houses in 2013, one of which was completely destroyed while the other 5 ones sustained partial damage. Those houses sheltered 8 families consisting of 38 persons, including 16 children. Israeli forces used air raids to attack houses, damaging 13 of them.

6. Settlement Activities and Attacks by Settlers against Palestinian Civilians and Property

The Israeli government, its occupation forces and settlers living in the oPt in violation of international law have continued the expansion of settlements in the West Bank. Armed Israeli settlers, protected by Israeli forces, have also continued to commit crimes against Palestinian civilians and property. In 2013, Israeli settlers escalated their attacks against Palestinian civilians and property, and they and the Israeli forces launched some joint attacks against Palestinian civilians.

Israeli settlement activities in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, clearly violate international humanitarian law and international resolutions. In spite of increasing international criticism to Israeli settlement activities in the oPt, the Israeli government escalated these activities allegedly to meet the needs of natural growth of settlers. PCHR emphasizes that the Palestinian territory (the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, and the Gaza Strip) is an occupied territory according to the international humanitarian law and the international legitimacy resolutions. Therefore, PCHR has persistently called upon the international community to immediately intervene to compel the Israeli government to stop all settlement activities in the oPt, especially in East Jerusalem, and dismantle Israeli settlements, which constitute a war crime under international humanitarian law.

The Israeli government and its occupation forces have continued the construction of settlements in East Jerusalem and its suburbs in the context of efforts to create a Jewish majority in the city. They have cut off East Jerusalem from the West Bank, constructed new sections of the annexation wall, and continued activities of settlement expansion in and around the city. The Israeli Municipality of Jerusalem has continued to demolish Palestinian houses under the pretext of the lack of construction licenses. In 2013, there was an escalation in the demolition of homes and civilian property, and an increasing number of demolition notices were delivered to Palestinian civilians in East Jerusalem and its suburbs.

7. The Annexation Wall in the West Bank

In 2013, following the completion of the majority of the annexation wall from the northern, western and southern sides of the West Bank, it was planned to build a section of the wall along the Jordan River. In early November 2013, Benjamin Netanyahu, Israeli Prime Minister, issued instructions to quickly set plans for the construction of the wall along the border with Jordan in order to complete this project as soon as possible, especially if the negotiations with the Palestinians failed. According to Maariv newspaper’s website, Netanyahu instructed the army and competent authorities in Israel to quickly prepare the plans. He justified the construction of the wall along the Jordanian border by securing the Israeli settlements in the Jordan Valley and other areas in the West Bank, especially in light of the increase in the number of Syrian refugees in Jordan. He considered the “presence of around 700,000 refugees would threaten the security of Israel in the future as they would be able to sneak into Israel through the border.” Netanyahu also wanted to highlight a basic point which is sending a clear message to the Palestinian leadership that Israel would not withdraw from the Jordan Valley even if the negotiations failed.

8. The Absence of Justice in the Israeli Legal System

Israeli authorities have continued to impose obstacles to deny the Palestinian victims access to their right to justice and remedy. After almost a year following the Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip in November 2013 “Operation Pillar of Defence” and over 4 years following “Operation Cast Lead” in 2008-2009, Palestinian victims have been waiting for their right to justice and judicial remedy to be realized. The Israeli authorities imposed legal, material and financial obstacles in order to shield the Israeli war criminals.

An amendment to the legislation, Amendment No. 8 to the Israeli Tort Law (Liability of the State) of 1952, which was approved by the Israeli Knesset on 16 July 2012, exempts the State of Israel of any liability arising from damages caused to a resident of an enemy territory during a ‘combat action’ or ‘military operation’. This amendment disregards the vital question of the legality of these attacks. It also ignores the damage caused to the victims as a result of such attacks, potentially violating rules governing the conduct of armed forces during military operations, as prescribed under international humanitarian law. Amendment No. 8 directly contravenes the norms of customary international law, which hold that a State is responsible for all acts committed by persons who are operating as part of its armed forces. The Israeli legal system is used to shield suspected Israeli war criminals from justice.
For the seventh consecutive year, the internal political conflict and separation between the West Bank and the Gaza Strip have been a major factor that led to further deterioration of the human rights situation. The political division has negatively impacted all components of the Palestinian political system and all aspects of life in the Palestinian society. In spite of the positive atmosphere at the internal level after the Israeli military offensive on the Gaza Strip in November 2012, the year ended without any serious steps having been taken to end the political division. PCHR wishes that serious and effective steps will be taken on the ground to accelerate the Palestinian national reconciliation.

1. Violation of the Right to Life and Attacks on Personal Security

In 2013, there were continued violations of the right to life and personal security due to the misuse of weapons, as well as violations of the rule of the law in the oPt. PCHR documented the killing of at least 44 people (29 in the Gaza Strip and 11 in the West Bank), including 7 children and 5 women. More than 100 people were wounded. Violations of the right to life and personal security were perpetrated in the following contexts: the excessive use of force by law enforcement officials; illegal use of weapons; the use of weapons in personal and familial disputes, murders motivated by “family honor.”

2. Arrests, Torture and Other Forms of Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment

In 2013, security services in Ramallah and Gaza continued to wage campaigns of arrests and summonses that are conducted illegally or in a way that reflects the arbitrary use of law. Most of those summonses and arrests were carried out on political grounds due to the continuation of the political split in the Palestinian Authority for more than six years. PCHR also received increasing numbers of complaints about civilians who were subjected to torture and other forms of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment during interrogation. In addition to the political arrests, we can clearly notice arrests on criminal grounds, the accompanying defect in the legal procedures for arrests and the practice of torture and humiliation during interrogation in detention centres of the security services in the West Bank and Gaza.

In 2013, PCHR received and followed increasing numbers of complaints and cases in which civilians claimed that they were subjected to torture during interrogations. Many of these complaints were on criminal grounds. PCHR also received other complaints of torture on political grounds and others. A number of those who filed these complaints claimed that they were subjected to various forms of torture, including, but not limited to, insults; beating using batons, sharp tools, feet and hands; tying of detainees’ feet and hands to a chair; and beating with batons or wires. Detainees were also held in cells or small rooms under degrading conditions.
3. Continued Disruption of the Legislature

In 2013, disruption of the Palestinian Legislative Council (PLC) entered its seventh year because of the activities of the Israeli forces against PLC members and the fragmentation in the Palestinian executive since 2007, which caused the complete absence of the PLC, and thus the absence of the legislation and monitoring authority of the PNA.

Israeli authorities continued to take arbitrary measures against PLC members, including arresting and detaining a number of them, most of whom from the Change and Reform Bloc, which represents Hamas. On the other hand, the Palestinian legal system further deteriorated as the Palestinian President continued to issue decree laws in the West Bank under the pretext of the PLC’s absence, and the Change and Reform Bloc continued to pass laws in the Gaza Strip on behalf of the PLC. The PLC’s role of monitoring and accountability remained absent due to the absence of the PLC itself and its monitoring mechanisms.

4. Deterioration of the Judicial Authority

In 2013, the PNA witnessed an escalation of the executive authority’s abuse of its dominance over the judicial authority, which constitutes a blatant violation of the principle of separation of powers as prescribed under article 2 of the Basic Palestinian Law. The political split and conflict within the PNA since June 2007 have affected the judiciary, as two separate judicial systems have been enforced in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. The government in Gaza established a separate system, to which the population in the Gaza Strip is subject, in violation of the Basic Law. On the other hand, the judicial system in the West Bank applies only to those who live in the West Bank. PCHR repeatedly appealed to the concerned parties in Ramallah and Gaza to exclude the judiciary from the ongoing authority conflict. These warnings and pleas, regrettably, were not heeded, and the judiciary was brought into the conflict of authority through a series of measures and decisions taken by both governments in Ramallah and Gaza.

5. Obstruction of General and Local Elections

The fragmentation of the Palestinian executive continues to be the main obstacle to democratic reform. Presidential and legislative elections to renew the legitimacy of the Palestinian people’s representatives, who were elected in 2005 and 2006 respectively, have been obstructed. By the end of 2013, four years had passed since the expiration of the legal terms in office of the Palestinian President and the PLC. The PNA remains unable to hold general elections.

By the end of 2013, there had been still no progress in terms of holding or setting a date for the presidential and legislative elections in the oPt. Ac-
6. For more information and details on the violations of the rights to freedom of opinion and expression in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank, see the PCHR report, 'The right to freedom of opinion and expression and the right to peaceful assembly under the Palestinian Authority during the period (01 September 2012 – 30 September 2013)'.

7. On 30 April 2000, the Palestinian President, Yasser Arafat, in his capacity as Minister of the Interior, issued the Executive Bill of Law (12) of 1998 on Public Meetings in accordance with Article 7 of the law. This regulation imposed many restrictions on the exercise of the right to peaceful assembly and contradicts the clear intention of the Basic Law and the Public Assembly Law to foster democracy by allowing abroad right to public assembly. PCHR believes that the articles of the Executive Bill, and since its issuance, have imposed restrictions on the exercise of the right to peaceful assembly (public meetings) in violation of the law.

The most prominent of these restrictions:

1. Article 6 of the Law gives the right to the police to terminate and disperse any assembly if the police estimates that the assembly is out of its specified objective;
2. Although the Presidential Decree no. 3 of 1998 on Establishing National Unity and Preventing Incitement violated the spirit of the Basic Law because of its general and ambiguous language the executive bill of the Public Assembly Law imposes further, more specific, restrictions on the exercise of the right to peaceful assembly. Article 9 of the executive bill stipulates, “The organizers of the assembly or the demonstration must take into consideration the provisions of the Presidential Decree no. 3 for the year 1998 on Establishing National Unity and Preventing Incitement”;
3. Article 11 of the executive bill states, “The response of the police to the notification referred to in Article 1 of this bill shall be in the form of a written permission in accordance with a formula approved by the chief of the police. It shall be delivered in hand. In accordance with this Article, the objective of the notification is to get permission from the chief of the police; not just to notify the chief of the police. This language clearly creates a precondition for getting his approval or disapproval. The chief of the police was also given the right to determine the subject of the assembly or the objective of the demonstration.

Regarding the local elections, nothing happened in 2013. On 20 October 2012, the PNA held partial local elections in the West Bank.

Although elections are demanded by all national powers and civil society groups, including PCHR, they are not possible without reaching a comprehensive national reconciliation as a precondition for bringing an end to the division and restoring the integrity of the legislative, executive and judicial institutions. Holding elections requires an appropriate electoral environment, including respect for public liberties, release of political prisoners, and lifting the ban imposed on political activities in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

6. Violations of the Right to Freedom of Opinion and Expression

In 2013, the two governments in Ramallah and Gaza, and the security services in their respective areas of control, violated the right to freedom of opinion and expression. The Gaza and Ramallah governments committed violations of this right on the grounds of challenging mainstream opinions or trying to cover certain events that happened in their areas of control. PCHR documented more violations of the rights of journalists, various media workers, editors, and others as well as opinion writers and other civilians. The Gaza government has been denying access and distribution of the West Bank-based newspapers of al-Quds, al-Hayat al-Jadeeda and al-Ayyam, while the West Bank government has been banning distribution and printing of the Gaza-based newspapers of Palestine and al-Risala.

7. Violations of the Right to Peaceful Assembly

The year of 2013 has witnessed continued violations of the right to peaceful assembly in the oPt by both governments in the Gaza Strip and West Bank and their security services. These violations included imposing precautionary measures to prevent and restrict organizing peaceful assemblies in their respective areas of control. Although the end of 2012 and the beginning of 2013 witnessed a positive climate accompanied with positive intentions towards the Palestinian reconciliation, violations of the right to peaceful assembly in the Gaza Strip and West Bank immediately came back due to the defeated hopes of achieving the Palestinian reconciliation. In 2013, the officials in both governments continued to implement official circulars and decisions according to Law (12) of 1998 on Public Meetings, which imposed restrictions on the exercise of the right to peaceful assembly (public meetings) in violation of the law, the most prominent of which is that those who organize the public meetings must obtain a permission from the police or the governor instead of notifying them only according to the law.

8. Violations of the Right to Freedom of Association

The governments in Gaza and Ramallah continued to violate the right to freedom of association in 2013 as part of the impacts of the division since June 2007. The executive authority imposed restrictions and measures to obstruct the associations’ works and confiscate their independence in violation of the law and the PNA’s obligations to respect, protect, and guarantee this right in accordance with the relevant international standards.

In the Gaza Strip, the Ministry of Interior continued to intervene into the affairs of NGOs and civil society organizations to tighten control over them in all ways. The latest measures were the Ministry’s decision no. (98) issued in October 2013 in regards to the elections in the charitable societies and community organizations and decision no. (61) concerning the financial affairs of the charitable societies and community organizations. Both decisions impose new restrictions on the work of associations and NGOs.

In the West Bank, violations of the right to freedom of association continued, and there have been no new legal developments or administrative measures regarding this right. Nothing new came onto the punitive procedures and decisions taken by the government in Ramallah against dozens of associations affiliated to Hamas following the incidents of division in 2007. One hundred and three associations remained closed despite the claims of the civil society organizations to re-open them.

9. Continued Application of the Death Penalty

The death penalty remains a subject of concern for the Palestinian human rights organizations. The Palestinian courts continued to issue new death sentences, most of which were issued in the Gaza Strip. The government in Gaza continued to implement death sentences in violation of law. In addition, no death sentences were implemented in the West Bank.

According to PCHR’s documentation, the death sentences issued by the PNA increased in 2013 compared with 2012, during which 6 sentences were issued. In 2013, the Palestinian courts issued 14 death sentences. Thirteen of the death sentences were issued in the Gaza Strip, and the remaining one was issued in the west Bank. There was a significant decrease in the implementation of death sentences in 2013, especially in the Gaza Strip, compared with 2012, which witnessed the implementation of 6 death sentences. Three people were put to death in the Gaza Strip, two of whom had been sentenced to death on grounds of collaboration with foreign parties and the other one was sentenced on a criminal ground. No death sentences were implemented in the West Bank.

10. Impacts of the Political Division on Economic and Social Rights in the Gaza Strip

In 2013, Palestinian civilians suffered from the continued deterioration of their economic, social and cultural rights due to the continuation of the Palestinian political division and absence of any real prospects to regain the Palestinian political system united in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. Policies and measures taken by the two governments in Ramallah and Gaza have caused serious deterioration to people’s economic and social rights, which had already aggravated due to the continued Israeli occupation of the oPt, the illegal closure imposed on the Gaza Strip since mid-June 2007, and aggressive hostilities, including the military offensive “Operation Pillar of Defence” carried out at the end of 2012. By the end of 2013, humanitarian conditions in the Gaza strip had reached the level of a humanitarian disaster resulting in severe shortages of the electric power supplies, fuel and basic needs. This coincided with the weather depression that hit the oPt. This disaster resulted in further deterioration to people’s daily vital services, including health facilities, access to water services, including drinking water at homes, environmental health services, access to educational institutions and all other vital services.
In light of continued violations by Israeli forces against Palestinian civilians, and the continued Palestinian political split, which had led to the deterioration of human rights and public liberties under the PNA, thus negatively affecting the economic, social, political and legal conditions, PCHR presents the following recommendations to the international community:

Recommendations to the International Community

PCHR emphasizes the international community’s position that the Gaza Strip and the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, are still under the Israeli occupation in spite of the Israeli military redeployment outside the Gaza Strip in 2005. PCHR further confirms that Israeli forces have continued to impose collective punishment measures on the Gaza Strip, which have escalated since the 2006 Palestinian parliamentary elections, in which Hamas won the majority of seats of the Palestinian Legislative Council. PCHR stresses that there is an international recognition of Israel’s obligation to respect international human rights instruments and the international humanitarian law, especially the Hague Regulations concerning the Laws and Customs of War on Land and the Geneva Conventions. Israel is bound to apply the international human rights law and the law of war, sometimes reciprocally and other times in parallel, in a way that achieves the best protection for civilians and remedy for victims.

In light of continued arbitrary measures, land confiscation and settlement activities in the West Bank, and the continued aggression against civilians in the Gaza Strip and denial of access of victims to justice and remedy:

1. PCHR calls upon the international community and the United Nations to use all available means to allow the Palestinian people to enjoy their right to self-determination, through the establishment of the Palestinian State, which was recognized by the UN General Assembly with a vast majority, using all international legal mechanisms, including sanctions to end the occupation of the State of Palestine.

2. PCHR calls upon the international Community to provide justice mechanisms to Palestinian victims of Israeli violations, as it has been unequivocally proved that Israeli arbitrary measures to deny Palestinian victims access to justice amount to completely removing an opportunity to achieve justice before the Israeli judiciary.

3. PCHR calls upon the High Contracting Parties to the Geneva Conventions to compel Israel, as a High Contracting Party to the Conventions, to apply the Conventions in the oPt.

4. PCHR calls upon the Parties to international human rights instruments, especially the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, to pressurize Israel to comply with their provisions in the oPt, and to compel it to incorporate the human rights situation in the oPt in its reports submitted to the concerned committees.

5. PCHR calls upon the High Contracting Parties to the Geneva Conventions to fulfill their obligation to ensure the application of the Conventions, including extending the scope of their jurisdiction in order to prosecute suspected war criminals, regardless of the nationality of the perpetrator and the place of a crime, to pave the way for prosecuting suspected Israeli war criminals and end the longstanding impunity they have enjoyed.

6. PCHR calls on States that apply the principle of universal jurisdiction not to surrender to Israeli pressure to limit universal jurisdiction to perpetuate the impunity enjoyed by suspected Israeli war criminals.

7. PCHR calls upon the international community to act in order to stop all Israeli settlement expansion activities in the oPt through imposing sanctions on Israeli settlements and criminalizing trading with them.

8. PCHR calls upon the United Nations to confirm that holding war criminals in the Palestinian-Israeli conflict is a precondition to achieve stability and peace in the region, and that peace cannot be built on the expense of human rights and victims.

9. PCHR calls upon the UN General Assembly and Human Rights Council to explicitly declare that the Israeli closure policy in Gaza and the annexation wall in the West Bank are illegal, and accordingly refer the two issues to the UN Security Council to impose sanctions on Israel to compel it to remove them.

10. PCHR calls upon the United Nations and the European Union to express a clear position towards the annexation wall following the international recognition of the State of Palestine on the 1967 borders, as the annexation wall seizes large parts of the State of Palestine.

11. PCHR calls upon the European Union to activate Article 2 of the EU-Israel Association Agreement, which provides that both sides must respect human rights as a precondition for economic cooperation between the EU States and Israel, and the EU should not ignore Israeli violations and crimes against Palestinian civilians.

12. PCHR calls upon the international community, especially the United Nations, to encourage the State of Palestine to accede to international human rights law and humanitarian law instruments.

13. PCHR calls upon the international community, especially Arab countries, to support efforts to achieve Palestinian national reconciliation through exerting political pressure on the two parties of the split in order to achieve reconciliation, and the international community should accept the results of reconciliation to avoid the recurrence of penal sanctions adopted by the international community against the first Palestinian national unity government.

14. PCHR calls upon the European Union and international human rights bodies to pressurize Israeli forces to stop attacks against Palestinian fishermen and allow them to fish freely as fishing is a major source for the Palestinian economy in the Gaza Strip.

Recommendations to the Palestinian Decision-Makers

In 2013, rights and liberties in the PNA controlled areas deteriorated due to the ongoing political split. The PLC’s legislative and monitoring role was absent, and the parties of the political split continued to push the judiciary into the internal conflict, which undermined the judiciary’s independence. There was also an escalation in efforts to impose a specific ideology on the population of the Gaza Strip through some measures and laws which the government and the Change and Reform Bloc in Gaza imposed or attempted to impose. In light of these facts, PCHR calls upon Palestinian decision-makers to cooperate and jointly implement the following recommendations:

1. PCHR reiterates its calls for the Palestinian President, in light of the admission of Palestine as a non-member observer State in the United Nations, to ensure Palestine’s accession to all international human rights law and humanitarian law instruments. PCHR calls for immediately signing and acceding to the following instruments:
   » The Rome Statue of the International Criminal Court of 1998;
   » The Geneva Conventions of 1949 and Additional Protocols of 1977;
   » The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights of 1966 and the two Optional Protocols of 1966 and 1989;
   » The International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights of 1966;
   » The Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women of 1979;
   » The Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment of 1984;
   » The Convention of the Rights of the Child of 1989;
2. PCHR calls upon Fatah and Hamas movements to take immediate practical steps on the ground to implement the national reconciliation agreement that was signed in Cairo on 04 May 2011.

1. PCHR calls upon the two parties to make information related to efforts to achieve the reconciliation available to the public to ensure transparency and accountability.

2. PCHR calls for immediately starting preparations for the Palestinian parliamentary and presidential elections in an atmosphere of respect for all rights and liberties, especially the right to freedom of opinion and expression and the right to peaceful assembly, given that the legal terms in office of the Palestinian President and the PLC expired in January 2009 and 2010 respectively.

3. PCHR calls upon the Palestinian President to comply with the conditions prescribed under Article 43 of the Palestinian Basic Law for issuing decrees that have the power of laws, including the condition of necessity that cannot be delayed.

4. PCHR calls upon the Change and Reform Parliamentary Bloc to stop holding any sessions on behalf of the PLC, and to abstain from enacting any law under the ongoing political split.

5. PCHR calls upon the two parties of the Palestinian reconciliation to present all laws enacted under the political split to the PLC once it is convened.

6. PCHR calls upon the two governments in the West Bank and Gaza to take effective measures to end the state of lawlessness plaguing the oPt, and abstain from providing political cover to those who cause this state.

7. PCHR calls upon the two governments in the West Bank and Gaza to stop all violations of the right to freedom of opinion and expression and the right to peaceful assembly, and to hold the perpetrators of such violations accountable through appropriate legal means.

8. PCHR calls upon the two Ministries of Interior in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip to stop political arrests, and emphasizes that all victims have the right to claim for compensation if it is proved that they were arrested illegally.

9. PCHR calls upon the Public Prosecution to stop summoning people by security services without warrants, and confirms that the Public Prosecution is the only body warranted to summon people.

10. PCHR calls upon the administration of prisons and detention facilities to release all persons who are illegally detained, and confirms that directors of prisons and detention facilities have the authority and even the duty to release such persons; otherwise, they will be legally liable.

11. PCHR calls upon the two governments in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip to immediately stop torture in prisons and detention facilities and hold suspected perpetrators of this crime, which remains punishable at all times according to the Palestinian Basic Law, accountable.

12. Calls upon the two Ministries of Interior in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip to stop intervening into the activities and affairs of associations beyond the limits of the Law of Charitable Associations and Community Organizations.

13. PCHR calls upon the Higher Judiciary Council to reunite the judiciary in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip and to ensure its independence and impartiality.

14. PCHR calls upon the government in Gaza and the Palestinian President to stop applying the death penalty, and abstain from implementing death sentences that have been issued so far until the death penalty is abolished from the Palestinian laws. In this context, PCHR emphasizes that death sentences implemented in Gaza constitute extra-judicial executions because they are implemented without the Palestinian President’s ratification as required under the Palestinian Basic Law and Penal Code.

15. PCHR calls upon both governments in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip to take strict measures against those who are involved in assaults on public liberties.

16. PCHR calls upon both governments in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip to activate the principle of transparency in the PNA’s institution allowing access to information about public affairs, especially through the websites of ministries and various governmental bodies.

17. PCHR calls upon the government in Gaza to make serious efforts to solve the electricity crisis in the Gaza Strip and to make all information related to the crisis available to the public.
18. PCHR calls upon both governments in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip to implement the Palestinian Law No. 4 of 1999 on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, especially providing adequate facilities to disabled persons and ensuring their right to work.

19. PCHR calls upon both governments in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip to respect the right to freedom of movement, and emphasizes that restricting this right is possible only by a judicial order according to the Palestinian Basic Law.
Section (1)

Israeli violations of Human Rights and International Humanitarian Law
In 2013, Israeli forces committed more crimes and violations of the right to life and personal security against Palestinian civilians in the oPt. The number of Palestinians who were killed by Israeli forces was 46 victims in circumstances where no threats were posed to the lives of Israeli soldiers. Five of these victims died of wounds they had sustained in previous years. Of the total number of victims, there were 41 civilians, 33 of whom were in the West Bank and 8 in the Gaza Strip, including 6 children, 2 women; and 5 non-civilians including one in the West Bank and the other four in the Gaza Strip. In 2013, 496 Palestinians sustained various wounds, 430 of whom were in the West Bank and 66 ones were in the Gaza Strip, including 142 children and 10 women.

The victims were killed in the context of excessive use of lethal force by Israeli forces. In the Gaza Strip, 6 civilians were killed in the Access Restricted Areas (ARA), while a civilian was extra-judicially executed by an air strike in the centre of Gaza. In addition, a woman died of wounds she had sustained in 2001. In the West Bank, Israeli forces killed 33 civilians in different circumstances that did not pose any threats to the safety and lives of Israeli soldiers. 13 civilians were killed during Israeli incursions into Palestinian communities and clashes with Palestinians who threw stones at Israeli soldiers. In addition, 5 civilians, including a female university student, were killed at checkpoints established at entrances of towns, villages and refugee camps. The student was killed at a checkpoint established at the entrance of al-Aroub College in Hebron while heading to the college. Two civilians were killed when they approached the border fence, including a worker who attempted with a group of other workers to pass through the fence, while 6 civilians were killed in 4 extra-judicial executions. Moreover, a young man was killed in a peaceful protest in Aboud village, west of Ramallah. A Palestinian child was killed as he tried to escape from the Israeli soldiers who fired at him from a close range.

Thus, PCHR documented the killings by Israeli forces and Israeli settlers from the beginning of the Intifada in September 2000 until the end of 2013 of a total of 7,032 persons, including 5,455 civilians (77.5%). In the Gaza Strip, 3,597 civilians were killed, while 1,839 civilians were killed in the West Bank. Of the civilians killed, 1,328 were children (24.5% of all civilians killed), including 959 in the Gaza Strip and 368 in the West Bank. In addition, 282 women were killed (5% of all civilians killed), 221 of whom were killed in the Gaza Strip and 61 others were killed in the West Bank. Tens of thousands were wounded during the Second Intifada, the majority of whom were civilians; hundreds of the wounded were left with permanent disabilities.

Investigations conducted by PCHR, testimonies of eyewitnesses and evidence have proven that Israeli forces used excessive and disproportionate force against Palestinian civilians, who are protected under international humanitarian law. Israeli forces did not take the necessary precautions to distinguish between civilians and military targets, nor did they respond proportionately when using military force. It is also clear that Israeli forces carried out acts of reprisal against Palestinian civilians, who were killed in circumstances that did not pose any threat to the lives of Israeli soldiers.
Killings in the Israeli-Imposed Access-Restricted Areas in the Gaza Strip

The access-restricted areas (ARA) is a closed military area within Palestinian territory which is located along the northern and eastern border of the Gaza Strip, and at sea. What Israel calls ARA is not precisely demarcated, but Israeli forces impose restrictions on access to these areas, which they enforce through the use of live fire. At sea, Israeli forces prevent Palestinian fishermen from fishing beyond three nautical miles offshore.

In 2013, Israeli forces killed 6 Palestinian civilians in the ARA along the eastern and northern border of the Gaza Strip.

1. In 11 January, Israeli forces opened fire at a group of civilians, who were present about 50 meters away from the border, east of Jabalia, in an attempt to break the decision of imposing the ARA. As a result, Anwar Mohammed Elayan al-Mamlouk (19), from Gaza City, was killed by a bullet to the belly.

2. On 14 January, Israeli forces stationed on watchtowers in the northern Gaza Strip opened fire at a group of farmers who were about 1,200 meters away from the border. As a result, Mustafa Abdul Hakim Mustafa Abu Jarad (19), from al-Manshiya area in Beit Lahia, was killed by a bullet to the head.

3. On 11 August, Israeli forces opened fire at Hussein Abdul Hadi al-Nouri (34), from al-Nuseirat refugee camp, when he attempted to pass through the border, east of the Gaza Strip. The young man was shot dead although he was not armed.

4. On 30 September, Israeli forces killed Hweishel Isma’il al-Hanajra (35), from al-Bureij refugee camp in the central Gaza Strip, near the border, east of Beit Hanoun. Al-Hanajra was shot by several bullets to the belly, back and head while attempting to get into Israel via the border to look for a job. Eyewitnesses confirmed that al-Hanajrah was in plain clothes and was not armed when he attempted to cross the border.

5. On 20 December, Israeli forces killed Ouda Jehad Hamad (27) and wounded his brother Raddad (22) when they approached the border, north of Beit Hanoun. Investigations conducted by PCHR indicated that Israeli forces used excessive force against the 2 brothers and fired at them directly and from a close range although the brother had been collecting plastic and iron pieces from the landfill near the border.

6. On 24 December, Hala Ahmed Abu Sbeikha (3) was killed due to an airstrike that targeted her family’s house in the east of al-Maghazi refugee camp.

4. In accordance with the cease-fire agreement between the Palestinian armed groups and Israeli forces following the latest Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip (14-21 November 2012), fishermen were allowed to sail up to 6 nautical miles offshore.

5. See more details below.
Targeting Civilians Using Drones

In 2013, PCHR documented one case in which Israeli forces used drones in targeting a wanted person in the Gaza Strip. On 30 April, an Israeli drone targeted Haytham Ziad al-Mes’hal (25), from Gaza City, with a missile. As a result, he was killed instantly.

For years, Israeli forces continued to use drones in carrying out attacks against targets in the Gaza Strip. The majority of those attacks resulted in killing hundreds of civilians and wounding hundreds. It should be noted that many civilians were killed or wounded and it was not known if they were targeted by drones or not. From 2004, PCHR documented the killing of 636 persons, including 392 civilians; 184 of whom were children and 14 were women. In addition, 438 persons were wounded, including 401 civilians; 364 of whom were children and 4 were women.

Killings during Israeli Incursions into Palestinian Communities

Israeli forces continued to conduct incursions into Palestinian communities. As a result, 13 civilians were killed in 2013. The most prominent cases were as follows:

1. On 23 January, Saleh Ahmed Amareen (15), from Bethlehem, was pronounced dead of wounds he had sustained on 18 January. Amareen was hit by a bullet during clashes between Palestinians and Israeli forces in Bethlehem;

2. On 12 March, Israeli forces moved into al-Aroub refugee camp, where boys threw stones at them. In response, Israeli forces opened fire and killed Mahmoud Adel al-Titi (22) by a bullet to the jaw.

3. On 26 August, Israeli forces moved into Qalandia refugee camp, north of occupied Jerusalem, where clashes erupted between Israeli soldiers and Palestinians who threw stones at the soldiers. Israeli soldiers fired at these civilians, killing 3 of them and wounding 18 others, including 5 children. The majority of injuries were in the upper part of the body. The civilians who were killed are:

   » Yunis Jamal Jahjouh (23), sustained several bullet wounds to the chest;

   » Jehad Mansour Aslan (21), sustained several bullet wounds to the chest; and » Robin Abdul Rahman Zayed (33), sustained several bullet wounds to the chest as well.

Extra-Judicial Executions

In 2013, Israeli forces continued to extra-judicially execute Palestinians who were accused of being involved or participating in planning for or carrying out attacks against Israeli targets in oPt or inside Israel. In 2013, Israeli forces committed 4 extra-judicial executions, one of which was in the Gaza Strip and the other 3 ones were in the West Bank. As a result of these attacks, 6 Palestinians, including 5 targeted persons and 1 non-targeted person, were killed.

The number of victims of extra-judicial executions from the beginning of the Intifada in September 2000 until the end of 2013 increased to 912 Palestinians, including 656 targeted persons and 256 non-targeted ones. There were 379 victims in the West Bank, including 301 targeted ones and 78 non-targeted ones, and 533 in the Gaza Strip, including 355 targeted persons and 178 non-targeted persons.

The extra-judicial executions in 2013 were as follows:

1. On 30 April, an Israeli warplane fired a missile at Haitham Ziyad Ibrahim al-Mes’hal (26), from Shati’ refugee camp, while he was riding a motorbike near Bader paramilitary site in the northwest of Gaza City. He was instantly killed. Al-Mes’hal was affiliated to the Jihadist Salafist Group and a security officer in Shifa Hospital in Gaza City.

2. On 26 November, Israeli forces killed 2 Palestinian civilians in Hebron by targeting their vehicle near Zaif area in the north of Yatta, south of the city. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, at approximately 18:00, Mousa Mohamed Makhmara (24), from Yatta, and Mohamed Fo’ad Nairoukh (24), from Hebron, were driving a white Subaru vehicle on a dirt road linking al-Berka area, east of Yatta, and bypass road (60). A Renault Kangoo vehicle was following the above-mentioned vehicle. The Subaru was about to reach the bypass road while an Israeli infantry unit had deployed in the farmlands around. Israeli soldiers directly opened fire at the vehicle, and in the meantime, other soldiers opened fire from the Renault vehicle as well.

6. On 11 June 2013, Khaled Mohammed Kharboush (29), from Tulkarm, was wounded when Israeli forces opened fire during an extra-judicial execution in Tulkarm on 04 April 2004.

Half an hour later, Israeli forces killed a Palestinian in the south of Hebron. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, at approximately 18:30, Israeli forces surrounded a house belonging to the family of Khalil Mohammed Abu ‘Eram (43), from al-Berka area in the north of Yatta, south of Hebron. They immediately opened fire at the house for a few minutes and then used an explosive device to blow up the door. They also opened fire at a by-passer. The victim was identified as Mahmoud Khaled al-Najjar (24), from Yatta.

3. On 18 December, an Israeli undercover unit sneaked into al-Saha area in the centre of Jenin refugee camp, west of Jenin, using a minibus with a Palestinian registration plate and the logo of the “Palestine Telecommunications Company” on it. The vehicle stopped in front of a house belonging to Jamal Abdul Salam Abu al-Haija, a prisoner in an Israeli jail. Members the undercover unit wearing the “Palestine Telecommunications Company” uniform stepped out of the vehicle and opened fire at a group of Palestinian young men, who were standing in front of a cafe below the abovementioned house. As a result, Nafe’ Jamil Nafe’ al-Sa’di (23) was killed, while 6 others were wounded, 2 of whom sustained serious wounds. Moreover, Israeli forces arrested a wounded person whose wound had not been identified at the time. It should be noted that Israeli forces planned to target Abu al-Haija’s son, Hamza (21), a member of Hamas, but he escaped the arrest or extra-judicial execution.

4. On 19 December, Israeli forces killed a member of the Palestinian General Intelligence Service (GIS) in the centre of Qalqilia. They claimed that he opened fire at Israeli soldiers when they tried to arrest him, so they repeated the fire. Moreover, Israeli forces claimed he was wanted because he “opened fire at Israeli soldiers on several occasions in the past few weeks.” They added that they seized a weapon and ammunition in the scene. However, there were no Palestinian eyewitnesses, excluding a Palestinian taxi driver who took the victim to the hospital and was kept in custody by the GIS. Therefore, PCHR fieldworkers could not meet him. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, at approximately 03:00, on the above-mentioned day, Saleh Samir Abdul Rahim Yassin (27), from Qalqilia, received a phone call from a friend. He immediately went out of his house in Nazzal neighbourhood on Nablus road, telling his wife that he would be back in 15 minutes. A few minutes later, gunfire was heard in the area. A friend of him, the taxi driver, saw him as he was getting back after he drove some workers to Qalqilia checkpoint. He drove Saleh to the UNRWA Hospital in the city, where he passed away. The victim’s cousin said to a PCHR fieldworker that he saw his cousin’s corpse in the hospital’s morgue and noticed that a single bullet entered the right side of his chest and exited the left side of it. He added that he heard the sound of 4 bullets only, which means that fire was opened at him once he went out into the street. It should be noted that the GIS kept the taxi driver in custody as he WAS the sole eyewitness. The PCHR fieldworker could not meet him as a result.
Shooting at Participants in Peaceful Demonstrations

In 2013, Israeli forces continued to use excessive force against peaceful demonstrations organised by Palestinian civilians in protest against settlement activities, the construction of the annexation wall in the West Bank and Israeli violations against Palestinians. As a result, one person was killed in 2013.

1. On 22 March 2013, Mohammed Samih Hussein Asfour (24) was killed by a bullet to his head when Israeli forces opened fire at a peaceful protest in Aboud village, northwest of Ramallah, in support with the Palestinian prisoners on a hunger strike in the Israeli jails.

As a result of shooting at participants in peaceful protests 46 civilians were wounded. This number does not include hundreds of civilians, including women, children and elderly, who suffered tear gas inhalation during the demonstrations, or other hundreds who were beaten up by clubs and gun butts and sustained bruises and fractures throughout their bodies. According to PCHR’s documentation, of the wounded there were journalists, volunteer photographers, local and international activists against the annexation wall and settlement activities, paramedics and others. The most significant cases were as follows:

2. On 15 February, Palestinians organized peaceful demonstration in support for Palestinian prisoners in Israeli jails, especially those who were on a hunger strike, in front of Ofer detention facility, southwest of Ramallah. Israeli forces used excessive force, due to which 17 civilians, including 4 children, were wounded.

3. On 3 March, Abdullah Shadi Safi (10) sustained a bullet wound to the head when Israeli soldiers fired at him near al-Jalazoun refugee camp, north of Ramallah. Dozens of boys gathered at the entrance of al-Jalazoun refugee camp, north of Ramallah, about 300 meters away from “Beit Eil” settlement, and threw stones towards the settlement’s fence. In response, Israeli soldiers fired rubber-coated metal bullets, tear gas canisters and sound bombs. As a result, Safi was wounded and was then taken to Palestine medical compound in Ramallah.

4. On 21 June, 4 civilians sustained various wounds during a peaceful demonstration organized by Palestinians and international activists in protest against the continuous closure of the eastern entrance of Kufor Qaddoum village, northeast of Qalqilya, since the outbreak of al-Aqsa Intifada. Israeli soldiers denied them access to the gate and fired sound bombs and tear gas canisters. As a result, 4 Palestinians sustained wounds: a 22-year-old male; a finger in his left hand was smashed after being hit by a metal bullet; a 20-year-old male was wounded by two metal bullets in the abdomen and left hand; a 21-year-old male was wounded by a metal bullet to the chest; and a 27-year-old male was wounded by a metal bullet to the waist.

Killing of Children

In 2013, Israeli forces killed 5 Palestinian children in total, four of whom were killed in the West Bank and the fifth one was killed in the Gaza Strip. Thus, the total number of children killed in the oPt from September 2000 to the end of 2013 rose to 1,328, including 368 ones in the West Bank and 959 ones in the Gaza Strip. During the same period, a total of 7,399 children were wounded; 6,523 in the Gaza Strip and 876 in the West Bank. Hundreds of the wounded children have subsequently been left with permanent disabilities.

The following section lists the most serious attacks committed by Israeli forces against children in 2013:

» On 15 January, Samir Ahmed Awad (17) was killed in Budrus village, west of Ramallah, when he was near the annexation wall with some of his friends. An Israeli soldier caught Samir who managed to flee. The soldier immediately shot him in his left leg and the child fell onto the ground. The child stood up after he was wounded and tried to flee again, but the soldier fired 2 bullets at him; one of them in the back and the other in the head from a distance of around 10 meters. As a result, he died immediately.

» On 23 January, Saleh Ahmed Amareen (15), from Bethlehem, died of a bullet wound he had sustained on 18 January during clashes with Israeli soldiers in Bethlehem.

» On 03 April, Israeli forces stationed at Ennab checkpoint between Tulkarm and Nablus, east of Anabta village, opened fire at a group of boys who threw stones and empty bottles at the Israeli forces. As a result, 18-year-old ‘Amer Ibrahim Naji Zarboul was instantly killed by a bullet to the chest, and Fadi Abdul-Qader Ibrahim Nassar (20) sustained a bullet wound to his right hand. At approximately 04:30 on 04 April 2013, the Israeli liaison informed their Palestinian counterpart that they have another body of a Palestinian. A Palestinian ambulance traveled to Ennab military checkpoint, received the body and transported it to Martyr Thabet Thabet Public Hospital. The victim was identified as Naji Abdul-Salam Naji Bilbaisi’s (19). He sustained a bullet wound to the chest; medical sources could not confirm whether the deceased bled to death or the bullet caused instant death.

» On 31 August, Palestinian medical sources declared that Karim Sobhi Saleh “Abu Sbeih” (17), from Jenin refugee camp, died of wounds that he had sustained on 20 August 2013, when Israeli forces moved into Jenin refugee camp to arrest a number of the Islamic Jihad and clashes erupted between them and Palestinian children. During those clashes, a Majd Lahlouh “al-Shahlah” (21) was killed and 3 others, including the above-mentioned child, sustained serious wounds.

» On 24 December, Hala Ahmed Abu Sbaikha (3) was killed when Israeli tanks stationed at the border between the Gaza Strip and Israel to the east of the central Gaza Strip fired a number of shells at al-Maghazi refugee camp. Two shells hit a 2-storey house belonging to Ahmed and Baha’ Salman Abu Sbaikha. The 3-year-old child died as a result of internal haemorrhage due to the heavy explosions. Additionally, Buthaina Talal Abu Sbaikha, 28, and her two children: Bilal, 4, and Mohammed, 6, were wounded by shrapnel to the lower limbs when they tried to leave the house after the first attack. The house was also damaged. The third shell hit a house belonging to Salma Salem Abu Sbaikha, 70. The house was damaged, but no casualties were reported.

In 2013, Israeli forces continued to impose a tight closure on the oPt, especially on the Gaza Strip. This was the seventh consecutive year that Israeli forces have imposed a policy of closure on the Gaza Strip, cutting the area off from the West Bank, including East Jerusalem. The closure resulted in the aggravation of the humanitarian situation and consequently the emergence of serious indicators relevant to poverty, unemployment and food security especially for children. In addition, the economic and social conditions were negatively affected by the Israeli policy that succeeded in undermining any real chances to revive the Gaza Strip economy. This systematic policy reflected a constant violation of the right of the Palestinians to an adequate standard of living, including health, education, the right to work, social security and the right to adequate shelter. Statistics of 2013 indicate the so-called easing of the Israeli closure is artificial and aimed to the institutionalization of the closure in a clear violation of the international humanitarian law. Facts reveal that such limited easing would not contribute to putting an end to the suffering of Palestinians who experienced 7 years of closure. The right way to deal with the closure is to admit its illegality and that it constitutes a form of collective punishment, to immediately put an end to it, and to remove all restrictions imposed on the freedom of movement and allow the free movement of goods from and to the Gaza Strip.

Restrictions on the Freedom of Movement of the Gaza Strip Population

Palestinians in the Gaza Strip continue to be denied the right to freedom of movement. They suffer greatly from the restrictions imposed on their passage through Beit Hanoun (‘Erez’) crossing. In 2013, Israeli forces continued to close Beit Hanoun crossing to Palestinian civilians, thus preventing people in Gaza from accessing holy sites in Jerusalem and Bethlehem, studying in universities in the West Bank, and visiting their families and relatives in the West Bank, and vice versa. Israel has closed the Beit Hanoun crossing to the movement of Palestinian civilians, with the exception of limited categories: patients suffering from serious diseases; Arabs holding Israeli IDs; international journalists; workers of international humanitarian organizations; business people; and persons travelling via al-Karama crossing on the Jordanian border. These categories travel through the crossing under very complicated procedures.

Movement of Patients Seeking Treatment in Hospitals in the West Bank, Including East Jerusalem, and/or Israel

In 2013, Israel obstructed the travel of 1,574 patients; 41 of whom were prevented due to security claims, 244 of them were asked to change the companions and 195 others were forced to wait for a new appointment while the rest 1,094 patients were awaiting an Israeli reply following their security interviews. According to the Ministry of Health, the number of applications presented on behalf of patients referred to hospitals in Israel or the West Bank in 2013 reached 13,689. Israeli authorities issued permits for 12,115 patients and obstructed the travel of 1,574 ones under various pretexts. Thus, the daily average of patients travelling via Beit Hanoun crossing declined to 33 patients daily (66% of the daily average allowed to travel in 2006).

Israeli authorities continued to blackmail and arrest patients or their companions. PCHR documented in 2013 arresting 9 patients at the crossing. Those patients were arrested after they had been summoned for interviews with the Israeli intelligence service at the crossing, or while they were passing via the crossing after they had obtained their own permits. The arrested patients suffer from serious diseases; they have no treatment in the Gaza Strip hospitals and need intensive treatment or operations at hospitals in the West Bank, including Jerusalem, or Israel.

Family Visits for Palestinian Prisoners in Israeli Jails

In 2013, Israel did not abide by the agreement that was reached between the Palestinian prisoners and Israeli authorities in May 2012. They limitedly organized family visits for prisoners from the Gaza Strip, as they allowed 2 visits, each of which include 2 persons, for each prisoners per month. In addition, Israeli authorities stopped the visits several times in 2013 with no clear reasons, but under fake pretexts.

According to the agreement, each prisoner has the right to family visitation twice a month. As there are 440 prisoners in the Israeli jails, the number of visits should have reached 10,560 visits in 2013. However, the Israeli forces allowed only 1,668 visits. This is also applicable to the number of family members who are allowed to visit their relatives; the number of these members was 2,764, whereas the number should have been 21,120 persons in case each prisoner was visited by 2 members of his family twice a month.

The visiting families were subjected to arbitrary procedures, humiliating and unethical search practices, and other obstacles. They also endured constant threats to cancel their future visitation rights if they did not obey orders by Israeli forces.

It should be noted that the Israeli authorities determine the visitor who is allowed to visit a prisoner, and those authorized are limited to the prisoners’ fathers, mothers or wives and one or two of them only are allowed to visit (since the beginning of May 2013). Furthermore, in the case either one is incapable of visiting (due to sickness, old age or death), the Israeli authorities do not allow the change of the visitors’ name; thus, the prisoner loses the visitation right. In the same context, Israeli authorities continue to deprive children of visiting their fathers in Israeli jails, and prisoners’ families are not allowed to bring with them personal items, including clothes and food.

Movement of Traders from the Gaza Strip to the West Bank, Including East Jerusalem, and/or Israel

In 2013, Israeli forces reduced the number of traders permitted to travel via Beit Hanoun crossing to 62 daily, in comparison to 150 traders who were permitted to travel daily via the crossing prior to June 2007.

Rafah International Crossing Point

Over the past years, the Gaza Strip population used Rafah International Crossing Point as the sole outlet to the world, but the Egyptian internal situation and the deteriorating security situation in north Sinai resulted in closing the crossing point for prolonged periods since June 2013. As a result, 1.7 million Palestinian were denied their right to the freedom of movement and travel from and to the Gaza Strip (under the ongoing closure of Beit Hanoun crossing).

The closure of Rafah International Crossing Point negatively affected the Gaza Strip’s population. In the Gaza Strip, thousands of Palestinians, including hundreds of patients, students and holders of residences in other countries, were denied travelling abroad and others were stuck in the Egyptian side.
The closure of Rafah International Crossing Point reminds of the essential cause that the Gaza Strip is part of the oPt and is a natural extension of the West Bank, including occupied Jerusalem. Thus, the Israeli occupation is legally responsible for the Gaza Strip population under the international humanitarian law, especially the Fourth Geneva Convention of 1949, and as an occupying power, must offer a clear system to guarantee the freedom of movement and the safe flow of needs via commercial crossings.

The Movement of Goods

The commercial crossings were established for importation and exportation, but Israeli authorities sought to tighten the closure over the Gaza Strip through making Karem Abu Salem crossing as the only opened crossing in spite of its low operational capacity. The Israeli authorities closed Sofa crossing, which was designated for the imports of construction materials, in November 2008 and allowed the import of construction materials via Karem Abu Salem instead. On 04 January 2010, the Israeli authorities closed Nahal Oz crossing, which was designated for the import of fuel, and allowed it via Karem Abu Salem as well, whose operational capacity does not suffice the daily needs of fuel and cooking gas. On 02 March 2011, Israeli authorities closed al-Mentar (Karni) crossing, the major commercial crossing in the Gaza Strip that had an operational capacity amounting to 400 truckloads daily, so 75% of the Gaza Strip's needs used to be imported via this crossing. The destruction of its facilities in early January 2012 is a further obstacle to the movement of goods in and out of the Gaza Strip. The location of the Karm Abu Salem crossing in the extreme southeast of the Gaza Strip has resulted in increased transportation costs, leading to an increase in the prices of imports and extra financial burdens on exporters and importers.

Exports

In 2013, Israel continued to impose a near-total ban on exports to markets in the West Bank, Israel and other countries, excluding limited amounts of agricultural products. As an exception, Israel allowed the exportation of 207 truckloads, i.e. less than a truckload daily in comparison with 150 truckloads daily, which was the average before the total closure of the Gaza Strip in 2007. Israeli authorities aimed to widen the political and economic gap between the West Bank and Gaza Strip and to undermine any attempt to revive the economic situation in the Gaza Strip. Exports are considered as a main source of development and a basic need for the productive establishments to go on and improve.

Imports

PCHR’s data confirms that Karem Abu Salem crossing cannot meet the needs of the Gaza Strip that used to be entered via 4 crossings. Nevertheless, Israel closed the crossing in 2013 for 138 days (37.8%).

Statistics show that the percentage of actual imports is low. In 2013, Israel allowed the entry of 58,632 truckloads to the Gaza Strip, an average of 160 truckloads daily, representing 28% of the number of truckloads that were allowed into the Gaza Strip before the total closure was imposed in June 2007 (570 truckloads daily). Moreover, most imports are consumables. The entry of various types of raw materials continues to be prohibited, with the exception of very limited types that are imported under complicated procedures.

The Gaza Strip population depended in the past years on goods smuggled through tunnels at the Gaza-Egypt border. Due to restrictions imposed on imports smuggled via the tunnels after June 2013, some basic items, including fuel and construction materials, were lacked.

The cooking gas crisis continued in 2013 throughout the Gaza stations, and piles of empty gas cylinders were left at gas stations waiting to be refilled due to the limited quantities allowed by Israel into the Gaza Strip. The daily amount of gas allowed into Gaza reached 105 tonnes in 2013. This amount represents 52.9% of the daily needs of the population, which is 200 tonnes. The Israeli restrictions imposed on benzene and diesel led to the shortage of these types of fuel in the gas stations, and as a result, the majority of gas stations were shut down and the remaining ones depended on the limited quantities allowed by Israeli authorities via Karem Abu Salem.

In 2013, the Gaza Strip witnessed a significant rise in prices of all construction materials and lack of some of them in the markets due to being banned to be entered via tunnels. PCHR followed declarations of the Israeli authorities on 17 September 2013 that they would allow the entry of 20 truckloads of cement (800 tons), 10 truckloads of construction steel (400 tons) and 40 truckloads of construction aggregate (1,600 these quantities constitute 20%, 33% and 26% of the Gaza Strip needs respectively as the Gaza Strip daily needs 4,000 tons of cement, 1,500 tons of construction steel and 6,000 tons of construction aggregate. In spite of allowing limited quantities, the Israeli authorities were not committed to the declaration. A sudden decision was issued by Israeli authorities on 13 October 2013 imposing a complete ban on construction materials. As a result, the majority of projects in the Gaza Strip were suspended, while the reconstruction and rehabilitation of infrastructure stopped completely.

According to PCHR’s statistics, the imports of cement and construction steel in 2013 and before the ban decision were very limited and did not meet the actual needs of the Gaza Strip; 5.7% of the monthly needs of cement and 1.8% of the monthly needs of construction steel were allowed.

Due to the complete ban imposed on construction materials, the Gaza Strip depended in the past years on materials smuggled from Egypt through the tunnels. However, even the construction materials from Egypt stopped from being smuggled in June, due to which construction projects were decreased and reconstruction and rehabilitation of infrastructure totally stopped. Karem Abu Salem crossing became the only crossing for the entry of construction materials.

The ongoing closure and restrictions imposed on the entry of construction materials and the destruction of about 70% of economic establishments during Israeli offensives on the Gaza Strip paralyzed all economic sectors, which had been already affected due to the closure of crossings. The poor economic situation resulted in raising the level of families living below the poverty line to 38.8%, including 21.1% suffering from extreme poverty, according to the Palestinian Central Bureau of Statistics (PCBS) in 2013. The same statistics showed that the unemployment rate in oPt reached 23.7%; it reached 32.5% in the Gaza Strip and 19.1% in the West Bank. In terms of gender, unemployment rates among males reached 20.3% and 37.8% among females.7

Restrictions on Freedom of Movement in the West Bank

In the West Bank, Israeli forces have continued to restrict the movement of civilians between cities, as well as at international crossing points. Israel has continued its practice of closing off occupied East Jerusalem to Palestinian civilians from elsewhere in the oPt; entering East Jerusalem is banned for Palestinians from the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. As a result, Palestinians have been denied access to advanced medical care, their right to meet with family members, and access to education, work, and religious sites in East Jerusalem, in particular, the al-Aqsa Mosque.

However, Israel continues to treat freedom of movement for the Palestinian people as a privilege rather than a right. While many checkpoints are now open for free passage, the infrastructure of many checkpoints has been left in place, allowing for their reactivation on short notice. In addition to these checkpoints, which are intermittently manned, 15 permanently manned checkpoints remain in place throughout the West Bank, in addition to 16 checkpoints which restrict the movement of Palestinians in the centre of Hebron. Hundreds of physical obstacles remain, and Israeli forces also periodically erect ‘flying checkpoints’ at random locations. The random activation of checkpoints across the West Bank makes it impossible for Palestinians wishing to travel between towns and villages to predict where they may come across a checkpoint and how long a journey may take.

In addition, Israel denies access to specific areas of the West Bank, such as East Jerusalem and the land to the west of the annexation wall, for all Palestinians, except those who hold special permits, and severely restricts their access to other areas, such as the centre of Hebron. Israeli forces have continued to impose a tightened closure on occupied East Jerusalem, cutting it off completely from the West Bank, and barring entry to the city for Palestinians from the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. By denying access to East Jerusalem, hundreds of thousands of Palestinians have been denied access to religious sites, thousands of patients have been denied access to medical treatment, students have been denied access to schools and universities, and thousands of workers have been deprived of employment opportunities. The continuing isolation of the city, along with the establishment of new checkpoints and the construction of new sections of the annexation wall around the city, is detrimental to the social fabric of the city. This is especially so for families living within East Jerusalem's municipal borders and its suburbs.

Israeli forces continue to use checkpoints as border crossings with the purpose of isolating large areas in the West Bank, for example, by making travel from the Jordan Valley to the West Bank difficult. Israeli forces control the access of Palestinian civilians to the Jordan Valley through four checkpoints: Tayaseer; al-Hamra; Ma‘ale Efrayim; and al-‘Ouja. Most Palestinians are denied access to the area unless they hold the required permits. In 2013, Israeli forces allowed Palestinians who are not residents of the Jordan Valley to enter through al-Hamra checkpoint for the first time since the Second Intifada; however, Israeli forces remained in position, controlling the movement of Palestinian civilians and prohibiting them from sleeping in the area. Israeli forces often storm houses and agricultural lands in the area and expel Palestinian farmers who do not have permits to remain there. It is worth noting that the Jordan Valley is one of the most fertile areas in the West Bank. Israeli forces have established several settlements in the area and have confiscated large areas of agricultural land. They have also isolated thousands of dunums of land along the Jordan River, preventing the owners from accessing their lands. It is estimated that Israeli forces and settlers control over 75% of the total area of the Jordan Valley.

Israeli forces use checkpoints and border crossings in the West Bank in order to arrest Palestinians who are allegedly wanted. Civilians are often subjected to degrading and inhuman treatment at these checkpoints, such as physical assaults or humiliation. In 2013, according to PCHR’s documentation, Israeli forces arrested at least 352 Palestinian civilians at various checkpoints in the West Bank, including 96 children and 11 women. It should be noted that in 2012, Israeli forces arrested 143 Palestinian civilians, including 24 children and 4 women.

At the al-Karama (‘Allenby’) International Crossing Point on the Jordanian border with the West Bank, Israeli forces subject Palestinian civilians to humiliation and cruel interrogation. Israeli forces prohibit thousands of Palestinians from travelling, and those who attempt to cross the border are usually subjected to body searches and humiliation. Palestinians who are denied travel include patients, women, journalists, political activists, students, members of the Palestinian Legislative Council (PLC), and employees of international organisations.

The construction of the annexation wall has resulted in new restrictions on the freedom of movement of Palestinians who live near the route of the wall. These new restrictions come on top of the widespread restrictions that have been in place since the outbreak of the Second Intifada in September 2000. Farming is a primary source of income in the Palestinian communities located along the route of the wall. However, thousands of Palestinians have experienced difficulties accessing their fields and marketing their produce in other areas of the West Bank.

According to testimonies provided by a number of farmers to PCHR fieldworkers, Israeli soldiers stationed at the gates regularly prohibit them from accessing their lands under the pretext that they have obtained a permit. The farmers believe that these measures aim to deprive them of their source of livelihood and force them to leave or neglect their lands so that Israeli forces can confiscate them. The olive harvest is considered as the sole source of income for hundreds of Palestinian families, whose economic situation is already very difficult due to the Israeli policy of closure.

Israel implements a discriminatory policy that curtails the freedom of Palestinian civilians to use public roads. Around 500 kilometres of restricted roads across the West Bank are accessible only to Israeli settlers. Palestinians suffer as a result, as they are forced to use alternative roads that are unsuitable and add considerable time to their journeys.

Military checkpoints are an obstacle to the movement of cargos. This increases the cost of transportation, which is consequently reflected in the prices of goods, and adds to the financial hardship of consumers. The policy of closure, as well as restrictions on the freedom of movement of Palestinian civilians, has had a serious impact on their economic, social and cultural rights as well as their civil and political rights. The Palestinian people are experiencing a severe economic crisis that is affecting various economic sectors, including trade, manufacturing, agriculture, labor, tourism, transportation, investment, and development. The policy of closure affects the lives of every individual in the oPt by violating the right to work, to health, to education and to appropriate living conditions. Israel has also created a new system of discrimination in the oPt, whereby Palestinians live in geographically-isolated cantons and are deprived of the right to freedom of movement. It should be noted that when the annexation wall is completed, its length will be 724 kilometres, due to which it will impose more isolation measures on the Palestinian civilians.

The policy of closure is a form of collective punishment prohibited by international humanitarian law. Article 33 of the Fourth Geneva Convention specifically prohibits the punishment of protected persons for offences they have not personally committed. It also prohibits collective penalties, measures of intimidation or terrorism, and reprisals against protected persons and their property. Israeli forces have implemented the policy of closure in an entirely disproportionate and excessive manner. Restrictions have been implemented as a means of punishment, intimidation, and retaliation against Palestinian civilians. Israel isolates the Gaza Strip from the West Bank, hindering the movement of people, exports, and imports, and paralysing the Palestinian workforce. Israeli forces also impose curfews and regularly close main and sub-roads in the West Bank. The prohibition on measures of collective punishment is absolute; violations cannot be justified for reasons of military necessity. The right to freedom of movement is affirmed in all of the key international human rights instruments. For example, Article 12(1) of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights stipulates that “everyone lawfully within the territory of a State shall, within that territory, have the right to liberty of movement and freedom to choose his residence.”

Due to the Israeli restrictions, Faraj Adel Mohammed Amarna (65), from Ya’bad village, southwest of Jenin, died on 29 December 2013. In the early morning, Amarna did not feel good, so his son took him to dr. Khalil Suleiman Hospital in Jenin. However, Israeli soldiers stationed at a checkpoint that was established on 24 December 2013 at the main entrance of Ya’bad village prevented them from passing. They then allowed them to pass after a quarrel between them and the Israeli soldiers, but Amarna died before getting to the hospital.
At least 4,800 Palestinians are in Israeli custody in prisons and detention facilities, most of which are inside Israel, in a clear violation of article 76 of the Fourth Geneva Convention, which stipulates: “Protected persons accused of offences shall be detained in the occupied country, and if convicted they shall serve their sentences therein.” Among the detainees there are 162 children and 17 women. In addition, there are 30 Palestinians who were arrested before the Oslo Accords in 1993, including 15 prisoners of those who served over 25 years in prison. The detention conditions of Palestinian prisoners seriously deteriorated. They are subjected to inhumane and degrading treatment, including naked searches, night raids, medical negligence and torture. Such measures caused the death of a prisoner while being interrogated in 2013.

In August 2013, an agreement was concluded between the Palestinian Authority and Israel, under which 104 prisoners of high sentences, who were arrested before the Oslo Accords in 1993, would be released in 4 phases. Three phases were implemented until the end of 2013 according to the timeline agreed on between the two parties. On 14 August, 26 prisoners were released in the first phase of the agreement, while on 29 October, another 26 prisoners were released in the second phase. On 31 December 2013, 26 prisoners were released in the third phase. The final one will include also releasing 26 prisoners.

In the West Bank, Israeli forces arrested hundreds of Palestinians during Israeli incursions, arrest campaigns at checkpoints and campaigns conducted to arrest wanted people. In the Gaza Strip, Israeli forces continued to arrest more Palestinians in the access-restricted areas along the eastern and northern border of the Gaza Strip, at sea, and at the Beit Hanoun (‘Erez’) crossing, in the north of the Gaza Strip. According to PCHR’s documentation, 2,415 Palestinians were arrested by Israeli forces in 2013, the vast majority of whom were from the West Bank; 2,320 Palestinians were arrested in the West Bank, and 95 ones were arrested in the Gaza Strip.

9. This statistic includes hundreds of civilians who were arrested for short periods and released hours after their arrest.
By the end of 2013, approximately 14 PLC members had been in Israeli custody in prisons and detention facilities mostly inside Israel. The majority of them are from the Change and Reform Bloc of Hamas movement, a member from Fatah movement and another one from the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP). In 2013, Israeli forces arrested 8 PLC members from the Change and Reform Bloc and put them under administrative detention, while sentenced a prisoner from last year to 30 months imprisonment. However, the Israeli authorities released 6 PLC members in 2013, who were arrested previously. Moreover, they released Wasfi Qabha, the former Minister of Prisoners' Affairs, and Essa al-Ja'bari, the former Minister of Local Government.

Israeli forces continued to arrest Palestinians as they attempted to travel through Beit Hanoun (‘Erez’) crossing, including patients on their way to hospitals in the West Bank and Israel. In 2013, 10 Palestinians were arrested at the crossing. On 14 November 2013, Israeli forces arrested Abdullah Ahmed Ouda Abu Atherah (24), from al-Shabourah refugee camp in Rafah, when he went to an interview with the Israeli intelligence service at Erez crossing to check whether he could travel to have a surgery in al-Muttalte’ Hospital in Jerusalem. It should be noted that Abdullah has been suffering from hearing disorders for 3 years and he obtained an application form no. 1 from the External Medical Treatment Department to undergo an operation at Augusta Victoria (al-Muttalte’) Hospital. It was scheduled that he would undergo the operation on Friday, 15 November 2013.

In 2013, Israeli forces continued to arrest Palestinian civilians in the border area in the Gaza Strip, as the number of civilians arrested along the border fence reached 64, half of whom were less than 18.

Additionally, 5 Palestinian fishermen were arrested in the Gaza Strip by Israeli naval forces.

Administrative Detention

Administrative detention has been used by Israeli forces in order to arrest and detain Palestinians without charge or trial for long periods of time. Current administrative detention orders permit periods of detention of between 3 and 6 months, and are indefinitely renewable without reference to charge or trial. These orders are issued by Israeli district military commanders with responsibility for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

By the end of 2013, at least 142 Palestinians were still in custody under administrative detention orders issued by Israeli forces. Israel has adopted the use of the policy of administrative detention against thousands of Palestinians since 1967, when Israel occupied the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. The use of administrative detention violates the Fourth Geneva Convention.

10. According to statistics department at the Ministry of Prisoners – Ramallah.
of 1949, particularly Article 78 which prohibits the use of this measure as a form of punishment, calling it an exceptional measure confined to use for “imperative reasons of security”.

In 2013, Israeli forces transferred dozens of Palestinian prisoners to administrative detention, including 8 PLC members, due to which the number of PLC members under administrative detention raised to 11: Ahmed Atoun, from Jerusalem; Hassan Yusef Khalil, from Ramallah; Abdul Jaber Mostafa Foqaha', from Ramallah; Mohammed Abu Tair, from Ramallah, Mahmoud Ahmed al-Ramahi, from Ramallah; Nizar Ramadan, from Hebron; Mohammed Jamal al-Natsche, from Hebron; Mohammed Maher Bader, from Hebron; Mohammed Isma'il al-Tal, from Hebron; Hatem Qfeisha, from Hebron; and Yasser Dawood Mansour, from Nablus.

In 2013, the administrative detainees took a series of measures to enhance their detention conditions and to protest at their detention. In October, the administrative detainees took a number of steps in a letter sent to many organizations, including human rights organizations, to protest at the Israeli authorities’ practices. The first step was to boycott the military courts specialized in administrative detention; the second, to gradually return meals; and the third, to start an open-ended hunger strike, including the patients who would stop taking their medications. On 25 October, they started the hunger strike 2 days a week, but the Israeli authorities did not respond to their demands and took escalating measures against them such as, denying family visits, threats to prevent them from buying cantina food and drinks and reducing the break from 5 hours to 1. Moreover, the Israeli authorities imposed collective isolation on a number of detainees, especially those on hunger strike, and threatened to transfer them to a special section in the Negev prison.

In 2013, Ayman al-Sharawna (36) and Samer al-Eissawi (33), from Jerusalem, continued their hunger strike. Al-Sharawna began his hunger strike on 1 July 2012, while al-Eissawi began on 1 August 2012, in protest at their detention conditions. On 17 March 2013, al-Sharawna concluded a deal with the Israeli authorities, under which he would stop his 260-day hunger strike in return for deporting him to Gaza for 10 years. Al-Eissawi continued his hunger strike until 23 April 2013, as he stopped the strike in return for staying for 8 more months in prison, after which he would be released and returned to Jerusalem. On 23 December 2013, al-Eissawi completed his detention period and was released.

Deaths in the Israeli Prisons

The Palestinian prisoners suffer due to medical negligence in the Israeli prisons. Israeli authorities in prisons do not offer the adequate medical treatment to hundreds of patients when needed, due to which, they prisoners’ health conditions deteriorate and lead to death. According to some statistics,11 the prisoners include around 1,500 patients, including hundreds of those suffering from chronic and serious diseases, 20 of whom stay permanently in al-Ramla prison’s hospital as they suffer from disabilities, paralysis, cardiac problems or cancer. Of those patients, there are Mo'tasem Raddad, Mahmoud Abu Saleh, Khaled al-Shaweesh, Nahedh al-Aqra', Mansour Mawqada, Mahmoud Salman, Alaa’ al-Hams, Mohammed Brash, Murad Abu M’eileq, Na’im Shawamra and Tha’er Halahla. In addition, there are 16 prisoners who suffer from mental and neurological problems and others suffer from physical and mental disabilities. In 2013, 3 prisoners died in the Israeli prisons. One of whom died in suspicious circumstances that he was tortured while he was being interrogated, while the 2 others died due to medical negligence and denial of their right to receive medical treatment and health care. The prisoners were:

1. Arafat Shalish Jaradat: died on 23 February 2013, on the fifth day of his detention in Megiddo Prison. Israeli Prison Service claimed that he died due to an apparent heart attack. However, the Palestinian Authority and human rights organizations suspected the Israeli claim and called for an independent investigation in the circumstances of his death. Israeli authorities transferred his body to the forensic institute in Tel Aviv for autopsy in presence of Dr. Saber al-’Aloul, a Palestinian doctor, and 2 other Israeli doctors. They found that he did not die because of a heart attack. The heart autopsy results – according to the Palestinian doctor’s report – showed the heart muscle had no injuries or illness signs. The report also confirmed that there were many bruises in the corpse and all bruises were recent resulting from direct torture.

2. Maysara Abu Hamdiya: died on 02 April 2013 in Soroka Hospital in Be’ersheba, Israel, while his hands and legs were bound. Abu Hamdiya had been suffering from cancer of the throat and had been recently transferred from prison to the hospital. He was initially detained by Israeli forces on 28 May 2002 and sentenced to 25 years of imprisonment; however, on 22 April 2007, an Israeli court increased the sentence to life imprisonment. In 2005, his health condition deteriorated because of a hole through the wall of the stomach. Four months before his death, Abu Hamdiya was diagnosed with cancer of the throat. By the time of diagnosis, his illness was at an advanced stage. Since the time of Abu Hamdiya’s initial arrest, he was denied family visits by the Israeli authorities. More recently, some members of his family were allowed to visit him following the deterioration of his health condition. Israeli authorities had rejected all demands for his release.

Lawyer Jawad Paulis, Director of the Legal Unit in the Palestinian Prisoners Club, was quoted in the media as saying that he visited Abu Hamdiya in Soroka Hospital two days earlier. Abu Hamdiya’s hands and feet were tied, and the Israeli guards refused to remove the chains during the visit. Paulis stated that Abu Hamdiya had been in a very serious condition, and was unable to speak.

3. Hassan al-Turabi: died on 05 November 2013 at al-Afula hospital in Israel. Israeli forces had arrested him from his house in Surrah village, southeast of Nablus, on 07 January 2013, although they learnt that he was suffering from leukaemia. The Israeli military prosecutor accused al-Turabi of being a member of Islamic Jihad and joining one of its armed cells. His health condition deteriorated in Magiddo Prison inside Israel as a result of a burst of blood vessels and severe blood vomiting, so he was evacuated to al-Afula Hospital. He was admitted into the intensive care unit, where it was found that he was suffering from 3 clots in the neck, the chest and the abdomen.

Torture and Ill-Treatment

Palestinian prisoners in Israeli jails are subjected to various forms of torture and inhuman and degrading treatment. They suffer violent beatings and insults, and endure various forms of torture during interrogation, including physical ill-treatment, sleep deprivation, denial of visitation rights and proper health care, and denial of their right to meet with their lawyers and receive legal counselling.
In 2013, Arafat Jaradat,12 from Hebron, died on 23 February on the fifth days of his arrest due to torture during interrogation in Megiddo Prison. The medical report confirmed that there were bruises on the corpse resulting from severe and direct torture.

The torture and ill-treatment methods include:

1. Blindfolding and hitting the detainee, especially in the face and abdomen;
2. Strangling the detainee, causing extreme difficulty breathing;
3. Insulting the detainee and insulting Allah;
4. Forcibly removing the detainee’s beard;
5. Hanging the detainee upside-down by his feet, and hitting him in sensitive parts of the body, such as the testicles;
6. Bridging, a method in which three interrogators use chains to carry the detainee, with his face down. In one documented case, this led a detainee to urinate blood;
7. Sexually abusing and raping detainees, in some cases using iron bars;
8. Shabeh for long periods, sometimes up to 48 hours;
9. Tight handcuffing, tying the hands and legs with plastic ties that cause severe pain; and
10. Sleep deprivation for long periods.

In 2013, Israeli forces continued to attack journalists, disregarding the protection extended to journalists under international law. It is evident that attacks on journalists by Israeli forces, which violate the right of journalists to personal security as they carry out their work, are part of a campaign to isolate the oPt from the rest of the world and prevent the media from covering crimes committed against civilians by Israeli forces.

PCHR documented other attacks on journalists during 2013, the most prominent of which were in the West Bank. The types of attacks included: firing at journalists; beating and other forms of cruel, inhuman, and degrading treatment; detention of journalists; denying journalists access to certain areas; confiscation of and/or damaging journalistic equipment; and raids on media offices and the homes of journalists.

Violations of the Right to Life and Personal Security of Journalists

In 2013, the Israeli forces continued to commit violations of the right to life and personal security of journalists, including firing at journalists with live ammunition, rubber-coated metal bullets, sound bombs and tear gas canisters. The most prominent attacks were as follows:

» On 25 January, Hamdi Fat’hi Abu Rahma, a photojournalist, was hit by a tear gas canister to the right side of his neck while he was covering Israeli attacks against a weekly demonstration in Bil’in village, west of Ramallah in the central West Bank. Dozens of Palestinian civilians and international human rights activists gathered in the village and made their way through its streets in protest against the construction of the annexation wall. It should be noted that Abu Rahma works for the popular committee against the annexation wall and settlement activities in the village.

» On 08 February, Bashar Mahmoud Saleh, a cameraman of Palestine TV, was hit by a tear gas canister to the left shoulder that was fired by Israeli soldiers to prevent him from carrying out his job in Kufor Qaddoum village, east of Qalqilya in the northern West Bank. Saleh was covering the Israeli attacks against a peaceful demonstration organized by dozens of Palestinian civilians and international activists in the village in protest against the closure of the eastern entrance of the village since the beginning of the Second Intifada.

» On 22 February, Abdul Hafiz al-Hashlamoun, a photojournalist of the European News Agency, sustained a rubber-coated metal bullet wound to the right foot when Israeli soldiers fired at him while doing his job in Hebron. Al-Hashlamoun was covering Israeli attacks against a gathering of dozens of Palestinian civilians and international activists in front of Ali al-Bakka’ Mosque, demanding the opening of al-Shuhada’ street that has been closed since 1994 following the Ibrahimi Mosque massacre.
» On 01 March, Jihad Isma'il al-Qadi, a freelance photojournalist, sustained a bullet wound to the left side of the abdomen when Israeli soldiers fired at him although he had put on a press vest and held a camera. Al-Qadi was covering the Israeli soldiers’ dispersal of demonstrations in front of Ofer detention facility, southwest of Ramallah in the central West Bank. He was taken by a Palestinian ambulance to Palestine Medical Complex in the city. It was found that the bullet caused serious wounds in the spleen. As a result, he underwent a surgery on the same day. The surgery took 4 hours, in which he went through splenectomy.

» On 26 July, Haitham Mohammed al-Khatib, a photojournalist working for the popular committee against the annexation wall and a volunteer at B’Tselem, was hit by a tear gas canister to the back while he was covering Israeli attacks against a peaceful demonstration in Bil’in village, west of Ramallah, against the construction of the annexation wall.

» On 27 September, an Israeli soldiers fired 2 rubber-coated metal bullets at Mousa Ali al-Sha’er, a photojournalist of France Press, once he stepped out of his vehicle at the eastern entrance of Ayda refugee camp, north of Bethlehem in the southern West Bank. As a result, he was wounded in the chest and the right hand. He was directly taken to Beit Jala Hospital for medical treatment. It should be noted that al-Sha’er had put on a press vest and stepped out of a vehicle with a press logo. Al-Sha’er went to that area to cover Israeli attacks against dozens of Palestinian demonstrators.

» On 04 October, Ali Dar Ali, a cameraman of Palestine TV, was hit by a tear gas canister to the right leg while covering Israeli soldiers’ dispersal of a weekly demonstration organized by dozens of Palestinian civilians and international activists in protest against the construction of the annexation wall in Bil’in village in Ramallah. An Israeli soldier targeted Dar Ali although the latter was wearing a press vest.

» On 22 October, Amjad Shouman, a cameraman of the local Watan TV, sustained a rubber-coated metal bullet wound to the head. Israeli soldiers fired at him while he was covering Israeli attacks against a peaceful demonstration in Bil’in village, west of Ramallah. Shouman was taken to Ramallah Hospital for medical treatment.

Beating and Other Forms of Cruel, Inhuman, and Degrading Treatment

» On 21 June, Belal Abdul Salam Tamimi, a volunteer at B’Tselem, sustained bruises throughout his body as he was beaten up by Israeli soldiers. Tamimi was covering Israeli attacks against a peaceful demonstration in al-Nabi Saleh village, northwest of Ramallah, in protest against the construction of the annexation wall and settlement activities in the village.

» On the same day, a number of Palestine TV's staff members were beaten up by Israeli soldiers while they were covering Israeli attacks against a peaceful demonstration in Kufor Qaddoum village, east of Qalqilya. The staff comprised of 2 journalists: Ahmed Abdul Malek Shawar and Bashar Mahmoud Saleh. They received first medical aid on the spot.

Detention of Journalists

In 2013, many journalists in the West Bank were detained. In some cases, Israeli forces raided and searched houses of journalists. The most significant cases were as follows:

» On 08 February, Israeli forces detained 3 journalists while covering Israeli attacks against a peaceful demonstration in protest against the demolition of Canaan village that was established by Palestinians and international activists on a land confiscated by Israeli forces in Yatta, south of Hebron in the southern West Bank. The detainees were:
1. Abdul Hafiz al-Hashlamoun, a photojournalist of the European News Agency;
2. Hosam Abu ‘Allan, a photojournalist of the Palestinian News Agency (Wafa); and
3. Abdul Ghani al-Natsha, a photojournalist of PalMedia for Media Production.

In the early morning, Israeli forces attacked a number of civilians and international activists who established 3 tents in al-Taban area, east of Yatta, in order to establish Canaan village on that confiscated land. Israeli forces used excessive force and sewage water to disperse the them. As a result, dozens of civilians and activists participated in a peaceful demonstration in protest against the demolition of the village. The detained journalists were released later on the same day.

» On 13 August, Mohammed Shokri Awad, a photojournalist at Watan News Agency, was arrested from his house in Budrus village, west of Ramallah, in the central West Bank. He was detained in Asqalan military prison and later brought before a military court in the same month. The court decided to extend his detention period.

» On 06 March, Israeli forces raided a house belonging to the family of Baker Ibrahim ‘Eteili, a photojournalist at al-Najah media office, in Rafidiya neighbourhood in the west of Nablus in the northern West Bank. They detained the aforementioned person and took him to al-Jalama military facility, where he was brought to a military trial. His detention period was extended with no charges brought against him.

At approximately 00:15, on the abovementioned day, Israeli forces moved into Bethlehem and patrolled the streets. They stopped the 3 journalists on Jerusalem – Hebron road and detained them after checking their ID cards and preventing them from filming.

» On 13 August, Israeli forces raided and searched a house belonging to the family of Mohammed Shokri Awad, a photojournalist at Watan News Agency, in Budrus village, west of Ramallah, in the central West Bank. They confiscated 2 laptops, a camera and a cell phone. Israeli forces took him to Asqalan military prison where he appeared before a military court in the same month. The court decided to extend his detention period.

House Raids

House raids the were accompanies by arresting journalists:

» On 06 March, Israeli forces raided and searched a house belonging to Baker Ibrahim ‘Eteili, a photojournalist at al-Najah media office, on street (16) in Rafidiya neighbourhood in the west of Nablus in the northern West Bank. They arrested Baker and took him to al-Jalama military facility, where he appeared before a military court that extended his detention period with no charges brought against him.

» On 13 August, Israeli forces raided and searched a house belonging to the family of Mohammed Shokri Awad, a photojournalist at Watan News Agency, in Budrus village, west of Ramallah, in the central West Bank. They confiscated 2 laptops, a camera and a cell phone. Israeli forces took him to Asqalan military prison where he appeared before a military court in the same month. The court decided to extend his detention period.
The suffering of the Palestinian civilian population is aggravated by such attacks, especially in the Gaza Strip, where there is a serious shortage of construction materials required for the reconstruction of destroyed houses. The import of construction materials for the private sector has been banned by Israeli forces for more than seven years. Israeli forces have also continued to demolish and destroy Palestinian civilian property in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem. Demolitions in East Jerusalem have continued to escalate, and are carried out as part of the Israeli policy aimed at creating a Jewish demographic majority in the city. This is a form of ethnic cleansing against the Palestinian population of East Jerusalem, forcing them to evacuate their houses against their will under a variety of pretexts.

Demolition and Destruction of Civilian Property in the Gaza Strip

Israel's policy of demolishing and destroying residential buildings is a flagrant violation of the fourth Geneva Convention 1949, especially articles 49 and 53. The destruction of civilian property is a form of punishment against civilians in the Gaza Strip, which is prohibited according to the international human rights law. The destruction of civilian property violates the right to adequate housing under article 11 of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights.

In the Gaza Strip, Israeli forces destroyed 6 houses in 2013, one of which was completely destroyed while the 5 others sustained partial damage. Those houses sheltered 8 families consisting of 38 persons, including 16 children. Israeli forces used air strikes to attack houses. As a result, another 13 houses sustained damage. Violation of the right to adequate housing also undermines the right to life. An artillery shelling of 2 houses resulted in their partial destruction as they were targeted by 3 shells. This attack resulted in killing a 3-year-old girl and wounding 3 others civilians, including a woman and her 2 children, in the east of al-Maghazi refugee camp in the central Gaza Strip.

Destruction of Civilian Property in the West Bank

Israeli forces continued to demolish Palestinian houses in ‘Area C’, which is under full Israeli control in accordance with the Oslo Accords, for the purpose of settlement expansion. In 2013, this policy affected houses throughout the West Bank, but demolitions were focused largely in occupied East Jerusalem.¹³ Demolitions in the West Bank were carried out under the pretext that the building owners lacked the required building licenses from the Planning and Building Department of the Israeli Civil Administration in the ‘Beit El’ settlement or, for houses in occupied East Jerusalem, the Israeli municipality in Jerusalem.

¹³. This policy cannot be isolated from the policy of settlement expansion and the construction of the annexation wall, which are highlighted below.
The Israeli authorities adopt prolonged and complicated procedures to grant building licenses to Palestinians. However, they facilitate the settlement construction works under the pretext of the natural growth of settlers. As a result, Palestinian civilians, under duress from Israeli forces, often demolish their homes themselves in order to avoid having to pay the extremely high costs that would be imposed if the demolition was carried out by Israeli forces.

This year witnessed a serious escalation in the demolition of houses and other civilian property used for industrial, agricultural or commercial purposes. In 2013, according to the United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA), Israeli forces demolished 663 civilian facilities, including 98 ones in occupied East Jerusalem and 565 ones in area (C), including the Jordan Valley. As a result, 1,103 persons, including 545 children became homeless. According to the above-mentioned source, the number of facilities destroyed by Israeli forces from 2009 until the end of 2013 raised up to the destruction of 2,603 civilian facilities, including 370 ones in East Jerusalem and 2,233 in area (C), including the Jordan Valley. Moreover, the number of Palestinians who evacuated their homes and property amounted to 4,332 persons, including 2,266 children.

In 2013, East Jerusalem witnessed a significant increase in the demolition of houses and civilian property. Based on al-Maqdesi Foundation for Social Development, the Israeli municipality, Ministry of Interior, Authority of Nature and Civil Administration demolished 106 residential and non-residential facilities, including 59 residential units and 47 establishments, and forced 14 civilians to demolish their own houses under the threat of imprisonment or high fines. As a result, 453 persons, including 246 children and 112 women became homeless. Demolitions were carried out in most of the areas and neighbourhoods in occupied Jerusalem, but were focused mainly in Beit Hanina as Israeli forces carried out 10 demolitions that resulted in the displacement of 201 persons, including 110 children. Moreover, 6 demolitions were carried out in the Old Town, due to which 42 persons became homeless, including 26 children. Other demolitions were carried out in Silwan, Jabal al-Mukabber, Sour Baher, al-Tour and al-Eisawiya neighbourhoods in occupied Jerusalem. Al-Maqdesi Foundation for Social Development pointed out that Israeli authorities demolished 1,230 residential and non-residential facilities in occupied Jerusalem from 2000 to 2013. As a result, 5,419 persons, including 1,423 women and 2,832 children, became homeless.14

PCHR documented the demolitions of 199 houses in the West Bank in 2013, including 70 houses in East Jerusalem; 14 of which were demolished by their owners. Israeli forces force Palestinians in East Jerusalem to demolish their houses so they would not pay high fines to the Israeli authorities. Demolitions in the West Bank were as follows: 70 houses in Jerusalem; 59 houses in Tubas; 31 houses in Jenin; 23 houses in Jericho; 15 houses in Hebron; and one house in Bethlehem.

PCHR also documented the demolitions of 206 facilities used for non-residential purposes such as barracks, stores, fences, tents, roads and electricity networks, including 47 facilities in Jerusalem. PCHR's fieldworkers face difficulties in the documentation of the Israeli violations in area (C) in the West Bank, including the Jordan Valley and Jerusalem, because of the Israeli restrictions.

Settlement Activities and Attacks by Settlers against Palestinian Civilians and Property

The Israeli government, its occupation forces and settlers living in the oPt in violation of international law have continued the expansion of settlements in the West Bank. Armed Israeli settlers, protected by Israeli forces, have continued to commit crimes against Palestinian civilians and property. In 2013, Israeli settlers escalated their attacks against Palestinian civilians and property, launching some joint attacks with the Israeli forces against Palestinian civilians.

Settlement Expansion

The Israeli government, its occupation forces, and settlers living on Palestinian land in violation of international law have continued the expansion of settlements in the West Bank, under the pretext that expansion is necessary to accommodate the natural population growth of settlers.

Israeli settlement activities in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, clearly violate international humanitarian law and international resolutions. In spite of increasing international criticism to Israeli settlement activities in the oPt, the Israeli government escalated these activities allegedly to meet the need of natural growth of settlers. PCHR emphasizes that the Palestinian territory (the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, and the Gaza Strip) is an occupied territory according to the international humanitarian law and the international legitimacy resolutions. Therefore, PCHR has persistently called upon the international community to immediately intervene to compel the Israeli government to stop all settlement activities in the oPt, especially in East Jerusalem, and dismantle Israeli settlements, which constitute a war crime under international humanitarian law.

Confiscation of Palestinian Civilian Property

Israeli forces have continued to confiscate civilian property belonging to Palestinians to facilitate the expansion of settlements. This is in violation of international humanitarian law, which prohibits changing the nature of an occupied territory unless there is a military necessity in the narrow sense of the term—a condition that is not fulfilled in this case. In 2013, Israeli forces confiscated and/or leveled at least 10,800 dunums of land across the West Bank, including 196 dunums in occupied East Jerusalem.

In the reporting period, the area categorised as ‘Area C’ under the Oslo Accords, as agreed between the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) and the Israeli government in 1993, was the main target of Israeli confiscation operations in 2013. The aim is to evacuate the Palestinian population to make way for settlement expansion projects. Communities in the area were subjected to wide-scale demolition operations against houses and agricultural facilities, such as water wells, rainwater harvesting pools and cattle barns. Israeli forces issued hundreds of demolition notices for these facilities.
In addition, thousands of trees were attacked by Israeli forces and settlers in the West Bank. They cut off, burnt, damaged and dumped trees with sewage water. In 2013, the number of attacked trees reached 13,075 trees: 880 in Jerusalem; 6,933 in Nablus; 1,793 in Bethlehem; 1,793 in Hebron; 800 in Jenin; 353 in Qalqilya; 323 in Ramallah; and 40 in Salfit.15

Ethnic Cleansing

Following the Oslo Accords in 1993, Israeli forces targeted area (C) for settlement expansion. The Palestinian civilians became victims of those projects, especially in East Jerusalem as it witnessed the expansion of “Ma’ale Adumim” settlement with the implementation of the E1 Plan that would further isolate Jerusalem from the West Bank, while cutting the northern West Bank off from its southern reaches.

Israeli forces apply this policy of ethnic cleansing in area (C) through demolishing houses and livestock barns under the pretext they were built with no building licenses from the (Civil Administration). Israeli forces force residents to evacuate these areas under the pretext of military training or they are part of military zones.

In 2013, Israeli forces demolished entire Bedouin villages like what happened in Kherbet Mak’houl, east of Tubas in the north of Jordan valley. They demolished 12 houses made of tents and tin plates and 28 livestock barns. As a result, 48 persons, including 17 children, became homeless. Moreover, Israeli forces confiscated aid and tents offered to the Kherbeh residents and took into custody 2 truckloads of aid for affected families.

On 23 and 24 October 2013, Israeli forces forced at gun point 160 Palestinian civilians from Bzeiq, Homosa and al-Burj areas in the north of Jordan valley to evacuate their houses. In addition, 3,000 sheep were evacuated from their barns under the pretext of carrying out military training with heavy military vehicles. Israeli forces notify the Palestinians now and then to evacuate their houses, demolish them and confiscate their livelihood in order to force them evacuate the Jordan valley. On the same days, the Israeli military leadership issued a military order to forcibly evacuate Kherbet al-Hadidiya, east of Tubas, from its residents under the pretext they were present in a closed military zone.

The most serious plan implemented by Israeli forces is to make residents of those areas gather in one place, which is a form of compulsory displacement. A report issued by B’Tselem indicated that the Civil Administration was planning to transfer civilians in the Bedouin villages residing in areas (C). The report stated that in stage (1), which was supposed to be implemented in January 2012, the Civil Administration was planning to forcibly evacuate around 20 Bedouin villages from their places of residence (about 2,300 persons) and transfer them to an area near Abu Dees landfill, east of Jerusalem. Residents of these Bedouin villages reside now in the areas of “Ma’aleh Adumim” settlement and the surrounding settlements while half of them live in areas that were identified by Israel as (E1) areas, which are designated for the future expansion of “Ma’aleh Adumim” settlement. In stage (2), the Civil Administration planned to transfer other communities from the Jordan valley. In addition, they consider the possibility of establishing a permanent village for those communities near al-Nabi Mousa site, west of Jericho.\textsuperscript{16}

In the same context, Maariv newspaper published on its website on 16 May 2013 that “Civil Administration” considered plans to establish a city named “al-Nowai‘ema” in the Jordan Valley, north of Jericho, which is supposed to accommodate tens of thousands of people by the end of the plan. Although they are talking about lands under the Palestinian control, the newspaper indicated that for the implementation of that plan Israel would “transfer” around 2,000 dunums from the lands of the “regional council of Bek‘at Herdin” for this purpose. According to the Civil Administration, the establishment of the new city would “prevent Palestinians from building houses illegally.” According to Maariv newspaper, in the first stage, al-Nowai‘ema would accommodate around 8,000 persons in 1,140 residential units. In the first neighbourhood of the city, there would be houses; each one is built on half a dunum area. There should be open areas and public facilities, electricity and water networks. It is clear from the plan that in addition to possessing some houses in the free market, some houses would be given to Bedouins “who live illegally on state land in Jericho”!!\textsuperscript{17}

\textbf{Efforts to Create a Jewish Demographic Majority in Jerusalem}

The Israeli government and its occupation forces have continued the construction of settlements in East Jerusalem and its suburbs in an effort to create a Jewish demographic majority in the city. They have cut off East Jerusalem from the West Bank, constructed new sections of the annexation wall and continued activities of settlement expansion in and around the city. The Israeli Municipality of Jerusalem has continued to demolish Palestinian houses under the pretext of the lack of construction licenses. In 2013, there was an escalation in the demolitions of homes and civilian property, and an increasing number of demolition notices were delivered to Palestinian civilians in East Jerusalem and its suburbs.

In addition to these illegal measures, the Israeli Ministry of Interior continued to withdraw identity cards from Palestinian civilians living in the city and expel them from the city to areas in the West Bank. The Ministry withdraws identity cards under various pretexts, including political allegiances or the fact that the individual works outside the boundaries of the city.

In 2013, Israeli forces, under the instructions of the Municipality of Jerusalem, continued to demolish Palestinian houses throughout the city and its suburbs, citing unlicensed construction as the reason for demolition. The municipality continued to impose lengthy and complicated procedures on Palestinian civilians who attempted to obtain construction licenses. Thus, many Palestinians, under pressure to build new houses or expand existing homes due to natural population growth, do so without obtaining licenses. Meanwhile, Israel, through the Municipality of Jerusalem, the Ministry of Housing, the Ministry of Interior and settlement associations, approved the construction of thousands of housing units for Israeli settlers inside and around Jerusalem. PCHR stresses that such practices in Jerusalem are illegal, and condemns the Municipality of Jerusalem’s discriminatory approach to issuing building licenses to the Palestinian population. The policy adopted by Israeli forces regarding the granting of building licenses is discriminatory in nature, as Palestinian civilians have to follow very complicated procedures to obtain licenses, whereas Israelis can obtain such licenses easily.

The most serious settlement project in occupied Jerusalem in 2013 was the Israeli government’s approval on the “National Park” plan in the villages of al-Tur and al-Issawiya in East Jerusalem. According to information available at PCHR, this plan will confiscate 740 dunums of the Palestinian lands in the two aforementioned villages resulting in depriving their residents of the urban expansion towards these lands. On behalf of the local committee for planning and building, the Jerusalem Civic Coalition, Adala and The Arab Centre for Alternative Planning filed a petition objecting the establishment of “the national park” against the Israeli district planning and construction committee.

According to the plan, the legal status of the land was changed from lands designated for public building into “national parks”. Thus, building or planning for the public interest is prevented in order to pave the way for “the national park”. Moreover, the park aims to link the Hebrew University from the west with the main street of “Ma’aleh Adomim” settlement in the east, and al-Tur village in the south to al-Issawiya in the north. On the other hand, future tourism projects would be established in the area under the plan.

“The National Park” plan is a strategic part of the implementation of the Master Plan as the park will surround Palestinian neighborhoods. In the same context, Israeli authorities do not work on putting plans that meet the Palestinians’ growing need to live in these neighborhoods. Thus, establishing that park will deepen the housing crisis of Palestinians in East Jerusalem, which suffers from a lack of around 46,000 housing units.

The plan is in harmony with a larger settlement plan to create geographical contiguity between Jerusalem and both “Ma’aleh Adumim” settlement and the northeastern settlements of Jerusalem taking into consideration that the area is the gate of Jerusalem in the area of (E1) settlement plan. The plan will directly link the northeastern settlements of Jerusalem, “Anatout”, “Yamin Adam”, “Jev’a Ben”; “Besaghot”, “Kokhaf Ya’aqoub” and others, with Jerusalem within a plan, through which these settlement blocs will be maintained under the Israeli control. This will be achieved through establishing a safe security network for settlers only and another network for Palestinians, so both parties will not meet.18

On the level of settlement activities, Israeli forces have continued the settlement projects and expansion even during the negotiations that were resumed in the middle of the year. Israeli approval was given to build 2,433 housing units in the settlements of “Gilo”, “Ramat Shlomo” and “Talpiot” in April, August and October. In addition, Israel approved building settlement units in al-Maghareba Gate’s square (Givati Park) at the entrance of Silwan village. In 2013, the Israeli government invited bids to build 2,015 settlement units in “Pisgat Ze’ev” settlement in Beit Hanina, “Har Homa” settlement in Bethlehem, “Ramat Shlomo” settlement in Shu’fat and “Gilo” settlement in Beit Safafa.19

It should be noted that the Israeli efforts to create a Jewish demographic majority in East Jerusalem started by Israel's declaration of the annexation of the occupied city to Israel, confiscation of Palestinians' property, establishment of settlements, establishment of the annexation wall, depriving its inhabitants from building houses, demolition of old houses, issuance of racial decisions to evacuate the city from its inhabitants and separating it from its surroundings. PCHR believes that the policy of evacuating Jerusalem from its residents is a means that is adopted by Israel in order to create a Jewish demographic majority there. All Israeli governments worked on limiting the number of Palestinians in Jerusalem to 22%. They also resorted to different ways to do that like the construction of the annexation wall and isolating tens of thousands of Palestinians away from the city, withdrawing IDs from the Arabs in the city and annexing settlements within the boundaries of Jerusalem municipality.

The Israeli authorities have continued to impose restrictions over the activities of Palestinian organizations in the city under the pretext they belong to the PLO and/or PNA. The Israeli practices against those organizations included raiding their offices, not allowing celebrations or meetings of the organizations' boards even if the arranged activity is a social one.

Israeli forces have continued to violate the right to freedom of religion of Muslim and Christian Palestinians by denying them access to religious sites in Jerusalem, as well as by continuing excavations in the vicinity of the al-Aqsa Mosque, endangering the site and subjecting it to the threat of collapsing. According to the documentation of the Islamic Endowments (Awqaf) department in Jerusalem, al-Aqsa Mosque was stormed in 2013 by more than 13,268 Israelis, including ministers in the Israeli government, Knesset members, officials and members of different security services. The highest number of storms were carried out in September, when 1,595 extremist settlers stormed al-Aqsa Mosque during Yom Kippur Jewish holiday. In addition, the mosque was stormed by 1,133 extremist settlers in July on the anniversary of the so-called "destruction of the temple", 1,004 settlers in March on the Feast of Passover and 1,007 settlers on the anniversary of "Israel's independence" (Palestinian Nakba).

In the context of arrests in the city, 2013 witnessed a remarkable increase in the number of arrests against Jerusalemites throughout the city and its suburbs. Helwa Valley Information Centre in Silwan documented arresting 1,450 Jerusalemites, including 450 children and 25 women. In February, a 5-year-old boy from Silwan village was arrested and detained for about an hour inside a military jeep at the entrance of the village, and in January, an 8-year-old boy from al-Eisawiya was arrested. In late 2013, Israeli forces arrested 3 children (7 years old each) from al-Aqsa Mosque yards. In a serious legal precedent, the Israeli police issued an arrest warrant in November against Mohammed Zain al-Majed (4) from al-Sa'diya neighbourhood. Israeli forces raided al-Majed's house, but the officer in charge was surprised the boy was too young. Therefore, Israeli forces threatened his father that the boy would be summoned for investigation, and withdrew.

Attacks by Israeli Settlers against Palestinian Civilians and Property

In 2013, armed Israeli settlers escalated their attacks against Palestinian civilians and their property in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem. Attacks were no longer a reaction to attacks by Palestinian armed groups against Israeli forces and settlers. They developed into systematic attacks against Palestinian civilians. In 2013, such attacks became even more systematic, often at times of complete quietness in the oPt. The organization form of such crimes and attacks evidently appeared in 2008, when Israeli settlers began to write the phrase “Price Tag” in Hebrew on the Palestinian objects they attacked, including mosques, houses and cars. In the last quarter of 2011, in light of the significant escalation of Israeli attacks against Palestinian civilians and their property, Israeli security officials began to talk about the existence of a settler organization holding the name “Price Tag,” after dozens of settlers attacked an Israeli military post in the north of the West Bank. protected by Israeli forces, have also continued to commit crimes against Palestinian civilians and property. In 2013, Israeli settlers escalated their attacks against Palestinian civilians and property. The settlers and Israeli forces also launched joint attacks against Palestinian civilians. Nevertheless, Israeli forces did not make major changes to their treatment of settlers, and maintained their old policies of protecting the settlers, and even joining them in their attacks against Palestinian civilians, instead of enforcing the law on the settlers.

Based on monitoring and documentation of crimes committed by Israeli settlers in the oPt, including East Jerusalem, PCHR emphasizes that those attacks were launched by Israeli settlers under the Israeli forces’ protection, which even joined them in launching dozens of attacks. Israeli forces do not intervene to stop such attacks, nor do they take legal action against settlers. In general, Israeli forces ignore complaints submitted by Palestinian victims against Israeli settlers and do not investigate them. This policy adopted by Israeli forces encourages settlers to commit more crimes against Palestinian civilians, and frustrates Palestinian victims who abstain from submitting complaints to Israeli authorities because they are convinced that Israeli authorities would no seriously consider and investigate their complaints.

PCHR documented 291 attacks by Israeli settlers against Palestinian civilians in 2013. These attacks resulted in wounding 29 Palestinian civilians, including 8 children, while 30 others, including 8 children, sustained bruises and glass shrapnel wounds. Moreover, 10 sheep died, 75 Palestinian vehicles’ tires and windows were damaged and 3,535 trees were cut off and burnt.

Statistics relevant to the settler attacks are as follows:

1. Shooting Incidents: The settlers carried out 3 shooting incidents, due to which a Palestinian civilian was seriously wounded.
2. Joint Attacks by Settlers and Israeli Forces: 20 joint attacks were carried out by settlers and Israeli forces. As a result, 27 Palestinian civilians, including 8 children, were wounded.
3. Run-over Incidents: PCHR field workers documented 4 run-over incidents that led to wounding 3 children;
4. Attacks against Palestinian Farmers and Shepherds: Settlers carried out 46 attacks against shepherds and farmers. As a result, 18 Palestinian civilians sustained fractures and bruises; 10 sheep died; and 17 civilians were arrested by Israeli forces.
5. Attacks on Farmlands and Uprooting Trees: PCHR fieldworkers documented 59 attacks on farmlands. As a result, 3,535 trees, including 3,465 olive trees and 70 vineyards, were burnt or uprooted.
6. Settlement Expansion: Settlers carried out 55 attacks in this regard.
7. Riots on Public Roads: PCHR fieldworkers documented 20 riot incidents on public roads. As a result, 7 civilians, including 2 children, sustained bruises due to the flying glass, a vehicle was burnt and windows of 9 other vehicles were smashed.
8. Targeting Civilian Vehicles: PCHR fieldworkers documented 22 attacks carried out by settlers against Palestinian civilian vehicles targeting 66 vehicles, including 64 cars; a bus and a tractor.
9. Maltreatment: PCHR field workers documented 9 maltreatment incidents committed by settlers against Palestinian civilians. As a result, 2 civilians, including a child, were wounded.
10. Attacks on Religious Sites: PCHR fieldworkers documented 10 attacks against Islamic and Christian sites in the West Bank, including occupied Jerusalem;
11. Performing Talmudic Rituals to Seize Palestinian lands: Settlers carried out 31 attacks in this context;
12. Attacks on Houses: PCHR fieldworkers documented 10 attacks in this context.
13. Seizure of Houses in Occupied Jerusalem: PCHR fieldworkers documented two attempts to seize two Palestinian houses in Sho‘afat and al-Sheikh Jarrah neighborhoods.
The Annexation Wall in the West Bank

Over the years, Israel has completed the construction of many sections of the wall, which is being constructed inside West Bank territory rather than along the Green Line (the pre-1967 border) separating the West Bank from Israel. Citing security concerns in order to unilaterally create new facts on the ground, Israel has used the wall in its negotiations with Palestinians, who aspire to establish their state within the 4 June 1967 boundaries. The wall, with its effective annexation of Palestinian land, has created a new reality on the ground that makes it difficult to discuss the establishment of a viable, contiguous Palestinian state.

On 9 July 2004, the International Court of Justice (ICJ) issued an Advisory Opinion regarding the legal consequences of the wall, in response to a request by a UN General Assembly resolution of 3 December 2003. The ICJ ruled that the wall’s construction inside the oPt, including East Jerusalem, violates international law. It also found that Israel is obliged to put an end to its violations of international law, stop the construction works of the wall, dismantle the sections already constructed, abolish all relevant legislation and orders, and compensate Palestinians harmed by the construction of the wall.

In late June 2002, the Israeli government decided to construct a separation barrier between Israel and the West Bank in order to prevent Palestinians from entering Israeli territory except through an established security system. The Israeli government claimed that the barrier was being constructed as a security measure and without any political implications. Over time, as new facts were created on the ground, some Israeli politicians stated that the barrier would constitute the border line between Israel and a future Palestinian state.

In 2013, following the completion of the majority of the annexation wall from the northern, western and southern sides of the West Bank, it was planned to build a section of the wall along the Jordan River. In early November 2013, the Israeli Prime Minister, Benjamin Netanyahu, issued instructions to quickly set plans for the construction of the wall along the border with Jordan in order to complete this project as soon as possible, especially if the negotiations with the Palestinians failed. According to Maariv newspaper’s website, Netanyahu instructed the army and competent authorities in Israel to quickly prepare the plans. He justified the construction of the wall along the Jordanian border by securing the Israeli settlements in the Jordan Valley and other areas in the West Bank, especially in view of the increase of the number of Syrian refugees in Jordan. He considered the “presence of around 700,000 refugees would threaten the security of Israel in the future as they would be able to sneak into Israel through the border.” Netanyahu also wanted to highlight a basic point which is sending a clear message to the Palestinian leadership that Israel would not withdraw from the Jordan Valley even if the negotiations failed.20

Khalil al-Tufakji, a settlement affairs expert and the director of the maps section at Orient House in occupied Jerusalem, believes that the construction of the eastern wall is not new, but it seems that the Israeli authorities will implement it as a political message. Al-Tufakji pointed out that the Israeli security claims regarding the construction of the wall are fake. “There are water and investment interests, as the Jordan Valley equals tourism, agriculture, health tourism, Jordan River and open areas. What happens now is a form of ethnic cleansing.” The overall goal of this plan, according to al-Tufakji, is political. It is aimed at squeezing the future Palestinian state between the western and eastern walls. Concerning the population, al-Tufakji said: “Now, there are systematic evacuation of the population. The only towns that have remained inhabited are Jericho and al-Ouja; they will be annexed to the West Bank. For small villages like Bardala and Ein al-Ouja, they will be turned into residential communities to be isolated by the wall. To have access to these communities, one needs a permit the same as when entering the West Bank.”

Restrictions on Movement on Both Sides of the Annexation Wall

Israeli forces have imposed severe restrictions on the movement of Palestinians on both sides of the wall. In 2013, Israeli forces imposed additional restrictions on the movement of Palestinians.

Israeli forces reduced the hours during which gates established along the wall are opened, restricting access of Palestinian farmers to their agricultural lands, which are isolated behind the wall. Such measures are aimed at reducing the working hours of farmers, thus depriving them of their source of income.

During the olive harvest, Israeli forces imposed a strict system on Palestinian farmers, ordering them to obtain permits issued by the Israeli Civil Administration in order to reach their lands, which have been isolated by the annexation wall. Farmers are forced to present evidence of their ownership of the land in order to obtain permits, which is extremely difficult as many of these lands are still registered for people who died or left the country.

The construction of the wall has resulted in new restrictions on the movement of Palestinians living near the route of the wall, in addition to the widespread restrictions that have been in place since the outbreak of the Second Intifada in September 2000. Farming is a major source of income in the Palestinian communities located along the route of the wall. However, thousands of Palestinians have experienced difficulties accessing their fields and marketing their produce in other areas of the West Bank. This has a drastic impact on the economic prospects of the population – whose economic situation is already very difficult – and drives many families into poverty.

The impact of restrictions on the movement of Palestinians living near the wall has not been limited to the agricultural sector, but includes numerous other aspects of life. Access to medical care, education and relatives living in other parts of the oPt has been restricted. Palestinians are required to obtain permits to move through the gates which are built into the wall, and which are operated under a strict security system. Israeli forces often close these gates for no apparent reason.

Israeli authorities have continued to impose restrictions to deny the Palestinian victims access to the right to justice and remedy. After almost a year following the Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip in November 2013 “Operation Pillar of Defence” and over 4 years following “Operation Cast Lead” in 2008-2009, Palestinian victims have been waiting for their right to justice and judicial remedy. The Israeli authorities imposed legal, material and financial restrictions to shield the Israeli war criminals.

PCHR works on building legal files for the Palestinian civilian victims to help them get their rights. In 2013, PCHR’s lawyers worked hard to build files relevant to the “Pillar of Defence” to claim the victims’ criminal and civil rights in the context of PCHR’s work in the field of prosecuting Israeli war criminals and ensuring remedy to the victims. PCHR’s efforts before the Israeli courts prove to the whole world that the Israeli judicial system is corrupt and was founded to shield the Israeli war criminals from prosecution by misleading the international community that there are internal investigations.

According to PCHR’s Legal Aid Unit, PCHR’s lawyers submitted 248 notices to the Israeli Ministry of Defence to file cases in order to compensate the Palestinian victims (according to the Israeli law) due to the Israeli violations that resulted in killing 72 Palestinian civilians, wounding 104 others and the destruction of 75 houses during “Operation Pillar of Defence.” Moreover, PCHR submitted 79 complaints to the Israeli Military Advocate General to open criminal investigations in the Israeli violations and prosecute the perpetrators.

PCHR received only 26 replies regarding the 79 complaints. They were all negative. The last reply included a decision by the Israeli Military Advocate General to close the 2 files: the file of Hejazi family, in which 3 civilians were killed, 4 others were wounded and their house was completely destroyed; and the file of al-Dalou family case, in which 12 civilians were killed, including 5 children and 5 women from al-Dalou and al-Muzannar families, 6 others were wounded in the neighbouring houses, the targeted house was completely destroyed and the neighbouring houses sustained partial damage. The reply to the complaint regarding the al-Dalou family case was as follows: “Concerning this incident, the suspicion of the commission of a criminal offense and violation of the Law of War by any military body were not proven.”

PCHR stresses that the behaviour of the Israeli Military Advocate General comes as part of the systematic policy to deny the Palestinian victims their right to justice. This highlights that fact that PCHR had filed 490 criminal complaints to the Military Advocate General following “Operation Cast Lead”, but received only 19 replies relevant to 23 cases only. The majority of the replies were about receiving the complaints and claiming they would be considered. Furthermore, the Military Advocate General has never brought any of the respondents to justice although there were international reports proving the commission of war crimes and inferred the occurrence of crimes against humanity against Palestinians in oPt, especially during “Operation Cast Lead”. The most prominent report was the one prepared by the United Nations Fact Finding Mission on the Conflict in Gaza (the Goldstone Report).

The Committee of Independent Experts to investigate the allegations of violations during “Operation Cast Lead” highlighted in its reports that was issued in March 2011 that the Israeli authorities were not committed to the investigations in alleged war crimes committed against the Palestinian civilians. In addition, the Israeli investigations related to crimes committed during “Operation Cast Lead” that resulted in killing hundreds of Palestinian civilians led to the imprisonment of a soldier for 7 months for stealing an ATM card from a Palestinian house, the imprisonment of another for 45 days for killing 2 women while holding a white flag and the imprisonment of a third soldier for 3 months to use a Palestinian child as a human shield. This reflects PCHR’s position that stresses the falsity of the Israeli justice.

An amendment to the legislation, Amendment No. 8 to the Israeli Tort Law (Liability of the State) of 1952, which was approved by the Israeli Knesset on 16 July 2012, exempts the State of Israel of any liability arising from damages caused to a resident of an enemy territory during a ‘combat action’ or ‘military operation’. This amendment disregards the vital question of the legality of these attacks. It also ignores the damage caused to the victims as a result of such attacks, potentially violating rules governing the conduct of armed forces during military operations, as prescribed under international humanitarian law. Amendment No. 8 directly contravenes the norms of customary international law, which hold that a State is responsible for all acts committed by persons who are operating as part of its armed forces. The Israeli legal system is used to shield suspected Israeli war criminals from justice.

In February 2013, the Israeli central court in Beersheba cancelled 14 cases filed by PCHR to claim remedy for the Palestinian civilians who were killed, wounded or sustained financial loss due to the Israeli violations of the international law. Of the 14 cases, the court dismissed 11 cases based on Amendment No. 8. The other 3 cases were dismissed under the pretext they did not meet the procedural standards which require that a power of attorney for a civil case from the Gaza Strip is valid if it carries the signature and stamp of an Israeli diplomatic body. This requirement is impossible because the claimants from the Gaza Strip are denied access to Israel.

This amendment confirms the denial state against the Palestinians’ right to resort to the Israeli courts to claim for compensation. The Ministry of Defence has always ignored notices sent by PCHR to file civil cases on behalf of the Palestinian victims. For example, from 2009 – 2012, PCHR filed 1,046 complaints to the Compensation Officer in the Israeli Ministry of Defence, but received only 16 responses related to 26 cases. Thus, the amendment has offered a legal shield for this denial state for years.

The abovementioned measures are part of a larger chain of Israeli measures to deny the Palestinians’ right to remedy. In the past years, the Israeli authorities issued decisions and amended legislations through which they imposed legal, financial and material obstacles.
The ongoing imposition of obstacles denying Palestinians access to justice:

1. Statute of limitations

   According to Israeli law, civil complaints must be filed to the compensation officer in the Israeli Ministry of Defence within 60 days of the date of the incident. Compensation claims must be filed before the Israeli civil courts within two years of the date of the event. Otherwise, victims lose their right to an effective remedy. These periods constitute a significant obstacle in light of the restrictions placed on freedom of movement by the policy of closure imposed on the Gaza Strip, under which Palestinians are deprived of access to the Israeli investigation authorities and courts.

2. Court fees and court guarantees

   Israeli courts impose high court fees and court guarantees on Palestinians who file cases. Calculating the fees is left to the discretion of the court. In PCHR’s experience, court guarantees are at least 10,000 NIS (approximately USD 2,800) and can be much higher. In a recent case filed by PCHR, the plaintiffs were required to pay 20,000 NIS (approximately USD 5,600) in court guarantees for each of the victims on behalf of whom the claims were filed. These requirements constitute a significant monetary barrier to access to justice.

3. Physical access to lawyers and the courts

   Under the Israeli law, for a testimony or an affidavit to be legal, an eyewitness or a victim must physically appear before a court. Since 1967, in spite of decisions by courts summoning victims or eyewitnesses, Israeli forces have generally prevented them from travelling outside the Gaza Strip. As a result, victims’ claims are dismissed and dropped. In addition, due to restrictions imposed on the movement of its lawyers, PCHR has been forced to appoint lawyers inside Israel, which results in additional financial burdens. All applications submitted by Israeli lawyers requesting permission to travel to the Gaza Strip to meet with their clients have been rejected, negatively impacting their ability to adequately represent victims.
Section (2)
Palestinian Violations of Human Rights and Obstacles to Democratic Reform
In 2013, there were continued violations of the right to life and personal security due to the misuse of weapons, as well as violations of the rule of the law in the oPt. PCHR documented the deaths of at least 44 people (29 in the Gaza Strip and 11 in the West Bank), including 7 children and 5 women. More than 100 persons were also wounded. Violations of the right to life and personal security were perpetrated in the following contexts: the excessive use of force by law enforcement officials; illegal use of weapons; the use of weapons in personal and familial disputes, murders motivated by “family honour.”

The Excessive Use of Force by Law Enforcement Officials

In 2013, 5 persons were killed during law enforcement operations carried out by the security services (law enforcement officials), including 3 ones who were killed in the West Bank. It is unfortunate that PCHR does not know about conducting any impartial investigation into those incidents. The most prominent cases were as follow:

» On 02 February, Atiya Suleiman Qishta (41) was admitted to the Martyr Abu Yousef al-Najjar Hospital in Rafah as he had been wounded by a gunshot to the back. Medical efforts to save his life failed and he was pronounced dead an hour later. According to police sources, 8 members of the anti-drug unit of the police set an ambush for Qishta to arrest him in Othman Ben Affan Street near Zo’rob Building in Rafah. The police sources added that Qishta stepped down from his car, and when police officers ordered him to stop, he attempted to escape. In response, a police official fired a number of bullets at him.

» On 08 May, Khaledah Taysir Kawazzbah (44) was killed in Sa’ir village, east of Hebron in the south of the West Bank when Palestinian police officers opened fire at a grey Mazda car in which she was with her husband. In a subsequent development, four members of the same family were wounded by the Palestinian police officers in the same village as they attacked the police station when hearing that Khalidah was killed. They were then taken to Hebron and al-Ahli Governmental Hospitals in the city.

» On 06 June, Wissam Abu Sitta (30) was killed by a gunshot to the back; 5 other civilians, including a woman, were injured; and a wanted person was arrested in Beit Lahiah in the northern Gaza Strip during a law enforcement mission by the Palestinian police. The police officers used live ammunition, sticks and clubs when they attacked civilians to disperse them after they threw stones at the police officers.

» On 09 December, Hasan Mubarak Abu Muheimid (40) from al-Farides area, east of Bethlehem in the south of the West Bank when Palestinian police officers stationed at a checkpoint opened fire while in pursuit in al-‘Asakrah area. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, the aforementioned civilian, who is wanted for the police, was driving a silver Subaru car in al-'Asakrah area, when he was surprised with an ambush set by the Palestinian police to arrest him, but he attempted to escape. The police officers immediately fired a number of bullets at him. As a result, he was wounded with 3 bullets in the neck and chest, and the car was targeted with several bullets as well. The aforementioned civilian was taken to al-Hussein Governmental Hospital to receive medical treatment, but he died upon arrival.

» On 27 December, a number of security officers dressed in black military uniform opened fire at Mahmoud Sa'id al-Sa'di (34), a leader of Islamic Jihad, in the east of Jenin refugee camp in the north of the West Bank while attempting to arrest him. As a result, al-Sa'di was injured by 2 bullets in his left leg, and he was evacuated to the hospital. It should be mentioned that Al-Sa’idi accompanied with a number of public figures in the aforementioned camp intervened to prevent any further developments after the killing of Rifqi al-Rukh during an exchange of fire between two families in the camp.

Misuse of Weapons

In 2013, 16 persons were killed in incidents involving the misuse or mishandling of weapons in the oPt. One of those was killed in the West Bank. The most prominent cases were as follows:

» On 05 January, 6-year-old Mousa Mosheer Kaware’ was killed, and 4 persons, including 3 children, were injured when Mousa mishandled a mysterious object, which exploded near Ibn al-Qayem Mosque in Jouret al-Lout area in Khan Yunis in the southern Gaza Strip. The injured persons were taken to Nasser Hospital and the Gaza European Hospital in the city, where their wounds were described between moderate and serious.

» On 09 January, Abdul Karim Tawfiq Eissa (36), from Salem village east of Nablus, was shot dead by unknown gunmen. He was hit by several bullets to the head and abdomen. The Palestinian police arrived at the scene and opened an investigation.

» On 11 February, Ahmed Sidqi Ma’ali (39), from Deir Jarir village, northeast of Ramallah, was killed, and a bystander and an officer of the Palestinian Preventive Security Service, were injured when gunmen fired at them in al-Bireh in the West Bank as they were leaving Jamal Abdul Nasser Mosque in the city.

» On 24 February, a man fired from his pistol inside the Reception Department in Martyr Abu Yousef al-Najjar Hospital in Rafah. Bullets hit the ceiling and walls of the department, but no casualties were reported. Relatives of two persons injured in a road accident who were brought to the hospital thought that the medical crews procrastinated in offering medical treatment to the two persons and the transfer of one of them to the Gaza European Hospital was delayed, so one of them fired 4 bullets from his pistol.

» On 17 March, an explosive device, planted by unidentified persons, detonated in al-Ons Restaurant in the western part of Jabalya in the north of Gaza Strip. Shrapnel from this explosion injured the owner of the restaurant and 2 other workers in the restaurant, including a child.

» On 29 April, some unknown persons detonated an explosive device that was placed in front of the garage of a house belonging to Munther al-Bardawil, the Secretary of Fatah Movement in Rafah, in al-Junaina neighbourhood in Rafah. As a result of the explosion, some minor material damage was inflicted on the car, as well as the entrance of the garage and the house windows.

» On 13 May, unidentified gunmen fired at Majed Mohammed Abu Shammala’s house, located in Khalil Totah Street in al-Teirah neighbourhood in Ramallah in the central West Bank. Upon hearing the gunshots, Abu Shammala’s son went out of the house to find his father’s Mitsubishi Pajero car hit by several bullets. When the incident took place Abu Shammala was not at home.

» On 16 June, Ghazzi Jamal Nasser (23), from Deir al-Balah in the central Gaza Strip was killed when a hand grenade exploded in his hand.

» On 1 July, masked gunmen opened fire at a car belonging to Hussam Khader, former PLC Member, which was parked in front of his house in Yaffa area in Balata refugee camp, east of Nablus. The car was extensively damaged as it was hit by at least 20 bullets.
On 13 July, medical sources at Shifa Hospital in Gaza City pronounced Yusef Shadi Darweesh (3) dead of his wounds. At approximately 22:45 on Friday, 12 July 2013, Darweesh was wounded by a bullet to the head fired from an unknown source while playing with his relatives in the yard of his family’s house in al-Nussairat refugee camp in the central Gaza Strip. Darweesh was immediately taken to al-Aqsa Martyrs’ Hospital in Deir al-Balah. He was then transferred to Shifa Hospital due to the seriousness of his injury.

On 31 July, four masked gunmen opened fire at Mohammed ‘Alian al-Tilbani (61) and his son ‘Alian (26) when the gunmen raided a factory owned by the aforementioned civilian in Deir al-Balah in the central Gaza Strip. Darweesh was immediately taken to al-Aqsa Martyrs’ Hospital in Deir al-Balah. He was then transferred to Shifa Hospital due to the seriousness of his injury.

On 21 September, Saleem Ahmed Rajab (al-Kilani) (21), from Beit Lahiah in the northern Gaza Strip, was killed by 2 bullets that were accidentally unleashed from a gun which was mishandled by his friend.

On 30 December, Leen Mohammed Humaida, 17, from Gaza City, was admitted into Shifa Hospital as she was injured by a bullet to the abdomen. Half an hour later, she was pronounced dead. According to the police’s spokesman in Gaza, Lieutenant Colonel Ayoub Abu Shaar, preliminary investigations revealed that the girl was playing with her father’s pistol, when a bullet was unleashed hitting her in the abdomen.

Personal and Family Disputes

In 2013, 16 persons, including 5 ones in the West Bank, were killed as a result of the use of weapons in personal and familial disputes. The victims included 3 children and 2 women. The most prominent cases were as follows:

On 11 March, the body of Mohammed Ashraf Ismail Shraim (20), residing in the al-Jalaal street in Gaza City, arrived at al-Shifa Hospital in Gaza City as he was shot by a bullet to the waist. According to Major Raed al-Batniji, spokesman of Palestinian police in Gaza, the victim’s younger sister deliberately fired at him during a quarrel that erupted between them. She used a gun owned by another family member and fired at him in a fit of rage.

On 17 May, a family quarrel erupted in al-Boreij refugee camp, during which a person fired into the air in an attempt to end the quarrel. As a result, 13-year-old Basma Nasser Mohammed Saleh, who was in the balcony of her house, was wounded by a bullet to the head. She was evacuated to al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital in Deir al-Balah, where she was pronounced dead.

On 20 May, a family quarrel erupted between members of Abu-Safia family in the west of Gaza City and developed into the use of firearms. As a result, two members of the Abu-Safia family were killed, and four other members were wounded. The killed men were identified as: Ahmed Hussain Abu-Safia (42), a lawyer and human rights activist who was hit by a bullet to the head; and Mo’az Kamel al-Din Abu-Safia (22), a journalist and reporter for the Algerian al-Shorouq Satellite Channel who was hit by multiple bullets throughout the body.

On 24 June 2013, Mohammed Mahdi (20) and Anas Tamous (4) were killed due to use of firearms in a dispute that broke out between the families of Mahdi and Katou’a in al-Shati’ refugee camp in the western side of Gaza City. According to investigations conducted by PCHR, gunmen fired at a 3-storey house belonging to the family of Ahmed Mahdi near al-Shati’ market in the western side of Gaza City. As a result, Mohammed Ziad Mahdi, from al-Sheikh Rodwan neighbourhood in the city, was killed by two bullets to the abdomen and shoulder as he was visiting his relatives in al-Shati’ refugee camp. Anas Mohammed Tamous, from Khan Yunis in the southern Gaza Strip, sustained gunshot wounds to the chest as he was with his mother in a visit to her family in a nearby house in the camp. Mahdi and Tamous were immediately transferred to Shifa Hospital where at approximately 18:00, medical sources declared the death of Tamous.

» On 20 August, Colonel Sa‘id Ahmed, director of the office Tayeb Abdul al-Rahim, secretary general of the Palestinian presidency, his bodyguard and his child stormed Abu Kwaik’s house in al-Hayat housing community in Baten al-Hawa neighborhood in Ramallah. The colonel and his bodyguard were armed. Colonel Ahmed searched for Abu Kwaik’s child, 13-year-old Bahaa’, and when he found him, he attempted to force him out of the house claiming that Bahaa’ had attacked the colonel’s child, but Bahaa’ was able to escape. Immediately, the colonel opened fire indiscriminately. As a result, the colonel’s child was injured by a bullet to the foot, and the house was damaged.

» On 27 December, Rifqi Sa‘id al-Rukh (49) from the southern neighbourhood in Jenin refugee camp in the north of the West Bank, was killed by a bullet to the head during an exchange of fire between two families in the camp.

Murders for “Family Honor”

In 2013, PCHR documented the murders of three women “to protect family honor.” PCHR is gravely concerned about the recurrence of such crimes and calls on the Palestinian authorities to take more measures to confront them.

In 2011, PCHR had observed a remarkable improvement in terms of the measures taken to put an end to violence in the community, especially murders on the grounds of so-called “family honour”. On 15 May 2011, President Mahmoud Abbas issued a decision with the force of law putting an end to the issuance of lenient sentences against the perpetrators of so-called “honour killings.” PCHR hoped that this decision would signify a step forward in confronting these crimes, whose perpetrators enjoyed impunity due to the application of lenient sentences that did not exceed three years. These lenient sentences contributed to the increase of these crimes in the Palestinian society in recent decades, undermining the rule of law. These crimes were as follows:

» On 08 March, the body of H.S.’A. (23), a woman from Nusseirat refugee camp in central Gaza Strip was brought to al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital in Deir al-Balah. The body was later transferred to the Forensic Medicine Department in Shifa Hospital in Gaza City. According to police sources, the Palestinian police opened an investigation into the crime and arrested the victim’s father and two of her brothers on suspicions of murder. The police sources added that one of the victim’s brothers had confessed of strangling his sister with the motive of protecting “family honor.”

» On 12 September, the body of S.’E.A. (21), from Beit Omra village, west of Yatta to the south of Hebron in the southern West Bank, who was killed by strangulation as well, was brought to Abu al-Hassan al-Qasem Hospital in Yatta. The Palestinian police arrived at the hospital and opened an investigation. Moreover, the police referred the body to the Forensic Medicine Department in al-Quds University – Abu Dees. According to the police, the victim’s mother was arrested as she claimed she had committed the crime.

» On 21 September, the body of S.M.Z. (30), from Deir al-Ghosoun village, north of Tulkarm in the northern West Bank, who was killed by strangulation, was brought to Tulkarm Hospital. The victim’s father surrendered to the Palestinian police claiming he committed the crime with the motive of so-called “family honor.”
In 2013, security services in Ramallah and Gaza continued campaigns of arrest and summonses that are conducted illegally or in a way that reflects the arbitrary use of law. Most of those summonses and arrests were carried out on political grounds due to the continuation of the political split in the Palestinian Authority for more than six years. PCHR also received increasing numbers of complaints about civilians who were subject to torture and other forms of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment during interrogation.

In addition to the political arrests, we can clearly notice in arrests on criminal grounds the accompanying defect in the legal procedures for arrests and the practice of torture and humiliation in interrogation and detention centres of the security services in the West Bank and Gaza.

Arrests and Summons on Political Grounds

In 2013, security services in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank intensified campaigns of repeated summonses and detentions of political rivals, often under the pretext of security reasons. Such campaigns often failed to follow legal procedures for arrests according to the Palestinian law and international human rights law. Moreover, detainees were held under conditions that violated their human dignity.

Gaza Strip

Dozens of Fatah movement activists, including a number of women, were subjected to frequent summonses to refer to the security services in different areas of the Gaza Strip. A number of these activists were arrested from time to time, including some who were sentenced. The last quarter of the year witnessed a significant increase in the number of summonses and arrests of civilians on the grounds of the call related to “Tamarrud” (Rebellion) movement on 11 November 2013, which marks the anniversary of the late President Yasser Arafat’s death. Most of these activists were subject to inhuman and cruel treatment as they were held in cells or small rooms, were forced to stand for long hours and repeatedly referred to the Interior Security Service after releasing them. Some of them were also subject to torture during interrogation.

West Bank

In the West Bank, security services (the General Intelligence Service, the Preventive Security Service and the Military Intelligence Service) continued to illegally arrest and summon Hamas and Islamic Jihad activists, including academics. In a number of cases, security members searched civilian houses and confiscated personal belongings before arresting the wanted persons. Some of the persons who were arrested and then released stated that they were subject to torture during interrogation by different security services. The year also witnessed the security services’ refusal to apply court rulings to release political detainees.
Torture and Ill-Treatment

In 2013, PCHR received and followed increasing numbers of complaints and cases in which civilians claimed that they were subjected to torture during interrogation. Many of these complaints were on criminal grounds. PCHR also received other complaints of torture on political grounds and others. A number of those who filed those complaints claimed that they were subjected to various forms of torture, including, but not limited to, insults; beating using batons, sharp tools, feet and hands; tying detainees’ feet and hands to a chair; and beating with batons or wires. Detainees were also held in cells or small rooms under degrading conditions.

Gaza Strip

Lawyer A.W. ‘A. (25), from Gaza City, said that on 14 February he was beaten and detained by Palestinian police officers while he was in the Palestinian court compound. He stated to PCHR that a skirmish erupted between him and a police officer after he saw the police officer pushing an old man and objected to his behavior with the old man inside the court compound. While they were taking him to the detention facilities, two police officers beat him, and one of them used his gun butt to hit him on the head causing him an injury in the head.

Another Complainer, N. Sh., from Rafah, was subjected to severe torture inside the criminal investigation office on 30 March. As a result, he suffered from kidney failure, damage to the compound nerve and a problem in the arms’ muscles due to being shackled (Shabeh) for long hours. After being released, he received medical treatment in a hospital in Egypt resulting in a relative improvement in his health condition. The victim’s father filed complaints at the Ministries of Interior and Justice and to the Prime Minister in Gaza against the police. The Ministry of Interior, in cooperation with mediators, reached a settlement with the father and gave him 5,000 Jordanian Dinars as a financial compensation in exchange of withdrawing the complaints. It should be mentioned that the victim's father emphasized that the treatment trip for his son cost him 10,000 JD.

N.S.A. (42), from al-Shati’ refugee camp said that police officer arrested him from his grocery in the camp accusing him of drug possession in April 2013. He claimed that he was beaten, insulted and defamed by the anti-drug officers in last January. During his second detention, he claimed that al-‘Abbas police officers shaved his head and drew funny symbols. They beat him with plastic hoses and wooden sticks, tied his feet, hung him to the ceiling and started severely beating him. They put a piece of cloth in his mouth, so he would not scream, and he then fainted. He added that the police officers transferred him to al-Zaytoun police station, where he was also beaten, and was then taken to Yafa Street in the east of Gaza. They dragged him and other detainees out of the bus to the street, and forced them to turn their faces to the wall. They then removed the cover from their faces, gave them their belongings and fired two bullets near them to terrorize them. The officers then asked them to leave.

A number of detained persons22 who were later released on the grounds of their activism in “Tamarrud” in early November said that they were subjected... to various forms of torture, including being hit on hands and feet by a stick; punched all over their bodies; shackled; and forced to stand for long hours. One of the released detainees stated to PCHR that upon his arrival at the ISS office on 09 November 2013, they blindfolded him and sat him on a small seat. He added that a security officer forced him to sit on his knees on the ground, held his hands and strongly pulled them back. Meanwhile, another officer came and started interrogating him about “Tamarrud” movement and his activism in Fatah movement. The released detainee said that the interrogation was accompanied with punches on the abdomen and chest, and that he was transferred to a small room, where there was an iron chair and a video camera. He was then forced to stand in the room and left in this condition until the next day afternoon.

Another one stated to PCHR that during interrogation about his alleged activism in “Tamarrud” movement, he was blindfolded and hit on his hands and feet with a stick. The officers tightened his hands to a small iron tube horizontally placed under his knees while he was lying on his back on the floor. They then started sporadically beating him for around two hours. A third one said that upon his arrival at the Internal Security Service’s office in Khan Yunis, security officers blindfolded him and transferred him to an interrogation room. He added that he underwent an approximately 2-hour interrogation, during which he was hit on the face and chest by the officers, and was questioned about his political affiliation, his work, and “Tamarrud” campaign.

West Bank

The security services continued to practice torture against the arrested and detained persons despite the orders issued by the Palestinian President, Mahmoud ‘Abbas on 14 May 2013 confirming the commitment of the competent authorities to the prohibition of all forms of torture.23

M. A. G. (26), a college student from Tulkarm, said that police officers arrested him on 13 January when he was on his way back home from Palestinian Technical University-Kadoorie in the public taxi park. They forced him to get into the military vehicle where he was severely beaten. M. A. G. also claimed that he was subjected to interrogation by the Preventive Security in Tulkarm, where he was subjected to torture, including being severely beaten with hands, feet and sticks and insulted. He also added that the security officers released him on the next day after handing him his belongings. However, 5 meters away from the office’s gate, a number of officers attacked him and returned him to prison. This scene was repeated 4 times before he was actually released.

M. D. M. (44), from Tarmah village in Hebron claimed that he was arrested and tortured during interrogation in the Preventive Security prison in Dura. As a result, he lost the ability to speak.

A PCHR fieldworker met with the victim, who presented his testimony in writing, as he was unable to speak. Mohammed told PCHR that he was arrested by the PSS on 27 April 2013 without any arrest warrant. He also stated that he was tortured during the interrogation, and the interrogators hit his

23. PCHR, at that time, published a press release welcoming the Palestinian President’s orders and emphasizes that this order is a positive step and hopes that it would be taken seriously to put an end to the use of all forms of torture in the Palestinian detention facilities. However, PCHR points out in the same time that the biggest challenge lies in the application of this order on the ground and the prosecution of all those involved in all crimes of torture by bringing them to trial. Furthermore, PCHR reminds that the crime of torture does not fall under the statute of limitations and that the perpetrators can never escape justice. See PCHR’s Press Release no. (52/2013) on 15 May 2013.
head against the wall, because of which he cannot speak any more.

L.‘A.T. (26), from Hebron said that he was arrested by the Palestinian General Intelligence (GIS) in February 2013 without an arrest warrant after searching the house and his store. He was taken to the GIS prison in the city, where he stayed in a room for 5 hours. He was then transferred to the GIS prison in Jericho, where he was placed in a cell lacking proper detention conditions and the floor and ceiling are wet and without a bed. L.‘A.T. claimed that he was subject to interrogation when his hands were tied to the back and he was blindfolded. He was also ordered to take off some of his clothes despite the bitter cold. In addition, security officers put a piece of rubber in his mouth so he would not be able to scream. He was also beaten with a stick on his feet and was deprived of sleeping as well as practicing psychological methods on him. He also added that he went on hunger strike for two days. In the court rounds, the Magistrate Court in Jericho decided to release him, but the GIS refused so and detained him for another 40 days, during which he was severely tortured until he was released on 18 April 2013.

Deaths in Prisons and Detention Facilities

In 2013, 4 civilians died inside the Palestinian security detention facilities. Two of them died in the Gaza Strip, and the other two ones died in the West Bank. Available information pointed out that the official authorities neglected and failed to provide medical care for prisoners and detainees or provide personal protection for them. PCHR reiterates its demand to conduct an investigation into the circumstances of the deaths of these civilians and publish the investigation results in public. According to the findings of PCHR’s investigations:

1. On 08 February 2013, Mahrous Fat’hi Nassar (36), from Sheikh Radwan neighbourhood in the north of Gaza City was pronounced dead at Shifa Hospital in Gaza City. The cause of death was listed on the death certificate, which was received by PCHR, as a meningococcal infection of the central nervous system.

Prior to his death, Nassar had been detained in Sheikh Radwan detention facility. Nassar was arrested from his house at approximately 21:30 on Tuesday, 29 January 2013, by the Palestinian police. His brother, Abdul Qader Nassar, informed a PCHR fieldworker that, at the time of his death, Mahrous had been detained for a period of 15 days while legal procedures against him were underway. Abdul Qader stated that the family had received a phone call at approximately 21:30 on 07 February 2013, informing them that Mahrous had been admitted to the Internal Medicine Department of Shifa Hospital in Gaza City.

Abdul Qader immediately went to the hospital where his brother was receiving medical treatment under the supervision of two police officers. The doctor advised Abdul Qader that Mahrous was suffering from meningitis and had been transferred to the Intensive Care Unit (ICU) due to the seriousness of his condition. The doctors informed Abdul Qader of his brother’s death at approximately 02:00 on 08 February.

The Ministry of Interior in Gaza issued a statement on its website on Friday, 08 February 2013, stating that:

“Mr Ibrahim Salah, Director of Public Relations and Media in the Ministry, stated that Nassar suffered from vomiting and fever, so he was transported to Shifa hospital last night at 22:00. He was admitted into the Internal Medicine Department and then to the ICU. Salah stressed that the causes of death were meningitis and immunodeficiency, explaining that the deceased was not suffering from any health problem when the doctors conducted medical examination on the detainees last Thursday.”

This statement was confirmed to PCHR by Major Ayman al-Batniji, spokesperson of the Palestinian police. Al-Batniji stated that policemen and detainees in Sheikh Radwan detention facility had been medically examined at Balsam Military Hospital following the incident to ensure that the infection had not been spread further.

2. On 01 March 2013, Ayman Mohammed Sharif Samarah (40), from al-Yamoun village in Jenin and residing in Aqbet Jaber refugee camp in Jericho, while being detained in Jericho Central Prison under an arrest warrant issued by the Magistrate Court in Jericho on 28 February 2013 on charges of abusing his neighbour after skirmishing with him. Samarah was transferred to the Clinic of Correction and Rehabilitation Center, where he received primary health care, after he fell in the bathroom. An hour later, he was transferred to Jericho Hospital as he died upon arrival according to medical sources.

The Attorney General said in a statement that: “the Public Prosecution immediately headed to the aforementioned hospital, where it examined with the resident doctor the body of the deceased, and then informed his relatives. Initial investigations indicate that the deceased suffered diabetes and hypertension, and he had a medical file at the Jericho Hospital, where he used to receive medical treatment.”

The Public Prosecution issued an order to conduct an autopsy on the body of Samarah to determine the cause of death while they were completing all the procedures related to the investigations.

3. On 31 March 2013, the body of Sami Hamdan Qishta, 50, from al-Brazil neighbourhood in Rafah in the southern Gaza Strip, was transferred to Martyr Mohammed Yousef al-Najjar Hospital in Rafah.

According to police sources, Qishta had been detained in the detention facility of Rafah police station since 20 March 2013, in accordance with a court order. Police sources also stated that Qishta had been receiving medical treatment because he suffered from a heart condition. Qishta had been on short-term release prior to his death, and had stayed with his family on 28 and 29 March 2013. Qishta returned to the detention facility on Saturday, 30 March 2013, the day before his death.

4. On 23 December 2013, Nawwaf Mohammed al-Kawazbah (49), from al-Menia village in Bethlehem, died in the detention centre of the Preventive Security Services in Bethlehem. According to security sources, Kawazbah hanged himself with a blanket in his detention room, where he found hanged in the room. He was then taken to Beit Jala Hospital, where he died. His body was referred to the forensic department.

Kawazbah had been detained since 16 December 2013 on criminal grounds and appeared before the Public Prosecution and Magistrate Court in Bethlehem, which extended his detention till 31 December 2013.
The disruption of the PLC entered its seventh year in 2013. The complete absence of a mandated PLC, which is the legislative and monitoring authority of the PNA, is a result of actions taken against PLC Members by Israel, and the fragmentation of the Palestinian executive which has been ongoing since 2007.

Arbitrary Practices against the PLC Members by Israel

Israeli authorities continued to take arbitrary measures against PLC Members in 2013. They continued to arrest PLC members, most of whom are from the Hamas-affiliated ‘Change and Reform’ bloc. It should be noted that Israeli authorities added the Hamas-affiliated ‘Change and Reform’ bloc to the list of terrorist organizations on 02 December 2012. In July 2012, the Israeli military commander issued a decision that the Islamist parliamentary bloc would be considered as “a banned union”.

The decision made reference to Article 84 (1) (b) of the Defense Regulations (State of Emergency) which were issued in 1945. The intention of the July decision was to legalize Israel’s systematic oppression of PLC Members from the ‘Change and Reform’ bloc in the West Bank, including occupied East Jerusalem.

On 11 July 2013, an Israeli court sentenced Jerusalemite PLC Member Mohammed Totah to 30 months of imprisonment and decided to transfer him from Jerusalem. According to the court decision, if he enters Jerusalem after his release he will be detained for six months in Israeli jails. It should be mentioned that Israeli forces summoned two PLC Members Ahmed ‘Atoun and Mohammed Totah in June 2010 to “al-Maskoubia” detention centre in Jerusalem, and informed them of a decision to withdraw their Jerusalemite ID cards and replace them with temporary residence permits that were due to expire on 3 July 2010. The two PLC Members resorted to the ICRC headquarters in fear of the implementation of the expulsion decision against them. On 06 September 2011, Israeli forces arrested PLC Member ‘Atoun from the sit-in tent in front of the ICRC headquarters in Jerusalem, and transferred him to Ramallah. On 23 January 2012, Toutah was arrested from a protest outside the ICRC headquarters after it was raided by armed Israeli forces. Mohammed Abu Teir has been deported to Ramallah since July 2010 according to an Israeli court’s decision, and he was again arrested on 03 July 2013.

By the end of 2013, 14 PLC Members had been still imprisoned in Israeli jails, most of them are from the ‘Change and Reform’ bloc affiliated with Hamas, while two of them are from Fatah movement and one is from the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP). Those affiliated with Fatah and the PFLP were sentenced to life imprisonment due to their alleged involvement in resistance against the occupation.

In 2013, 8 members of the ‘Change and Reform’ bloc were arrested, and 6 ones were released as they had been arrested in previous years.
Israeli forces have arrested 49 PLC Members during the past seven years. Some have been arrested repeatedly and held for various periods. Others have been released after spending years in detention without charges or trials, including two PLC Members from the ‘Change and Reform’ bloc, Miriam Mahmoud Salah and Muna Salim Masnour.

Continued Legislative Chaos in the PNA

The Palestinian legislature continues to be in a state of chaos. Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas continued to issue presidential decrees which are enforced only in the West Bank under the pretext of the absence of the PLC. In the Gaza Strip, the ‘Change and Reform’ enacted laws on behalf of the PLC. The PLC’s inability to convene has meant that it has not been able to fulfil its legislative role of monitoring and holding to account the executive authorities in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

The ‘Change and Reform’ bloc in Gaza continued to issue laws unlawfully and in violation of the Palestinian Basic Law. In 2013, the ‘Change and Reform’ bloc issued 3 new laws, amended 2 other laws and approved and amended the budget. The bloc has issued a total of 40 laws on behalf of the PLC since the internal political division began. These laws, published in the Gaza Strip in the Palestinian Gazette, include 21 new laws, 12 amendments to existing laws, and 5 laws relating to general budget approval. The 40 laws were issued on behalf of the PLC despite the lack of a quorum during their discussion or issuance and without ratification by the President of the PNA. Education Law 1/2013 is one of these laws issued in Gaza and considered by PCHR and non-governmental organizations as part of the governments’ attempts to impose a cultural identity and ideology on the Gaza Strip population without taking into consideration the cultural and ideological diversity in the Palestinian community.

Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas has issued decrees using the authorities given to him under article (43) of the Basic Law. The President issued fourteen decrees, bringing the number of decrees he has issued since the beginning of the internal political division to 87. These decrees consist of 30 new laws, 26 amendments or cancellation of existing laws, 9 related to the general budget approval and 23 decrees in the form of laws that fall under the specific mandate of the PLC. These decrees, which have the power of law, are in violation of Article 43 of the Palestinian Basic Law which stipulates that “The President of the National Authority shall have the right, in cases of necessity that cannot be delayed”. The most prominent decrees were as follows: Decree (3) regarding the judiciary and Decree (4) to remove the parliamentary immunity of Mohammed Dahlan, Member of the PLC representing the Fatah parliamentary bloc. The last decree raised criticism as the President did not only go beyond the state of extreme necessity, when he issued the other decrees, but also exceeded a PLC’s genuine and exclusive power, which is removing the immunity of a PLC Member.

The disruption of the PLC has undermined the democratic process in the oPt, undermined the rule of law, and compromised the separation of power, which represent the fundamental tenets of a democratic society. The crisis is deepened by the development of two parallel legislative systems in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank. These actions constitute a flagrant violation of the law and undermine previous efforts to reform the Palestinian legal system. This further impacts prospects for democratic transformation in the PNA. PCHR stresses the importance of reviewing all new legislations in a national dialogue because they are a product of the political division.

Attacks against PLC Members

The attacks against PLC Members by unknown persons are part of the continued state of security chaos in the Palestinian territories.

» On 13 May 2013, unidentified persons fired at the house of Mr. Majed Abu Shammala, Member of the PLC representing Fatah Movement, in Um al-Sharayet neighbourhood in Ramallah. As a result, his car was hit by several bullets in front of his house.

» On 03 October 2013, Mr. Jamal Abu al-Rub, Member of the PLC representing Fatah Movement, was beaten, and the official authorities did not identify those who attacked him. Abu al-Rub refused to give any testimony to a PCHR fieldworker about the incident as he described it as “Fatah internal affair”.

» On 13 May 2013, unidentified persons fired at the house of Mr. Majed Abu Shammala, Member of the PLC representing Fatah Movement, in Um al-Sharayet neighbourhood in Ramallah. As a result, his car was hit by several bullets in front of his house.
Replacing PLC Members after Their death or Resignation

PLC Member Miriam Farahat died on 17 March 2013, so the Change and Reform bloc, who holds its sessions on behalf of the PLC, decided during its session on 16 May 2013 that “the seat of PLC Member Mariam Mohamed Yousif Farahat from the Change and Reform bloc became vacant due to death.” No new member has filled the vacant seat so far. It should be mentioned that 6 of the PLC Members died over the past years, including 5 who had been elected within the constituencies: Hussam al-Tawil; Sufian al-Agha; Sa'id Siam; Email Jarojou'ea; and Hamed al-Beitawi, in addition to Jamal Skeik, who was elected within the system of electoral lists.

The continuation of the Palestinian political division and obstruction of the democratic process resulted in the emergence of the issue of filling vacancies in the PLC, especially after the legal term of the PLC expired in 2010. According to Article 99 (4) of the Palestinian Elections Law of 2005 on the Vacancy of Council Membership, “in the event that the council electoral list seat becomes vacant three months prior to the end of the council term, the vacant seat shall be occupied by the candidate who is next in line according to the order of the winning list of candidates.” According to Article 99 (2), in the case of constituencies, “if the period remaining for a member’s term in the constituency is greater than one year, by-elections shall be held in accordance with the provisions of this law with respect to the election of Palestinian Legislative Council members. However, if the term is less than one year, the seat shall remain vacant until the end of the term and election of a new council”.

The PLC’s term has already expired since 2010, but, in the current context, replacing members of the PLC as vacancies arise is not possible, resulting in a lack of parliamentary representation in some constituencies. This has a particular impact for the constituency when the deceased PLC member represents a certain group that shares a common interest, whether political or religious. The most significant example is the death of PLC Member Hussam al-Tawil, who represented Christians in the Gaza Strip; his death has meant that the interests of Christians in the Gaza Strip are no longer represented in the PLC.
In 2013, the Judiciary continued to deteriorate, and its independence continued as well to be abused by the executive authority in violation of the Palestinian Basic Law, especially article 97 which emphasizes that “the judiciary is independent” and Article 2 which as well emphasizes the principle of the separation of powers. The political division and conflict within the PNA since June 2007 have affected the judiciary, as two separate judicial systems are currently enforced in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. In violation of the Palestinian Basic Law, the government in Gaza established a separate judicial system, to which the people of the Gaza Strip are subject. The judicial system in the West Bank applies only to those who live there. PCHR has repeatedly appealed to the concerned parties in Ramallah and Gaza to ensure the independence of the judiciary, despite the ongoing internal political division. However, the absence of a real political will and lack of the public interest led to the effect of the division on the judiciary. In 2013, the following shows the status of the Palestinian judiciary in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank.

The judiciary in the Gaza Strip

In the days following the Hamas takeover of the Gaza Strip in mid-June 2007, the Higher Judicial Council in Ramallah continued to suspend the judiciary in the Gaza Strip due to several measures and violations committed by the government in Gaza against the judiciary and prosecution in the Gaza Strip. This is as a result of refusing to deal with the police force, which was appointed by the government in Gaza instead of the police officers who abstained from work after the division events.

On 14 August 2007, Dr Yousef al-Mansi, acting Minister of Justice for the government in Gaza, suspended the Attorney General, claiming that the legal procedures for appointment had not been followed. Two days later, on 16 August 2007, special forces raided the Attorney General’s office in Gaza, assaulted the Attorney General, and detained him and his assistants. The Council of Ministers in Gaza established a new judicial council calling it “the Higher Justice Council”, whose members were chosen by the Minister of Justice and approved by the Council of Ministers in Gaza.

The most serious measure took place on 26 November 2007 in the form of an attack on the civilian court compound in the Gaza Strip, and the takeover of the office of the President of the Higher Judicial Council and President of the High Court by the “Higher Justice Council” formed by the Council of Ministers in Gaza. As a result, the Higher Judicial Council announced an indefinite suspension of the work of the civil court system in the Gaza Strip. The Government in Gaza then appointed new judges and members of prosecution instead of those who abstained from work.

On 27 October 2009, the Gaza government issued a decision, changing the name of the ‘Higher Justice Council’ to the ‘Higher Judicial Council’. Hence, there are now two Higher Judicial Councils operating in the PNA, which are administratively and financially separate.

In 2013, the Gaza government made a number of appointments and changes to the judiciary, and PCHR emphasized that they are in violation of law. In November 2013, the Higher Judicial Council formed in Gaza invited applications for 10 vacancies of judges in the Magistrate and First Instance Courts.

On 12 April 2013, 12 prosecution aides were appointed according a decision taken by the Council of Ministers in Gaza, which also issued a decision to appoint 3 new judges as well as other decisions to promote a number of judges and prosecutors. These developments emphasized that the government in Gaza insists on deepening the division in the judiciary through illegally creating a separate judicial system in violation of the 2003 Palestinian Basic Law. PCHR confirms that, as long as the internal political division persists, all appointments to the judiciary are illegal. Judges, prosecutors and the Attorney General must be appointed by the President, based on nominations by the Higher Judicial Council, in accordance with Articles 18 and 63 of the 2002 Judiciary Authority Law. These Articles lay out the requirements for the organisation of the judiciary in accordance with the Amended Basic Law of 2003. Thus, PCHR considers the Gaza judiciary to be a de facto authority.

PCHR is shocked by the conduct of the Gaza Supreme Court, which proved through two experiences with PCHR that it cannot protect the Basic Law. On 08 September 2013, the Supreme Court in Gaza rejected PCHR’s petition against the Interior Security Services’ (ISS) decision to prevent PCHR’s staff from traveling via Beit Hanoun (Erez) crossing to the West Bank in an official mission. On 12 May 2013, PCHR filed a petition to the Supreme Court in order to abolish the administrative decision issued by the government in Gaza compelling Palestinians wishing to travel through Beit Hanoun (Erez) crossing to obtain prior permits from the Ministry of Interior. PCHR refused this decision considering it a violation of Articles (20) and (21) of the Basic Law that ensures the right to freedom of movement.

In the Challenge presented to the court, PCHR requested to reveal the reasons for the ISS’s decision and called for issuing a final decision allowing civilians to travel according to the law and annul the decision of obtaining a prior permit.

The judiciary in the West Bank

In the West Bank, the executive authority continued to control the judiciary, particularly when abstaining from executing court rulings and decisions. In this context, PCHR emphasizes that refusal to execute court rulings constitutes a crime under the 2003 Palestinian Basic Law, which provides that the person who obstructs or refrains from implementing the judicial ruling shall be subject to dismissal from his position or imprisonment. Article 106 stipulates that:

“Judicial rulings shall be implemented. Refraining from or obstructing the implementation of a judicial ruling in any manner whatsoever shall be considered a crime carrying a penalty of imprisonment or dismissal from position if the accused individual is a public official or assigned to public service. The aggrieved

26. In November 2012, the Supreme Court in Gaza rejected the Petition filled by PCHR to abolish the Council of Ministers’ decision in Gaza No. 229 of 2011, which amended the Council of Ministers’ Decision No. 9/2003 Concerning the Executive Regulation of the Charitable Associations and Community Organizations Law 1/2002.

27. On 27 February 2013, the Ministry of Interior published on its website a statement about the issue of a decision that compels civilians wishing to travel to the West Bank via Beit Hanoun crossing to refer to the Ministry to obtain prior permits.
party may file a case directly to the competent court and the National Authority shall guarantee a fair remedy for him."

According to Reports prepared by the Independent Commission for Human Rights (ICHR)\textsuperscript{28}, more than 25 administrative rulings mostly related to illegal arbitrary arrests were not implemented during 2013. Although it is in violation of the constitution and constitutes a crime under the Penal Code, it can be said through PCHR’s follow-up that non-implementation of court rulings represents a policy adopted by the executive authorities in the West Bank. It is noteworthy that since 2009, some rulings have not been executed without bringing to accountancy any of those responsible for obstructing or refraining from the implementation of those rulings. This raises big question marks around the claims of the authorities in the West Bank that they respect the rule of law.

\textbf{Obstruction of General and Local Elections}

The fragmentation of the Palestinian executive continues to be the main obstacle to democratic reform. Presidential and legislative elections to renew the legitimacy of the Palestinian people’s representatives, who were elected in 2005 and 2006 respectively, have been obstructed. By the end of 2013, four and five years had passed since the expiration of the legal terms in office of the Palestinian President and the PLC respectively. The PNA remains unable to hold general elections.

By the end of 2013, there had been still no progress in terms of holding or setting a date for the presidential and legislative elections in the oPt. According to the Palestinian law, the Palestinian President must call for legislative elections three months prior to holding them. This did not happen.

Regarding the local elections, nothing happened in 2013. On 20 October 2012,\textsuperscript{29} the PNA organized local elections in the West Bank. On 12 March 2013, the Council of Ministers in Ramallah issued a decision that the elections in the local council, in which elections were not held, and in the councils, which lost its legal quorum as the majority of its members resigned, would be held on 01 June 2013. However, the elections in the rest local councils in the West Bank were not held in 2013.

\textbf{Presidential and Legislative Elections}

In 2013, there was a progress regarding elections in the Gaza Strip as the Central Election Commission (CEC) was allowed to open registration centres for voters. Thus, PCHR participated in the beginning of the year in monitoring the voter registration process, which lasted for 2 weeks in the Gaza Strip. PCHR participated in the monitoring process after the CEC resumed its work in the Gaza Strip to update the voter registry according to the agreement reached between Fatah and Hamas in Cairo to hold the voter registration process between 11 and 18 February 2013 in both the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

\begin{itemize}
\item \textbf{28.} It is an official commission established by the 2003 Palestinian Basic Law to protect and promote human rights in Palestine.

\item \textbf{29.} PCHR criticised at that time the holding of elections, as long as the internal political division persists. PCHR demanded that the Gaza and Ramallah governments to provide an atmosphere conducive to the organization of transparent and fair elections. This will allow people to freely choose their public representatives, who will be subject to accountability in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. Most importantly, such an atmosphere will ensure protection for public freedoms and respect for constitutionally-guaranteed human rights, including political rights, and the lifting of bans on different political factions.
\end{itemize}
Although the registration process had finished since the beginning of the year, the elections of the local councils in the Gaza were not held. Moreover, the government in Gaza continued to appoint local councils close to Hamas movement and kept some local councils which area affiliated to it.

On 31 December 2013, during his speech at the opening of the conference on the Palestinian media and the challenges in Gaza City, Ismail Haniyah, the Prime Minister in Gaza City, stated that his government would go for forming municipal councils by national consensus. This is considered as a good move towards holding elections in the PNA in order to entrench the appointments in the local councils.

Although elections are demanded by all national powers and civil society groups, including PCHR, they are not possible without first reaching a comprehensive national reconciliation that can bring an end to the division and restore the integrity of the legislative, executive and judicial institutions. Holding elections requires an appropriate electoral environment, including respect for public liberties, the release of political prisoners, and lifting the bans imposed on political activities in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

PCHR criticised at that time the holding of elections on 20 October 2012, as long as the internal political division persists. PCHR demanded that the Gaza and Ramallah governments provide an atmosphere conducive to the organisation of transparent and fair elections. This will allow people to freely choose their public representatives, who will be subject to accountability in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. Most importantly, such an atmosphere will ensure protection for public freedoms and a respect for constitutionally-guaranteed human rights, including political rights, and the lifting of bans on different political factions.
In 2013, the two governments in Ramallah and Gaza and the securities services in their respective areas of control violated the right to freedom of opinion and expression. The Gaza and Ramallah governments committed violations of this right on the grounds of challenging mainstream opinions or trying to cover certain events that happened in their areas of control. PCHR documented more violations of the rights of journalists, various media workers, editors, and others as well as opinion writers and other civilians. The Gaza government has been denying access and distribution of the West Bank-based newspapers of al-Quds, al-Hayat al-Jadeeda and al-Ayyam, while the West Bank government has been banning distribution and printing of the Gaza-based newspapers of Palestine and al-Risala.

In the Gaza Strip, common violations of the right to freedom of opinion and expression included: summoning, arresting and interrogating journalists and opinion writers as well as citizens for their political opinions; assaulting and disregarding journalists by members of the security services; closing media offices; confiscating journalists’ equipments during their work; and preventing journalists from covering events and from traveling. During the reporting period, PCHR also documented the continuation of violations by unidentified or identified sources against journalists on the grounds of their profession.

The most significant violations in the Gaza Strip were as follows:

- On 21, 22, and 23 January, seven journalists and social media workers in Gaza City and the central Gaza Strip were summoned and arrested by the Internal Security Service (ISS) in Gaza. They also confiscated their computers and searched their houses. The journalists were identified as:
  1. Ashraf Jamal Abu Khasyowann.
  3. Mustafa Mohammed Meqdad.
  4. ‘Omer Mohammed al-Dahoudi.
  6. ‘Abdel Karim Fathi Haji.

- On 03 March, Tahsin ’Abdel Hamid al-Astal, a journalist at al-Hayat al-Jadeda Newspaper, was subject to interrogation by the Public Prosecution in Khan Yunis in the southern Gaza Strip over his opinion editorial titled as “Police against Law” published on 06 February 2013.

- On 04 March, the ISS banned Sami Abu Salem, a journalist, from traveling to Egypt in order to join a training course organized by the International Federation of Journalists under the pretext of not obtaining a prior travel permit from the Governmental Media Office.

- On 07 May, the Palestinian police prevented journalists from covering the incident of dispersing a sit-in in solidarity with the Syrian people in Khan Yunis in the southern Gaza Strip and arrested 5 of them. One of the arrested journalists was severely beaten by the Palestinian officers. He was identified as 'Abdel'Aziz al-'Affi, a cameraman at Screen Company for Media Production, as he was beaten and his camera was destroyed.

» On 23 May, Dr. Ibrahim Abrash, the former Minister of Culture and a university lecturer, was subject to interrogation by the ISS in Gaza City over an opinion editorial published on 07 May 2013 titled as “Gaza Does Not Give Indulgence to Anyone”, in which he criticized the visit of Sheikh Qaradawi to Gaza.

» On 02 and 03 June, the ISS and general investigation bureau in Gaza summoned 11 PFLP activists in Rafah, Khan Yunis and the central and northern governorates. They were all questioned on the ground of distributing two public statements, one of which was titled “The State of Popular Resentment and Suffering Will Lead to Non-Stoppable Popular Explosion,” and the second one was titled as “No for Murderers” and was distributed in Khan Yunis.

» On 03 July, security service officers in Rafah confiscated two cameras from two journalists, Feras Joudah and Mothana al-Najjar, while carrying out their job in the city.

» On 04 July, ‘Emad ‘Abdel Jawad al-Dreimly, the bureau chief of the Office of Chinese News Agency (Xinhua) in Gaza, received threats from an unknown person on his cell phone. Al-Dreimly said that the caller claimed that he is from al-Qassam Brigades, the armed wing of Hamas. He added that he filed an official complaint to the Public Prosecution on 07 July.

» On 25 July, The police general investigation bureau closed the head offices of Al-‘Arabiyah Satellite Channel and Ma’an News Agency in addition to the head office of Lance Media Company according to decisions issued by the Attorney General in Gaza.31

» On 01 August, ‘Abdullah Mohammed ‘Ebeid, an editor at the Palestinian Network for Journalism and Media and an opinion writer, and Amjad Ayman Yaghi, a journalist at Carbala’ Satellite Channel and the Lebanese Akhbar Newspaper, were detained by police investigation bureau officers in Gaza while they were covering A peaceful assembly at the Unknown Soldier Square in the west of Gaza City.

» On 12 August, Talal Faris al-Sharif (59), who works at al-Ahli Hospital in Gaza and is an opinion writer, was questioned by the General Prosecution about an article he published on 12 September 2011; titled as “My brother, an intelligence officer of attempting to smuggle Abu Mazin through a tunnel!!

» On 26 August, The ISS in Gaza summoned Seif al-Din Shahin, director of the office of al-Ghad al-‘Arabi Satellite Channel in Gaza, and Dr. Khader Mehjez, a university lecturer, and questioned them on the grounds of an interview broadcasted on al-Ghad al-‘Arabi Channel.

31 On 16 November 2013, the government in Gaza issued a decision to reopen the office of Ma’an News Agency and withdraw the complaint filed by the Ministry of Information to the Public Prosecution in Gaza against the agency. On 24 November 2013, Ismail Jaber, the Attorney General in Gaza, issued a decision to re-open the office of al-Arabiya Satellite Channel in Gaza after the Governmental Information Office withdrew its complaint filed to the Prosecution.
On 05 September, the police general investigation bureau questioned Dr. Ahmed Sa'id Dahlan (57), a university lecturer from Khan Yunis in the south of the Gaza Strip. He was charged of acting against the government and insulting Muslims.

On 09 September, Dr. Hasan Abu Jarad (58), a university lecturer from Beit Lahiah in the northern Gaza Strip, was questioned by the police general investigation bureau for criticizing the Gaza government and Hamas.

On 11 November, officers of the general investigation bureau interrupted Yehia Mohammed Hasounah, who works at the French Press Agency (AFP) while he was interviewing citizens near al-Azhar Park in the west of Gaza City in the commemoration of the death of President Yasser ‘Arafat. The security officers took Hasounah to their office in al-Jawazat compound, where he was questioned about his journalistic work and the report he was preparing. He was then released.

In the West Bank, common violations of the right to freedom of opinion and expression include: arresting journalists/citizens for their political opinions; summoning, detaining, and arresting journalists, many of whom were assaulted; the assault of journalists by security services members; preventing journalists and media from carrying out their work; attacking journalists who were covering peaceful demonstrations; summoning, detaining, and arresting citizens for their political opinions; and blocking certain websites in the West Bank. Violations by unidentified persons in the West Bank have also continued, though the incidence of such violations has declined relative to the violations committed by the authorities. The West Bank government has been banning distribution and printing of the Gaza-based newspapers of Palestine and al-Risala.

The most prominent violations were the following:

On 11 May, ‘Omer Ahmed Abu ‘Arqoub (24), a journalist and a producer at Rayah FM Radio from Wadi al-Shajnah village, south of Dura in Hebron in the south of the West Bank, was questioned by the police general investigation bureau about his work, his sources and the nature of “the Israeli Scenario” presented by him at al-Rayah FM.

On 21 May, The Preventive Security Service in Tulkarm in the north of the West Bank arrested 4 young activists affiliated with the People Party, claiming that that they wrote slogans against “the security coordination” on the 65th anniversary of al-Nakbah.

On 08 June, Nizar Khalil Banat (34), from Hebron, was beaten up by a group of persons when he went out of a conference held in Bethlehem, where he made an intervention criticizing the PA in the attendance of the National Economy Minister.

On 16 August, Palestinian Security Officers in Hebron prevented a group of journalists and local and international media workers from covering the dispersal of activists who organized a peaceful protest in the city in support for the ousted Egyptian President, Mohammed Morsi.

On 20 August, the General Intelligence Services in Tulkarm arrested Isamboli Riyad Budeir from his perfume shop in the eastern neighbourhood in the city. The aforementioned civilian was detained for four days during which he was questioned about publishing comments on Facebook pages against Mahmoud al-Habbash, the Minister of Endowments (Awqaf) in Ramallah government as well as naming a perfume he prepared after Mohammed Morsi, former President of Egypt.

On 23 August, Palestinian Security officers in al-Bireh committed violations against a number of journalists, who were trying to cover a peaceful assembly organized in the city in solidarity with the Syrian people and the current incidents in Egypt, using force against the activists.

On 10 November, members of the General Intelligence Services (GIS) in Bethlehem arrested George Carlos Qanawati, Director of Bethlehem 2000 Radio station from his house in Beit Sahour, east of the city. Qanawati said that he was beaten, pushed, insulted while being under arrest from his house that was searched without a search warrant from the General Prosecution. On the following day evening, 11 November, he was released upon a decision issued by the General Prosecution on guarantee of his place of residence after being questioned about his “Amar Ya Balad” program broadcasted by the Radio.
Violations of the Right to Peaceful Assembly

32. On 30 April 2000, the Palestinian President, Yasser Arafat, in his capacity as Minister of the Interior, issued the Executive Bill of Law (12) of 1998 on Public Meetings in accordance with Article 7 of the law. This regulation imposed many restrictions on the exercise of the right to peaceful assembly and contradicts the clear intention of the Basic Law and the Public Assembly Law to foster democracy by allowing right to public assembly. PCHR believes that the articles of the Executive Bill, and since its issuance, have imposed restrictions on the exercise of the right to peaceful assembly (public meetings) in violation of the law. The most prominent of these restrictions:

1. Article 6 of the Law gives the right to the police to terminate and disperse any assembly if the police estimates that the assembly is out of its specified objective;
2. Although the Presidential Decree no. 3 of 1998 on Establishing National Unity and Preventing Incitement violated the spirit of the Basic Law because of its general and ambiguous language the executive bill of the Public Assembly Law imposes further, more specific, restrictions on the exercise of the right to peaceful assembly. Article 9 of the executive bill stipulates, “The organizers of the assembly or the demonstration must take into consideration the provisions of the Presidential Decree no. 3 for the year 1998 on Establishing National Unity and Preventing Incitement”;
3. Article 11 of the executive bill states, “The response of the police to the notification referred to in Article 1 of this bill shall be in the form of a written permission in accordance with a formula approved by the chief of the police. It shall be delivered in hand. In accordance with this Article, the objective of the notification is to get permission from the chief of the police; not just to notify the chief of the police. This language clearly creates a precondition for getting his approval or disapproval. The chief of the police was also given the right to determine the subject of the assembly or the objective of the demonstration.

The year of 2013 has witnessed continued violations of the right to peaceful assembly in the oPt by both governments in the Gaza Strip and West Bank and their security services. These violations included imposing precautionary measures to prevent and restrict organizing peaceful assemblies in their respective areas of control. Although the end of 2012 and the beginning of 2013 witnessed a positive climate accompanied with positive intentions towards the Palestinian reconciliation, violations of the right to peaceful assembly in the Gaza Strip and West Bank immediately came back due to the defeated hopes of achieving the Palestinian reconciliation. In 2013, officials in both governments continued to implement official circulars and decisions according to Law (12) of 1998 on Public Meetings which imposed restrictions on the exercise of the right to peaceful assembly (public meetings) in violation of the law, the most prominent of which is that those who organize the public meetings must obtain permission from the police or the governor instead of notifying them only according to the law.

In 2013, the most significant violations of the right to freedom of peaceful assembly were the following:

In the Gaza Strip, the beginning of 2013 witnessed a positive climate accompanied with positive intentions towards the Palestinian reconciliation in the latest months of 2012. Fatah movement organized for the first time since the beginning of the Palestinian division in 2007 a public festival to celebrate its 48th anniversary in Gaza. However, violations of the rights to peaceful assembly in the Gaza Strip immediately came back due to the defeated hopes of achieving the Palestinian reconciliation. Security services continued to enforce bans on public meetings, disperse a number of public gatherings, and impose precautions to restrict civilians’ right to conduct public meetings, especially gatherings which contradict mainstream opinion. These measures were applied inappropriately and beyond their original scope, affecting private meetings, which are conducted in closed places and not required by law to give notification to competent official bodies.

The most notable violations were:

» On 01 February, Information Office of the Hizb Ut Tahreer (Liberation Party) received a call from the Palestinian police informing that the police rejected the party’s request to screen a film titled “The Syrian Revolution Came with the Truth” in open-public areas all over the Gaza Strip. The caller added that the police approved on screening the film in closed halls. On 27 January 2013, members of Hiz Ut Tahreer’s Information Office gave notification to the Palestinian police about screening a film about the Syrian revolution in open-public areas all over the Gaza Strip. The event was supposed to start in Rafah on 02 February.

» On 07 April at approximately 11:30, The Palestinian police dispersed a sit-in organized by young Palestinians in solidarity with the Palestinian pris-
On 07 May, around 50 civilians participated in a sit-in in solidarity with the Syrian people and in condemnation of the Israeli shelling of Syrian territory. The sit-in was held in al-Qal'a Square in the centre of Khan Yunis and organized by the Arab Liberation Front. Shortly after the sit-in began, two individuals wearing plain clothes arrived at the scene and ordered the participants to disperse. Shortly afterwards, members of a unit of Palestinian police began to violently disperse the crowd, beating some of the participants with gun butts and clubs. Police arrested 5 of the participants and took them to the Office of the Prosecutor in Khan Younis City; they were released an hour later.

On 27 November, a number of young men notified the Director General of the Palestinian police in Gaza to conduct a public meeting in the Unknown Soldier Square on Saturday, 30 November 2013, in protest against the Israeli “Prawer” Plan to confiscate Arab lands in Negev. On 28 November, Ahmed ‘Abdullah al-‘Adini, an organizer of the meeting, received a call from someone, who identified himself as the Director of the Office of the police General Director, informing him that they did not obtain an authorization to conduct the gathering. Al-‘Adini said to the PCHR staff that he went with his colleagues, Ahmed al-Ghalban; Rami Muhsen; and Ahmed Abu Wardah to Unknown Soldier Square holding banners with slogans condemning the “Prawer” Plan, but they were arrested by security officers dressed in plain clothes and transferred to the police station in the city. Al’Adini added that Abu Wardah and him were beaten during the interrogation about the call for the meeting and were then forced to sign a pledge not to participate in activities unauthorized by the official bodies in Gaza. They were released at approximately 17:30 on the same day.

The government in the West Bank and its security services continued to violate the right of citizens to peaceful assembly, particularly those who participated in gatherings which contradicted mainstream opinion. The worst violations were committed by the security services against the participants in peaceful gatherings called for by Hizb Ut-Tahrir in the West Bank.

The most prominent violations were the following:

» On 24 March, Palestinian security officers used clubs and sticks to beat the participants in a peaceful assembly, which was called for by the Hizb Ut Tahreer in Tulkarm in the north of the West Bank. Huge forces of Intervention and Order Maintenance police accompanied by members of National Security Forces arrived at Jamal ‘Abdul Naser in the city where civilians were gathering and ordered them to end the sit-in and immediately leave. When the participants left the place, security officers severely beat them using clubs and sticks.

» On 25 April, the Palestinian security services dispersed using force a peaceful sit-in organized by Hizb Uttahreer in the centre of Tulkarm in the north of the West Bank. At approximately 13:00, dozens of Hizb Uttahreer activists gathered near Jamal ‘Abdul Naser square in the city in protest against the peace initiative presented by the U.S. Secretary of State, John Kerry, during his visit to the region. Large forces of the Palestinian security services arrived at the place and dispersed the sit-in using force and tear gas canisters. The protestors were beaten by sticks and clubs, and around 20 of them were arrested. Two of the detainees were released for health reasons while the rest of them were detained for various periods.

» On 27 April, dozens of members and activists affiliated with Hizb Ut Tahreer gathered at approximately 12:00 near Jamal ‘Abdul Naser Square in the Centre of Tulkarm in the north of the West Bank protesting against the destention of their colleagues by the Palestinian security services on Thursday 25 April. Large forces of the Palestinian security services arrived at the area and beat the protestors using clubs and sticks and dispersed the protest using force. They also arrested more than 30 protestors, who continued to be detained for various periods.

» On 04 May, Palestinian Security Services in Jenin in the north of the West Bank prevented a peaceful political sit-in organized by the Hiz Ut Tahrer in the centre of the town. Hundreds of security officers were deployed in the area of al-Jadid Mosque in the centre of Jenin and tried to surround the gate of the mosque in order to prevent the party’s members from organizing the sit-in.

» On 16 August, dozens of civilians participated in a peaceful assembly following the Friday prayers in al-Hussein Bin Ali Mosque in the centre of Hebro in the, south of the Bank, in support for Mohammed Morsi, former President of Egypt. A large force of security services arrived at the area and prevented protestors from walking in ‘Ein Sarah Street in the city. They dispersed the participants and beat a number of them using clubs and sticks.

» On 23 August, dozens of Palestinians, including members of Hamas, gathered in front of Jamal Abdul Nasser Mosque (al-Bireh Grand Mosque) and raised banners expressing solidarity with the Syrian people and on the situation in Egypt. Since the morning, Palestinian security services had closed the entrances of Ramallah and al-Bireh to prevent people from reaching the place of the assembly. They also held Mohammed al-‘Aarouri, a cameraman of al-Aqsa Satellite Channel. Once people gathered, security officers and persons in plain clothes started dispersing them by force, and violently beat a number of them, including Ahmed Milhem, a cameraman of the local Watan Television. A number of people were also taken in police vehicles to the old police station, but were released later after being handed summonses. The summoned persons included journalists Mohammed al-Qiq and Mohammed al-‘Aarouri.
The governments in Gaza and Ramallah continued to violate the right to freedom of association in 2013 in continuation of the impacts of the division since June 2007. The executive authority imposed restrictions and measures to obstruct the associations’ works and confiscate their independence in violation of the law and the PNA’s obligations to respect, protect, and guarantee this right in accordance with the relevant international standards.

In the Gaza Strip, the Ministry of Interior continued to intervene into the affairs of NGOs and civil society organization to tighten control over them in all ways. The latest measures were the Ministry’s decision no. (98) issued in October 2013 in regards to the elections in the charitable societies and community organizations and decision no. (61) concerning the financial affairs of the charitable societies and community organizations. Both decisions impose new restrictions on the work of associations and NGOs and are in violation of the 2003 Basic Law and the Law of Charitable Associations and Community Organizations no. (1)/2000 and the 2003 executive bill. These decisions grant the Minister (Minister of Interior) wide powers to intervene in the work of the associations in violation of relevant laws and regulations, which limits the Minister’s powers to monitoring only. These decisions are part of the continued series of decisions and procedures imposed recently, including the decision of the Council of Ministers in May 2011 on the amendments of the executive bill of the 2003 Association Act. This decision widened the Interior Minister’s role in monitoring activities of associations. PCHR emphasized that this decision is unconstitutional and void. In addition, PCHR called upon the Council of Ministers to cancel it, but the council did not respond. Due to the lack of response from the Council of Ministers, PCHR filed a petition on 7 June 2012, challenging the constitutionality of the decision. The petition was submitted to the Supreme Court in Gaza, calling on it to rule in its capacity as the constitutional court. On 18 June 2012, the Court refused to consider the petition, claiming that it did not have the necessary competence to consider the case. The right to form non-profit associations in the Gaza Strip was denied by cancelling the article related to this right in the 1929 Companies Act under the Companies Act No. (7)/2012 in the Gaza Strip.

Three associations were raided and searched by unidentified persons in 2013, and the government in Gaza failed to prosecute the perpetrators.

In the West Bank, violations of the right to freedom of association continued, and there have been no new legal developments or administrative procedures on this right. Nothing new came onto the punitive procedures and decisions taken by the government in Ramallah against dozens of associations affiliated to Hamas following the incidents of division in 2007. One hundred and three associations remained closed despite the claims of the civil society organizations to re-open them. The Ministry of Interior still refuses to register any association that is close or affiliated to Hamas. On the other hand, security services still refuses to apply some judicial decisions related to the re-opening of some associations.

33. PCHR, ‘Constitutional Court Rejects PCHR’s Petition Challenging the Constitutionality of the Ministerial Amendment Made to the Executive Bill of Charitable Associations and Community Organizations Law for Non-Competence’.
34. The Executive Authority in Ramallah continued to reject the implementation of the decisions issued by the Palestinian Supreme Court to abolish the decisions issued by the Ministry of Interior about two associations in Hebron. The Palestinian Supreme Court issued 2 decisions in June and July 2009; the first one was about abolishing the Interior Ministry’s decision to appoint a temporary preparation committee to manage the Islamic Association for Orphan Care in Yatta despite the existence of a border of director, and the second one was about abolishing the Interior Ministry’s decision to appoint a temporary preparation committee to manage Beit Ummar Association for Orphan Care in Beit Ummar instead of the former elected administrative body. The court justified its decisions that the Ministry of Interior did not show the reasons behind the appointment decision and is in violation of Article 37 of the 2001 law of Charitable Associations and Community Organizations. The executive authorities did not until now implement the decisions.
The death penalty remains a subject of concern for the Palestinian human rights organizations. The Palestinian courts continued to issue new death sentences, most of which were issued in the Gaza Strip. The government in Gaza continued to implement death sentences in violation of law. In addition, no death sentences were implemented in the West Bank.

According to PCHR's documentation, the death sentences issued by the PNA increased in 2013 compared with 2012, during which 6 sentences were issued. In 2013, the Palestinian courts issued 14 death sentences. Thirteen of the death sentences were issued in the Gaza Strip, and the remaining one was issued in the west Bank. The number of death sentences issued by the Palestinian courts since the 1994 has risen to 148; 121 of which were issued in the Gaza Strip, and 27 of which were issued in the West Bank. The total number of death sentences issued in the Gaza Strip since the Hamas' takeover in 2007 has increased to 63.

There was a significant decrease in the implementation of death sentences in 2013, especially in the Gaza Strip, compared with 2012, which witnessed the implementation of 6 death sentences. Three people were put to death in the Gaza Strip, two of whom had been sentenced to death on grounds of collaboration with foreign parties and the other one was sentenced on criminal grounds. Thus, the total number of death sentences implemented in the PNA since 1994 has increased to 30, 28 of which were implemented in the Gaza Strip, and two others were in the West Bank. The total number of death sentences implemented in the Gaza Strip since the Hamas' takeover in 2007 has increased to 17. Eight of these sentences were issued on the grounds of collaboration with foreign parties, and the other nine were issued on criminal grounds (murders). All of them were executed without the ratification by the Palestinian President in violation of law.

In this context, PCHR highly appreciates the fact that the Palestinian President has not ratified any death sentences since 2005. We also believe that referring to this position may lead to the abolishment of death penalty by the PNA on the executive level and cancel this cruel and degrading punishment on the legislative level as soon as possible. Thus, PCHR is extremely concerned by the continued application of the death penalty in PNA-controlled areas, and calls for the abolishment of such cruel, inhuman, and degrading punishment. The death penalty violates the right to life and international human rights instruments, especially the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1948), the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (1966), and the UN Convention against Torture (1984). PCHR reiterates that abolishing the death penalty does imply leniency towards criminals, who must be subjected to punishment that act as a deterrent, but also maintain human dignity. PCHR calls upon the PNA to review all legislation related to the death penalty, especially 1979 Revolutionary Penal Code of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) implemented in the PNA and considered unconstitutional law, Law No. 74 (1936) that remains effective in the Gaza Strip, and the Jordanian Penal Code No. 16 (1960) that remains effective in the West Bank, and to enact a unified penal code that conforms with the spirit of international human rights instruments.

In 2013, Palestinian civilians suffered from the continued deterioration of their economic, social and cultural rights due to the continuation of the Palestinian political division and absence of any real prospects to regain the Palestinian political system united in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. Policies and measures taken by the two governments in Ramallah and Gaza have caused serious deterioration to people’s economic and social rights, which had been already aggravated due to the continued Israeli occupation of the oPt, the illegal closure imposed on the Gaza Strip since mid-June 2007, and aggressive hostilities, including “Operation Pillar of Defence” carried out at the end of 2012. By the end of 2013, humanitarian conditions in the Gaza strip had reached the level of a humanitarian disaster resulting in severe shortages of the electric power supplies, fuel and basic needs. This coincided with the weather depression that hit the oPt. This disaster resulted in deterioration in people’s daily vital services, including health facilities, access to water services, including drinking water in homes, environmental health services, access to educational institutions and all other vital services.

The Gaza Strip population lost any hope regarding a national reconciliation between Hamas and Fatah movements although the end of 2012 and the beginning of 2013 witnesses some positive steps by the two parties in this regard. The national reconciliation has become farther than ever due to the absence of the real political will, so people were pushed into the political conflict. As a result, people’s economic, social and cultural rights has aggravated as well as their political and civil rights.

The political crisis within the PNA, and the conflict between the two governments in Gaza and Ramallah, have further aggravated the already difficult economic and social conditions of the Palestinian people in the Gaza Strip. Measures taken by the two governments have severely impacted people’s living conditions. In 2013, thousands of public service employees and their families suffered cuts to their salaries, which the Ramallah government initiated under the pretext of not being in the Gaza Strip or traveling abroad. This measure included hundreds of employees who did not leave the Gaza Strip. Employees of the public and security services who receive salaries from the PNA, particularly those affiliated with the Fatah movement, are constantly monitored and harassed by the government in Gaza and its security services.

Additionally, the two governments in the West Bank and Gaza Strip closed dozens of charities and NGOs in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. This has severely impacted the economic and social rights of hundreds of their employees, who lost their permanent or temporary jobs and many of them have become unemployed, which increased the already high rates of unemployment in the Palestinian society, especially among the youth. Thousands of individuals were affected and were prevented from health, agricultural, relief, and development services provided by the charities and NGOs.
Health Conditions in the Gaza Strip

In 2013, all services provided to the Gaza Strip population were negatively affected by the ongoing political and power conflict between the two governments in Ramallah and Gaza. Health conditions of the Gaza Strip population, especially patients, deteriorated due to the irregular supply of medicines and medical necessities in all public health facilities in the Gaza Strip, including hospitals and medical centers. The acute shortage of medicines and medical necessities in health facilities became a deep and permanent crisis throughout the year. In addition, the severe financial crisis in the PNA as well as lack of pharmaceutical products and various medical necessities meant that hundreds of patients, including those with chronic diseases, psychological conditions, and financial problems, were no longer able to afford their medicines. According to sources from the General Administration of Pharmacy (GAP) in the Gaza Strip, the Ministry of Health in Ramallah provided only 23% of the total needed medicines and medical equipment. In January 2013, the GAP in the Gaza Strip ordered 236 medicines and medical equipment, but the Ministry of Health in Ramallah sent only 118 medicines (around 50% of the needs). In February, supplies of medicines and medical equipment were 82 types out of 244 types of medicines (around 33% of the medicines and medical equipment required for the Gaza Strip.) In May, the Ministry of Health in Ramallah sent 75 types out of 203 types ordered by the GAP in the Gaza Strip (around 37% only of the needed medicines and medical equipment). In September, the GAP ordered 233 of the medicines and medical equipment from the Ministry of Health in Ramallah, but they did not receive any noteworthy supplies of them. The total value of medicines and medical equipment sent by the Ministry of Health in Ramallah to the GAP in the Gaza Strip amounted to US$5,232,065; US$ 4,660,445 for medicines and US$ 571,620 for medical equipments (around 23% of the total imports of medicines and medical equipment sent from all donors).

Hundreds of patients from the Gaza Strip were negatively affected due to the irregular supplies of medicines necessary for them during the year. The rheumatoid arthritis and leukemia patients were the most affected as their health conditions deteriorated as a result of being deprived of receiving medical treatment regularly and periodically in 2013. PCHR took the initiative to communicate repeatedly with the competent authorities in the Ministries of Health in Ramallah and Gaza to protect the rights of patients and provide them regularly with the necessary medicines and without any delay. On 29 July 2014, PCHR called upon the Palestinian President to intervene immediately to save the lives of 36 patients suffering from leukemia in the Gaza Strip because they had not been receiving the necessary treatment for 8 months. PCHR was concerned these patients might have serious complications leading to death if they did not receive their treatment immediately. PCHR called upon President Mahmoud Abbas to promptly intervene to save the lives of these patients and to instruct the Ministry of Health in Ramallah to supply the medicine needed for these patients as soon as possible. According to PCHR’s follow-up, the suffering of the patients of leukemia, which is a serious cancerous disease that affects blood cells, started in December 2012 when the medicine (Glivec 400 mg tab) fully ran out in the blood section pharmacy at Shifa Hospital. As a result, the patients had not received their medical treatment since then. Doctors in charge stated that this medicine is the sole treatment for leukemia patients and not receiving this treatment would cause complications and put the patients’ lives at risk. It should be noted that the medicine is only available through the Ministry of Health in Ramallah and cannot be found in medical warehouses or private pharmacies in the Gaza Strip to save the patients’ lives. PCHR’s Legal Aid Unit addressed the Ministry of Health in Ramallah on 16 April 2013 and explained the conditions of leukemia patients in the Gaza Strip. In addition, the unit called upon the Minister of Health to urge the competent bodies to immediately send the medicine to the Gaza Strip patients. On 30 April 2013, the Pharmacy Department at the Ministry of Health in Ramallah replied that the medicine was available at the central wheelhouses in Ramallah and that coordination was being done to send it to the patients. However, the quantity of (Glivec 400 mg tab) that reached the pharmacy in June and for once was very limited. The quantity amounted to 210 tablets that could help treating 7 patients only for one month. However, patients in the Gaza Strip needed approximately 1,600 tablets a month. Consequently, the leukemia patients had been deprived of that medicine.

The Education Sector

On 31 March 2013, the Ministry of Education in the Gaza Strip declared, during a press conference in al-Carmel School, that it would begin applying the Education Law 1/2013. This law was approved by the Change and Reform Bloc, which is affiliated to the Hamas movement, in a session held on behalf of the Palestinian Legislative Council (PLC) on 26 December 2012. In addition, the law was published in al-Waqat’s official gazette in the Gaza Strip on 17 February 2013, which means that the law came into force on 16 March 2013. This constituted a serious development due to the continued enactment of legislations by the Change and Reform Bloc in the Gaza Strip on behalf of PLC, as well as the issuance of presidential decrees with the power of law in the West Bank under the pretext that the PLC is not convened. This also undermines the efforts exerted by the PNA since its establishment in 1994 towards building a unified Palestinian legal system. As a result, two divergent legal systems have existed in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip since the political division began in 2007.

On 10 April 2013, the Palestinian NGO Network (PNGO) and human rights organization expressed in a press release issued by them their concern over these implications on the education sector in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. Despite the importance of enacting a new education legislation to keep pace with the latest developments and the role of education in the development of nations, the issuance of new decisions to be applied specifically in the Gaza Strip, but not in the West Bank, poses a threat to educational development in the oPt in general, and has a detrimental impact on Palestinian unity and identity. Despite years of political division, basic educational standards have been maintained, especially at the high school level with the common “Tawjihi”. However, the implementation of separate legislation challenges the maintenance of these common standards.

The new law consists of a number of administrative regulations relating to aspects which fall under the competence of the educational administration. The regulations provide for gender segregation in schools and the establishment of female-only schools which do not employ male teachers. This law eliminates parental freedom to choose the moral and religious education of their children by selecting non-governmental schools, as these schools are obliged to abide by the minimum standards of education imposed by the government itself.

PNGO, Al-Dameer, Al-Mezan, and PCHR were concerned that this new law is part of a greater context in which the government aims to impose a specific ideology and identity in the Gaza Strip which does not respect ideological and cultural diversity in the Palestinian community. The organizations emphasise the need for Palestinian legislation to take into consideration the ideological and cultural diversity of the Palestinian community, and to respect the word and the spirit of the Palestinian Basic Law, which should form the basis of all new laws.

Therefore, PNGO, Al-Dameer, Al-Mezan, and PCHR called upon the government and Palestinian Legislative Council in the Gaza Strip to repeal Education Law 1/2013 and to guarantee the freedom of private schools to choose the administration of their schools, in accordance with the customary standards that have been applied since the establishment of the PNA. They also called upon the Change and Reform Bloc to end the policy of enacting legislation on behalf of the Palestinian Legislative Council in the context of fait accompli in Gaza. They also called upon President Mahmoud Abbas to stop issuing unnecessary decisions that have the power of law in light of the political division; and highlighted the need for the Palestinian Legislative Council to fully convene in order to resolve the dilemma facing the legislature since the political division began.

Electricity Crisis and Its Impact on Basic Services in the Gaza Strip

In 2013, the electricity crisis in the Gaza Strip was one of the most critical challenges and constituted an additional burden on people. It led to deterioration of economic and social conditions of the civilian population as it is attached with the access to basic services. Vital facilities, including water supplies, hospitals and medical centres, the sewage plants and the educational sector, were severely affected. Finding means of alternative energy has become a key concern for the people of Gaza. The use of power generators or candles to compensate the shortage of electric services has caused many accidents, and resulted in a number of deaths. The Palestinian political division has impacted the electricity crisis, as each party blamed the other one for the crisis. On 01 November 2013, the operation of the Gaza power plant was totally stopped due to the lack of fuel required for its operation. The crisis impacted the access of 1.8 million Palestinians to vital services, including the supply of drinking water, and resulted in the suspension of work in some vital sectors, such as health, sanitation and education. The Energy Authority claimed that its counterpart in Ramallah stopped the fuel supplies required to operate the power plant and it requested taxes on the price of fuel, and the Energy Authority in Gaza announced its inability to pay taxes on the price of the industrial fuel. On the other hand, the Energy Authority in Ramallah refused to provide any new fuel supplies required for operating the power plant resulting in the total lack of fuel and the shutdown of the plant.

The shutdown of the Gaza plant power left serious consequences on the humanitarian conditions of the Gaza Strip's population due to the deficit in daily needs of power in Gaza. The Electricity Distribution Company (GEDCO) in Gaza was forced to increase the hours of power outages on houses and vital facilities from 8 to 12 hours daily. Thus, the schedule, which is applied, based on which power would be distributed for six hours and then cut off for 12 hours, resulted in further deterioration in humanitarian conditions of the Gaza Strip's population. It should be mentioned that the power plant was providing around 65 megawatts during the years of its reparation and rehabilitation after being targeted and destroyed by Israeli forces in June 2006. The power plant had worked since June 2012 to produce around 100 megawatts. The Gaza Energy Authority stated that the electricity is provided to the Gaza Strip as follows: 120 megawatts from Israel and 27 megawatts supplied by Egypt.

The Gaza power plant has been suffering from a significant decrease in fuel supplies required for its operation coming from Egypt through tunnels under the Egypt-Gaza border, as the supplies have almost completely stopped since September 2013. As a result, the Energy Authority in Gaza purchased fuel from Israel through its counterpart in Ramallah. At that time, the PNA in Ramallah exempted fuel purchases from taxes. However, the Energy Authority in Ramallah demanded its counterpart in Gaza to pay the taxes on the fuel supplies due to the PNA's current financial crisis. The Energy Authority in Gaza refused to pay those taxes claiming that it cannot afford paying them.

PCHR has been following the power crisis consequences in the Gaza Strip since the power plant stopped operating after Israeli forces targeted and destroyed it in June 2006 resulting in catastrophic impacts on the power supplies in the Gaza Strip. PCHR has been also following the impacts of the ongoing Palestinian political split, whose two parties failed to find solutions that take into account the best interests of Palestinian civilians in Gaza and stop the deterioration of humanitarian conditions and provide their electrical power needs and fuel required to operate the Gaza plant power. PCHR is deeply concerned over further deterioration of civilians' humanitarian conditions as the power crisis has affected all civilians' daily life needs and violated their right to access to basic and necessary services, including access to health facilities and to treatment, access to educational institutions, including schools and universities, and access to water services, including drinking water in homes and all other vital services.

PCHR documented the disastrous impacts resulted from the failure of both parties to the political division to mitigate the dangerous implications on the humanitarian conditions of the civilian population in the Gaza Strip as a result of the electricity crisis, which became a permanent crisis:

» About 1.8 million inhabitants of the Gaza Strip are facing deficiencies in all walks of their daily life, which have affected their basic needs, including health services, access to water, environmental health services and ability to meet the educational needs of school and university students.

» The deterioration of health conditions in the health facilities of the Gaza Strip due to inability to compensate the shortage of electricity for long hours on one hand, and their inability to provide fuel needed to run the alternative generators in these facilities on the other hand, in addition to breakdown of many machines and medical equipment at hospitals and health facilities of the Gaza Strip.

» Hundreds of patients in the hospitals of the Gaza Strip face serious health risks as the medical equipment are not run regularly, especially in the intensive care units and other medical units like heart and kidney units.

» Local bodies, including municipalities and village councils, are unable to provide alternative fuel to ensure the workflow of their vital facilities serving the population of the Gaza Strip, including water and sanitation facilities. Citizens’ complaints started to resound because of their inability to get water in their houses, especially in high buildings.

» Different bakeries in the Gaza Strip said that they partially stopped working due to the long hours of power outage and the shortage of the fuel needed to run the machines. One can notice overcrowding for long hours in front of bakeries in order to get the basic needs.
Educational facilities in universities and educational institutions are suffering a serious disorder, which has led to the inactivity of many educational laboratories and the postponement of some educational assignments due to electricity shortage and lack of alternative power sources. The aggravation of electricity crisis has coincided with the mid-term exams that started about a week ago in the schools and universities of the Gaza Strip. The majority of governmental schools is still without electricity and cannot provide the students with alternatives.

Hundreds of institutions and associations in the Gaza Strip had to postpone their activities and programs due to the electricity shortage all day and their inability to provide alternative power sources to run their machines and equipment.

The suffering of the population of the Gaza Strip has seriously aggravated, especially those living in high buildings and who depend on elevators in the ascending and descending from their apartments. Dozens of residents, including elderly people and patients with chronic diseases have been largely affected.
PART (2)
PCHR’S ACTIVITIES
IN 2013
The first part of this report reviews the human rights situation in the oPt, and highlights violations of human rights and the international humanitarian law. This part details PCHR’s activities in 2013 according to its annual plan. Before detailing the activities carried out by PCHR's units, we believe it is important to review some titles and issues that were apparent in PCHR’s activities over the year, the most notable of which were:

Intensive Advocacy Efforts at the International Level

In 2013, PCHR enhanced its efforts to network and cooperate with various international organizations to highlight the suffering of the Palestinian people, especially in light of human rights violations and war crimes perpetrated against Palestinian civilians. PCHR's efforts included: Working with UN human rights mechanisms; maintaining the campaign for Palestine’s accession to the International Criminal Court; efforts to prosecute suspected Israeli war criminals; meetings with diplomats and supporters for the Palestinian people’s rights.

First: Working with UN Human Rights Mechanisms

PCHR made a number of submissions to the Human Rights Council during its three sessions held in 2013. PCHR, al-Haq, al-Dameer Association for Human Rights, al-Mezan Center for Human Rights, the Arab Organization for Human Rights, the International Association of Democratic Lawyers and Palestine Bar Association submitted a written statement titled “Closure and Accountability” to the UN Human Rights Council’s 24th session held in the period 09-27 September 2013.

PCHR, the Arab Organization for Human Rights and the International Association of Democratic Lawyers submitted a written intervention titled “No Justice or Remedy for Palestinian Victims in the Israeli Legal System” to the UN Human Rights Council’s 23rd Session held in the period 27 May – 14 June 2013. The intervention highlighted denying Palestinian victims access to justice in the Israeli legal system.

PCHR submitted a written intervention titled “Torture and Ill-Treatment of Palestinian Prisoners by Israeli Occupation Forces” to the UN Human Rights Council 22nd Session held in the period 25 February – 22 March 2013. Additionally, PCHR, jointly with the International Association of Democratic Lawyers, Europe Center – Third World, and the American Lawyers Association made two joint oral submissions at the UN Human Rights Council. The two submissions focused on Israel’s refusal of submitting the period report for the international periodic review and the UN Independent Fact – Finding Mission to Investigate the Implications of Israeli Settlements on Civil, Political, Economic, Social and Cultural Rights of the Palestinian People through the Occupied Palestinian Territory, Including East Jerusalem. On 04 and 05 March 2013, a delegation of PCHR participated in the UN Human Rights
Council’s meetings, which discussed the reports of the UN Special Rapporteur on Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment and the UN Special Rapporteur on Human Rights Defenders.

On 06 March 2013, PCHR, in cooperation with the International Federation of Human Rights, organized a parallel event to the UN Human Rights Council’s session. During the event, which was in the form of a hearing session, members of a PCHR’s delegation provided their personal testimonies based on their experiences as examples of the suffering of Palestinian detainees and their families. In its written submission, PCHR highlighted torture and cruel treatment of Palestinian detainees in Israeli prisons and detention facilities both inside Israel and the oPt. PCHR provided information on Israel’s violations of its obligations under the international human rights law and humanitarian law, especially the Convention against Torture, to which Israel is a party.

Second: Palestine to the International Criminal Court (ICC)

In 2013, PCHR started the activities of a campaign it had launched on 10 December 2012 titled “Palestine to the ICC.” The campaign aims to encourage the relevant stakeholders, namely the State of Palestine, the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court and the international community, to fulfill their responsibilities in ensuring justice and redress for Palestinian victims on violations of international law. In this context, on 03 October 2013, PCHR and al-Haq held a meeting with the ICC Prosecutor, Fatou B. Bensouda, to personally present a legal opinion, prepared in cooperation with Dr. Michael Kearney of the University of Sussex. The opinion provides legal justification for the Prosecutor to move forward on a declaration submitted by the Palestinian leadership in 2009, accepting the jurisdiction of the Court under Article 12 (3) of the Rome Statute. PCHR and al-Haq called on the ICC Prosecutor to instruct the Pre-Trial Chamber to investigate the situation in Palestine since July 2002.

Third: Malaga Conference

On 23 and 24 April 2013, PCHR, in cooperation with 9 Palestinian, Israeli and international human rights organizations, organized an international legal conference in Malaga, titled “Pursuing Justice and Redress for Palestinian Victims: Developing Strategies for Advocacy and Litigation.” This conference relates to recent developments within the Israeli legal system, which are effectively blocking nearly all avenues for access to justice for Palestinian victims. The most recent of these developments is Amendment No. 8 to the Israeli Tort Law, which came into force in 2012.

The participants issued a joint statement titled “Joint Statement by Palestinian, Israeli and International Organizations Concerning Civil Compensation Claims before Israeli Courts,” in which they emphasized that the procedural and legal obstacles imposed by Israel on access of Palestinian victims to justice constitute a complete denial of any opportunity to achieve justice or re-dress to these victims. They also called on international, Israeli and Palestinian legal organizations to confront these challenges and contribute to overcoming them.

Fourth: PCHR’s Efforts to Internationalize the Cause of Palestinian Prisoners in Israeli Jails

As part of its ongoing efforts in support for Palestinian prisoners in the Israeli prisons and advocacy for this humanitarian, legal and political cause, PCHR organized a number of activities for a delegation that consisted of families of the Palestinian prisoners in Egypt, Switzerland and France. The delegation was comprised of mothers of 2 prisoners in the Israeli prisons and another 2 ex-prisoners who served years of imprisonment in Israeli Jails, headed by Jaber Wishah, PCHR’s Deputy Director for Branches Affairs.

The delegation met with a number of international officials, diplomats and activists, and participated in a number of activities and events to internationalize the cause of Palestinian prisoners in Israeli jails. Members of the delegation highlighted detention conditions of Palestinian prisoners in Israeli jails, and the implications of the UN recognition as a non-member State on the legal status of Palestinian prisoners.

A PCHR’s representative was a member of a delegation of families of prisoners that visited Lebanon upon an invitation from an organization called “Lebanese Families Support Palestinian Families.” The visit was concluded on 05 November 2013. During the visit, the delegation held a series of meetings and participated in a number of activities in Beirut and other Lebanese families to explain the cause and suffering of Palestinian prisoners in Israeli jails in order to mobilize Arab support for their cause. In this context, the delegation met with the Palestinian Ambassador to Beirut, and made a number of media interviews that addressed the cause of Palestinian prisoners.

Networking with Other Organizations

In 2013, PCHR promoted networking with the Palestinian civil society. It maintained coordination with human rights organizations, Palestinian NGO Network and dozens of other NGOs in order to promote human rights and democracy in the Palestinian society to confront Israeli war crimes and the Palestinian Authority’s violation of human rights. These efforts played a major role in establishing common positions highlighting human rights violations perpetrated against the Palestinian people and stopping some of them.

1. Joining the Palestinian Human Rights Organizations Council (PHROC)

In the context of its efforts to promote joint work with human rights organizations, PCHR joined the PHROC, a body that includes 12 Palestinian human rights organizations, which was established in order to unify efforts to promote and protect human rights in the Palestinian society, report on Israeli crimes against Palestinian civilians and confront violations of rights and liberties in the Palestinian Authority areas. To achieve its goals, the PHROC adopts multiple mechanisms of joint work, like united Palestinian representation and human rights statements at international bodies, joint statements, joint meetings, information exchange and other forms of cooperation.

2. Promoting Joint Work with Civil Society Organizations, Including PNGO and Human Rights Organizations

The year was characterized by enhanced joint work with human rights organizations and the Palestinian NGO Network (PNGO). The cooperation included a number of activities such as organizing joint meetings with decision-makers, organizing conferences and preparing joint memoranda and statements. It proved fruitful in stopping a number of human rights violations and highlighting others in order to stop them and ensure their non-recurrence.

In this context, human rights organizations made joint efforts to stop the deterioration of rights and public liberties and confront attempts to impose a specific ideology on the population of the Gaza Strip. These efforts included holding a number of meetings with officials and decision-makers in the Gaza government and Hamas, and preparing a memorandum on the situation of human rights and public liberties which was submitted to officials of the Gaza government and Hamas calling for stopping such violations. The efforts were also focused on stopping efforts to enact a penal code that legitimizes physical punishment and undermines public liberties. They also confronted the so-called “Virtue Campaign” that restricted uncommon clothes and haircuts of young men. As a result of these efforts, human rights organizations and PNGO received confirmations from officials of Hamas and the Gaza government to abstain from enacting such penal code, and the “Virtue Campaign” was stopped.

The last weeks of 2013 witnessed intensive efforts by PNGO and human rights organizations to cancel two decisions issued by the Interior Minister in Gaza: Decision No. (61) of 2013 concerning financial affairs of charities and NGOs; and Decision No. (98) of 2013 concerning elections in charities and NGOs.
These efforts were part of continuous joint efforts to stop all practices that may restrict activities and under the independence of associations, which escalated under the Palestinian political split. In this context, a joint legal memorandum was prepared to highlight the illegal aspects of the two decisions and their negative implications to the activities of associations. A number of meetings were also held with decision-makers in the Gaza government to explain the civil society's position towards the two decisions.

PCHR also organized a number of conferences and workshops in cooperation with human rights organizations and PNGO, the most notable of which was the conference organized by PCHR in partnership with PNGO, al-Mezan Center for Human Rights and al-Dameer Association for Human Rights on 18 April 2013, which addressed the Law of Education enacted by the Change and Reform Parliamentary Bloc, which hold sessions in Gaza in the name of the Palestinian Legislative Council.

A number of statements were issued jointly with PNGO and human rights organizations, which addressed important issues, including denial of justice for Palestinian victims at Israeli courts, laws enacted by the Change and Reform Parliamentary Bloc, which hold sessions in Gaza in the name of the Palestinian Legislative Council, especially the Law of Education, the electricity crisis in Gaza and movement through Rafah International Crossing Point.

3. Amal (Hope) Coalition against Violence against Women

PCHR has been a member of the consultative committee of Amal (Hope) Coalition against Violence against Women – a coalition of human rights and women’s organizations for the elimination of violence against women – since 2009. The coalition is comprised of: PCHR; Women’s Affairs Center; Palestinian Center for Conflict Resolution; Center for Women’s Legal Research & Consulting; Aisha Association for Women and Children Protection; Wefaq Society for Women and Child Care; Creative Women Forum; Jabalya Women’s Health Center; and the Union of Health Work Committees.

4. Increased Cooperation with Civil Society Organizations to Disseminate the Culture of Human Rights and Democracy

In 2013, PCHR continued to promote cooperation with civil society, grassroots and youth organizations to disseminate the culture of human rights and democracy. To carry out these activities, PCHR cooperated with 139 grassroots organizations through implementing 134 activities, including training courses, workshops and awareness meetings. These activities targeted 6,988 persons of various ages, including 4,732 women. All units of PCHR were involved in these activities.

5. Conference Titled “War on Gaza: Implications and Future Prospects”

On 23 February 2013, PCHR, al-Zaytouna Center for Studies and Consultations and Palthink for Strategic Studies organized a conference titled “War on Gaza: Implications and Future Prospects.” The proceedings of the conference continued for two days divided into 6 sessions. The conference was concluded by a number of recommendations to the international community and decision-makers. PCHR invited a number of international scholars and legal experts to the conference, which was attended by academics, journalists, representatives of civil society organizations and interested people.
Sourani Receives 2013 Right Livelihood Award (Alternative Nobel Prize) in the Field of Human Rights

The Swedish Right Livelihood Award Foundation granted Lawyer Raji Sourani, Director of PCHR, its annual Award that is known as “Alternative Nobel Prize” for his unwavering dedication to the rule of law and human rights under exceptionally difficult circumstances. The awards is offered in the fields of human rights, sustainable development, education, health and environment. The 2013 Right Livelihood Awards go to Raji Sourani and other three recipients.

In an official ceremony held on 02 December 2013, in the Swedish Parliament in Stockholm, Sourani received the 2013 Right Livelihood Award.

Unlike the Nobel Prize and other international awards given to political, scientific or economic figures in the world, the Alternative Nobel Prize is granted to persons working and struggling for a better future in their countries and the entire world.

Sourani is the first Palestinian and third Arab to be awarded this international award. The 2013 Right Livelihood Awards go to Raji Sourani and other three recipients:
1. Paul Walker, from the USA, for working tirelessly to rid the world of chemical weapons;
2. Denis Mukwege, from the Democratic Republic of Congo, for his courageous work healing women survivors of war-time sexual violence; and
3. Hans R. Herren, from Switzerland, for his expertise and pioneering work in promoting a safe, secure and sustainable global food supply.

Lawyer Sourani has received many other awards in the field of defending human rights from international and high-profile organizations. In 1991, he received the Robert F. Kennedy Human Rights Award jointly with the Israeli lawyer Avigdor Feldman. In 1996, he received the 1996 French Republic Award on Human Rights, while in 2002, he received the Bruno Kreisky Human Prize for Outstanding Achievements in the Area of Human Rights. Furthermore, he received the International Service Human Rights Award in 2003.

International Criminal Law Moot Court Project

In cooperation with PCHR International Unit, the unit implemented the International Criminal Law Moot Court project in the Gaza Strip, a project implemented for the second consecutive year by PCHR, funded by the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) and sponsored by the UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in cooperation with Al-Azhar University, the Islamic University and Palestine University. The project, managed by the international unit, involved 30 students from the three law faculties of Gaza City: Al-Azhar University, Islamic University and the University of Palestine. The groups of students received theoretical training from PCHR-trained coaches, and then worked on their written submissions with guidance from their coaches.
On 7 and 8 September 2013, the competition was held in the Roots Restaurant. The jury comprising of lawyer Sourani, head of the jury; Mr. Salama Bseiso, Deputy Director of the Bar Association in Palestine, a member of the jury; and Mr. Iyad al-'Alami, Director of PCHR’s Legal Aid Unit, a member of the jury, listened to the legal pleadings presented by competing university. The completion was won by al-Azhar University and the Islamic University. In conclusion of the project, certificates were distributed to the students participating in the competition.

Right-Wing Israeli Groups Launch Libeling Campaigns against PCHR’s Efforts to Stop Israeli Violations of Human Rights and Hold Perpetrators Accountable

Right-wing Israeli groups, supported by the Israeli government, launched more labeling campaigns against PCHR’s efforts to stop Israeli violations of human rights and hold the perpetrators accountable. One of these groups is NGOs Monitoring, an extremist organization sponsored by the Israeli government, which has worked for several years libeling and inciting against Palestinians and non-Palestinian NGOs which work against Israeli violations against Palestinians.

For instance, on 16 August 2013, Gerald Stenberg, director of that organization, wrote an article in the Israeli Yediot Aharanot inciting against PCHR and the Norwegian government, claiming that the latter supported PCHR in its campaign for Palestine’s accession to the International Criminal Court in order to bring Israeli war criminals before international justice. The article titled “Does Norway Support a Palestinian NGO to Destroy the International Criminal Court?” in an indication to PCHR, included several fallacies and illogical analyses whose aim was to libel and incite against PCHR’s campaign in an attempt to stop efforts to hold Israeli war criminals accountable and ensure redress for Palestinian civilian victims.

The same organization published a statement on 10 March 2013 titled “PCHR and Human Rights Watch: UN Report Refutes False Claims Concerning a Child’s Death in Gaza.” The statement accused PCHR and Human Rights Watch of fabricating crimes allegedly committed by the Israeli military and adopting dual standards in dealing with violations of the international humanitarian law. The statement included false information to influence readers.

This campaign is part of continuous suspicious attempts by right-wing Israeli organizations sponsored by the Israeli government to undermine PCHR’s credibility and incite against it in order to stop its efforts to stop Israeli violations against Palestinian civilians. Another organization, “Em Territzu” (Second Zionist Revolution,” has persistently incited against PCHR for resorting to the universal jurisdiction ensure prosecution of suspected Israeli war criminal in several countries, including the UK, Spain, New Zealand and USA.

Continued Institutionalization and Capacity Building in PCHR

PCHR always makes efforts to develop its performance through enhancing the processes of institutionalization and capacity building of its staff to improve their professional efficiency. In 2013, PCHR continued such efforts in various directions that can be summed up in the following.
Meetings of Leading Bodies in PCHR

In 2013, leading bodies in PCHR held regular meetings:

» On 29 September 2013, PCHR’s General Assembly held a meeting in the presence of the Registrar of Companies to listen to and approve administrative and financial reports for 2012, appoint an auditor for 2013, approve a number of decisions and measures taken by the Board of Directors and increase the number of members of the Board of Directors from 4 to 5. In the end of the meeting, the Board of Directors resigned and a new Board of Directors was elected comprised of: Dr. Riad al-Zanoun; Ms. Nadia Abu Nahla; Mr. Hashim al-Thalathini; Mr. Eissa Saba; and Mr. Raji Sourani. Activities of PCHR’s Units

Field Work Unit

In 2013, the Field Work Unit continued to monitor and document the human rights situation throughout the oPt, including Jerusalem, as set out in its annual plan. The unit is the major artery that provides PCHR with information and data on human rights violations. The field workers of the unit in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip monitor and document human rights violations, escort visiting international delegation and interview victims and encourage them to refer to PCHR to seek legal assistance and remedy. The unit further produces weekly reports and several press releases on Israeli human rights violations in the oPt. Additionally, the unit monitors and documents human rights violations at the internal Palestinian level both in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank and refers the documented materials to relevant PCHR units. Staff members of the unit participate in various community activities and constitute a means of communication between PCHR and the society.

In the Gaza Strip, the Israeli forces have continued to impose a total closure for more than six years, violating all basic rights of the Palestinian civilian population. In 2013, Israeli forces continued to bombard Palestinian civilian property and conduct limited incursions into Palestinian areas located along the border between the Gaza Strip and Israel. Attacks by Israeli forces against access-restricted areas along the eastern and northern border of the Gaza Strip significant escalated.

In the West Bank, the Israeli forces and settlers escalated attacks against Palestinian civilians and their property, and continued efforts to create a Jewish majority in East Jerusalem. They also continued to construct the annexation wall inside the West Bank territory. They further maintained hundreds of checkpoints which restricted the movement of Palestinian civilians throughout the West Bank.

At the internal Palestinian level, the political split continued to impact all aspect of life in the Palestinian Authority controlled areas. In this regard, the unit continued to monitor and document human rights violations at the Palestinian level in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Field workers are required to complete a form for each violation they report. Many incidents require a number of different individual reports.

Means of Verification

In 2013, field workers filled in 3,723 forms in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank.

4. Collating Photographic/Video Evidence

Field workers are required to take photographs or video footages of the scenes of violations wherever possible. Photographic or video evidence can provide valuable record of incidents for both legal and historical records.

Means of Verification

The unit took dozens of photographs of human rights violations.

d. Claims before the Israeli Judiciary

» In 2013, the unit filed 3 compensation claims before the Israeli judiciary concerning 3 victims: Sha’ban Qarmout; Salama Abu Hashish; and journalist Mohammed Othamn. It also followed up several cases in the Israeli courts filed against the State of Israel on behalf of victims of Israeli violations of human rights, including killings, injuries, house demolitions and destruction of fishing boats. The unit demanded compensation for the victims.

» The unit submitted 5 objections to the Israeli Military Advocate General against closing 5 criminal complaints related to “Operation Pillar of Defense.”

» The unit filed 10 appeals at Israeli courts against decisions to dismiss cases based on Amendment No. 8/2012, and in regards to procedures related to powers of attorney.

» The unit filed a number of appeals before Israeli courts concerning the financial guaranties requested for filing a number of claims.

» The unit submitted dozens of applications to Israeli courts for extension of the time limit for paying the financial guaranties.

» The unit followed up a petition filed on 27 December 2012, in cooperation with a number of human rights organizations, before the Israeli Supreme Court against preventing Palestinians from the Gaza Strip who file claims against Israeli forces from entering Israel to appear before Israeli courts.

It should be noticed that Israeli courts issued a number of decisions that makes it impossible for Palestinian victims to judicial remedy. These decisions compel each claimant in a civil case to pay a court insurance fee (guaranty) of 20,000 NIS before the court will allow the case to proceed. If the money is not paid within 120 days, the claim will be dismissed.

According to the Israeli law, civil claims must be filed within two years from the date of the event; otherwise, victims would lose their right to effective remedy. Fulfilling this condition is extremely difficult, especially in light of the Israeli restrictive measures imposed on the Gaza Strip. Two years of restrictions mean that victims would not be able to file their claims on due time. Before the 1st of August 2002, such period had been 7 years, but the Israeli Knesset amended the law decreasing it to two years, apparently to deprive Palestinians of their right to file judicial claims.

Israeli courts often require plaintiffs to pay insurance fees before initiating the judicial procedures. Such fees are left for estimations of courts. Concerning claims related to damages incurred to property, the fees are proportions of the values of property. In claims related to killings and injuries, there is no specific range for fees.

Under the Israeli law, for a testimony or an affidavit to be legal, an eyewitness or a victim must physically appear before a court. Since 2007, in spite of decisions by courts summoning victims or eyewitnesses, IOF have prevented them from traveling outside the Gaza Strip.

e. Meetings and Seminars

In 2013, the unit held 7 meetings concerning Israeli violations of human rights and legal assistance provided to victims, including meetings with a number of human rights organizations in the West Bank to discuss cooperation between the two sides to support victims of human rights violations.

f. Issuing Press Releases

In 2013, the unit issued 2 press releases; one in regards to the MAG’s decision to close criminal complaints related to the families of al-Dalu and al-Shawa and other victims, and the other one was related to compensation obtained by the unit for victims from the families of Lubbad, al-Madhoun and Banat.

Indicators

» The unit submitted 92 complaints concerning cases of killing and destruction and robbery of property, on behalf of 289 victims.

» The unit sent 40 written notices to the Compensation Officer of the Israeli Defense Ministry.

Success Story

12 Years Following Their Deaths, PCHR Ensures Remedy for 3 Children Killed by Israeli Forces

Lawyers of the Legal Aid Unit succeeded in ensuring remedy for the families of three Palestinian children, who were killed by Israeli forces in 2001. Following years of legal work and vigorous follow-up, a settlement was concluded with the Israeli Military Prosecution’s representatives to pay NIS 166,000 for each family of the victims in exchange for closing the file. Procedures to submit the amounts of money to the families are now in process.

PCHR followed up the case through its lawyer regarding the investigation. Moreover, it had coordination with the Popular Committee against Torture and Physicians for Human Rights after providing them with the facts and results PCHR had in order to exert pressure for the interest of investigating the incident.

Along with the legal effort, PCHR followed up the case at the international level via sending letters to John Dugard, the Special Rapporteur on the Situation of Human Rights in the Occupied Palestinian Territory; Asma Jahangir, the UN Special Rapporteur on Extrajudicial Executions; and Olara Otunnu, Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict. PCHR demanded the international officials to take immediate steps to ensure opening a comprehensive and impartial investigation by an international independent committee.

The attack took place on 30 December when Israeli forces fired a number of artillery shells 2001 at Ahmed Mohammed Banat (15); Mohammed Abdul Rahman al-Madhoun (16); and Mohammed Ahmed Lubbad (17). They are all from al-Sheikh Radwan neighborhood in Gaza city. According to investigations conducted by PCHR at that time, an Israeli tank positioned in the vicinity of “Eli Sinai” settlement that was located to the north of Beit Lahia, in the northern Gaza Strip, fired 4 artillery shells at an agricultural land in the north of Beit Lahia that is about 1,200 meters to the south of the abovementioned settlement. 30 minutes later, Israeli forces announced they had killed 3 armed Palestinians who attempted to sneak into the settlement. changed their allegation later and claimed that the 3 persons were trying to plant explosives in the area. However, the official story of Israeli forces stated the 3 persons had carried knives.

Means of Verification

» The unit established 34 files of human rights violations, including killings, injuries and destruction or robbery of property.
» In 2013, the unit received 340 responses from Israeli official bodies to its correspondences.

1. Prosecution of War Criminals

Prosecution of Israeli war criminals occupies a major part of the unit’s activities, as the Israeli judicial system has failed to ensure justice for Palestinian civilians and has worked to provide a legal cover for crimes committed by Israeli forces against Palestinian civilians. To achieve this output, the unit carried out a number of activities as set out in its annual plan:

a. Legal Documentation

The unit has continued to document Israeli violation of human rights. In 2013, the unit established 40 files on Israeli violations of Palestinian human rights as shown in the following table.

b. Contacts with International Attorneys and Legal Experts

The unit has maintained contacts with international attorneys and legal experts in the context of its efforts to search for and prosecute Israeli war criminals before international tribunals.

» PCHR has prepared files and cases on behalf of victims of Israeli violations of human rights to be sued before national courts in other countries, especially the United Kingdom and Spain.
» PCHR has maintained cooperation with the Center for Constitutional Rights (CCR) in New York and Hickman & Rose in London, which work on the prosecution of war criminals.
» PCHR continued to carry out advocacy activities to prosecute suspected Israeli war criminals and achieve justice for Palestinian victims. These activities included campaigns and lectures in several countries.
» PCHR has continued to follow up lawsuits filed against Israeli war criminals in the Netherlands and Spain.
c. Meetings and Consultations with Experts on the Issue of Universal Jurisdiction

On 23 and 24 April 2013, PCHR organized an international legal conference in Malaga, titled “Pursuing justice and redress for Palestinian victims: developing strategies for advocacy and litigation”. This is the fourth conference of its kind organized by PCHR, in close cooperation with international partners, especially Al Quds Malaga. The conference was attended by 21 Palestinian, Israeli, and international human rights organizations and a number of lawyers. This conference related to recent developments within the Israeli legal system, which are effectively blocking nearly all avenues for access to justice for Palestinian victims. Because of these developments, as well as other legal, procedural and practical obstacles that have been put in place, PCHR convened the conference with the aim of developing possible legal and advocacy strategies for moving forward.

Indicators

» The unit has documented 40 legal files.
» PCHR has prepared dozens of cases to be pursued under the principle of universal jurisdiction.
» PCHR has continued to follow 3 claims against Israeli war criminals before the national judiciaries of the Netherlands and Spain.
» PCHR has maintained efforts to prosecute Israeli war criminals before the national judiciaries of a number of European countries.
» Movement of a number of Israeli officials responsible for war crimes against Palestinians has been restricted in a number of countries due to claims brought against them before courts.
» The arrest warrant issued on 10 September 2005 by Chief London Magistrate Timothy Workman against Major General (retired) Doron Almog is still effective.

Means of Verification

» This issue has a special Palestinian, Israeli and international legal attention.
» Raising this issue can deter many individuals from committing war crimes fearing from being prosecuted before the international judiciary.
» Restricted movement of Israeli officials due to concerns that arrest warrants may be issued against them.
Legal Aid to Those Who Are Denied Freedom of Movement

The unit continued to provide legal aid for Palestinian civilians with regard to restrictions imposed on their freedom of movement. Israel has continued to impose a tightened closure in the Gaza Strip and continued to close its border crossings. They imposed additional restriction on the movement of Palestinian civilians, including patients who need advanced medical treatment outside the Gaza Strip. To achieve this output, the unit carried out a number of activities as set out in its annual plan.

1. Complaints Regarding Freedom of Movement

In 2013, the unit pursued 316 complaints submitted to the humanitarian cases center at Erez crossings.

» The unit continued to follow up the case of Palestinians who were transferred from the Church of Nativity to other countries and to the Gaza Strip in 2002. In this regard, the unit sent a letter to the Israeli government’s legal advisor.

3. Networking with Human Rights Organizations

PCHR has strong relations with a number of human rights organizations to ensure the freedom of movement of Palestinian civilians. In this context, PCHR has relations with Physician for Human Rights in Israel. In 2013, the unit sent 102 letters to the External Medical Treatment Department in Gaza and to Physicians for Human Rights in Israel with regard restrictions imposed on access of patients from the Gaza Strip to medical treatment abroad and in Israel.

1. “I have only God and you to help me”

Ali Humaida started his complaint to a unit lawyers by these words. He sought assistance to ensure that his wife, Hiba Jihad Humaida, accompanies their infant, 11-month-old Abdul Aziz, who was suffering from a severe hemorrhage, for treatment at Echilov Medical Center in Israel.

The problem began on 9 April 2013, when he received a negative response from Israeli authorities preventing his wife from accompanying their child for treatment in Echilov Medical Center. Immediately, the unit lawyers made intensive efforts with concerned bodies, including the Humanitarian Center at Erez crossing. They sent an urgent letter to allow the mother to accompany her child, holding Israeli authorities responsible for the consequences of preventing the child’s travel with his mother. They also contacted the coordination office at the Palestinian Ministry of Health to ensure the child’s transfer with his mother in an ambulance.

The unit lawyers’ efforts proved fruitful, and the mother was allowed to travel with her child. The unit contacted concerned Palestinian parties to facilitate his travel in an ambulance to Echilov Medical Center.

2. It is like a permission to kill me...

“May God spare every Muslim and Jew this suffering, having cancer is a severe suffering, and obtaining an Israeli permit to go to the hospital is one hundred doubles of such suffering.”

In a weak voice with pain, Shifa Hamdan, 38, began her speech about her tragic experience with cancer and her attempts to obtain an Israeli permit to travel through Erez crossing to go to a hospital in Jerusalem.

Shifa lives in al-Amal neighborhood in Khan Yunis. She is married and mother of 5 children, the eldest of whom is 8 years old and the youngest is one year old. Shifa talks about her experience with pains saying: “Things began in January 2013, one month following the Caesarian birth of my youngest child, Mohammed, when I began to have difficulties in breathing, headaches and body leanness, while a small tumor appeared on the right side of my neck. I went to the hospital for treatment, and I was shocked when the medical examination and lab tests revealed that it was cancerous tumor. Due to the lack of chemotherapy and radiotherapy in the Gaza Strip’s hospital, doctors decided to immediately transfer me to al-Muttala’ Hospital in Jerusalem, and I obtained an appointment on 21 February.

“Mu shock doubled and I felt impatience when the appointment passed while the Israeli authorities were refusing to issue a permit for me to pass through Erez crossing for no apparent reason and in disregard to my deteriorating health conditions. I felt that each day passed without obtaining the permit deprive me of an opportunity to be treated. It was like a permission to kill me, to retaliate from me and torture me, just because I am Palestinian living in Gaza. My hope began to diminish, and fear and frustration controlled me. I became weaker and weaker, and I felt that I was not longer able to resist the disease. I began to collapse.”
Her husband said: “When all doors were closed in our faces, I remembered PCHR and I thought to resort to it seeking help, as I had a previous experience when they provided me with legal assistance a few years ago. I went to PCHR's office. I felt that they were working seriously to solve our problem. A few days later, my wife, accompanied by her sister, were allowed to travel through Erez crossing. They arrived at the hospital on 3 March and her treatment began. We have hope that she will be healed and come back to us as he used to be.”

3. “Is there time for waiting?”

“It was like a dream for me to obtain an Israeli permit to meet with my son, Shafer, and my grandchildren after long years.” With a mixture of feelings, Hajj Abu Saber began his speech talking about his visit to his son, whom he had not seen for years because of the closure imposed on the Gaza Strip. The son lives in the West Bank. Hajj Abu Saber said with hope: “The last time I obtained a permit to visit my son was about 7 years ago. His eldest child was still young. Since that time, I had not seen this child or the other three children who were born after that visit. I had not been able to visit them because Israeli authorities had refused to issue a permit for me to travel through Erez crossing.” Shafer, 33, is the second of the 11 children Mr. Zuhair Tafesh, 58, has. Because of his job, Shafer moved to the West Bank and lived in Jerusalem as he has a Jerusalemite ID card. There, he got married and he has 4 children now. He has not been able to visit his family in the Gaza Strip.

Abu Saber smiles with satisfaction and continues: “When I went to PCHR's office, I met a lawyer and he immediately began to pursue my case. I was very happy a few day later when I learnt that Israeli authorities agreed to issue a permit for me. In the beginning, I could not believe it. On 28 October 2013, I traveled to the West Bank through Erez crossing to visit my son and his family.”

2. Coordination with Concerned Bodies to Ensure Travel of Patients

The unit facilitated coordination for the travel of 592 patients to hospitals outside the Gaza Strip through Erez crossing and Rafah International Crossing Points.

It should be noted that each patient has to pass through a series of complicated procedures in order to be able to travel for medical treatment outside the Gaza Strip.

The unit provides another form of assistance with regard to patients whose condition cannot be diagnosed at local hospitals. It contacts relevant organizations, such as Physicians for Human Rights, in order to ensure financial coverage and an appointment at an Israeli hospital.

3. Meetings

In the context of PCHR’s efforts to improve health services provided to the Gaza Strip’s population, the unit director, lawyer Mohammed Bseisso and Sameeh Muhsin, Coordinator of PCHR’s Activities in the West Bank, held a

According to the director general of pharmacies in Gaza, this convoy was better than previous ones, and its value was estimated at US$ 2 million, including medicines for leukemia whose prices are so high.

2. On 23 January 2013, Rami al-Sousi came to PCHR’s office in Gaza as his 6-month-old child was in a critical condition as he was suffering from metabolic disorders and he was in the intensive care unit at Abdel Aziz al-Rantissi. Doctors informed the family that it was not possible to have treatment for him in the Gaza Strip. Al-Sousi sought assistance from PCHR to save his child’s life. Immediately, the unit lawyers contacted the External Medical Treatment Department and a number of Israeli hospitals. In a few hours, al-Maqassed Hospital agreed to receive the child. PCHR coordinated the child’s travel in an ambulance. PCHR’s efforts proved fruitful and the child was transferred in less than 24 hours.

3. “Is his condition stable or you are trying to calm me down? I miss him. I wish to hug and kiss him. He is a part of me…,” said Kifah whose baby was at an Israeli hospital in a critical condition. Mohammed is the fourth child of Abdullah Jazariya, 28, and Kifah Abu Jazar, 22, from Rafah. He was born on 23 November 2013, and was in a good health. On the 5th day following his birth, his health condition deteriorated, so doctors decided to urgently transfer him to al-Maqassed Hospital in Jerusalem. We faced extreme difficulties in finding the financial coverage and a hospital appointment. We went to the External Medical Transfer Department daily, and on the 9th day, a client got close to me and asked me about my problem and I told him. He smiled and told me that he had gone through a similar experience, and he resorted to PCHR and advised me to do the same. I immediately went to PCHR’s office. That was on 11 December 2013. I met with a PCHR lawyer and explained to him my problem. I also provided him with necessary documents. He listened to me and promised to do his best, I got hopeful. On the following day morning, I received a phone call from the lawyer who told me that all procedures were completed and that I had to refer to the External Medical Treatment Department. I immediately went there finding that the financial coverage and the hospital appointment were available. I learnt there that they were coordinating for providing an ambulance to transfer my baby. I then went to the Civil Affairs Department to apply to the Israeli authorities for a permit to pass through Erez crossing. In the meantime, the PCHR lawyer was contacting me in all steps. At approximately 17:00 on the same day, I received a phone call from the Civil Affairs Department informing me that my baby would exceptionally travel through Erez crossing in the evening in spite of the bad weather conditions. I immediately went to the hospital. At approximately 20:00 on Thursday, 12 December 2013, the ambulance traveled towards Erez crossing.”

He also hurt the children by beating and burning as he was a drug addict. The lives of her and the children became at stake, so she left the house.

Contribution to PCHR’s Annual Report

The unit contributed to PCHR’s annual report by preparing a number of reports that focused on the following issues:

» Impact of the Political Division on the Economic and Social Conditions in the Gaza Strip.
In 2013, the unit carried out activities detailed in its annual plan. In spite of the complicated changes and conditions in the oPt, the unit continued to implement its activities with the new groups it began to target, in addition to the groups it already targets. It continued also to interact with the Arab Spring by organizing 2 training courses for human rights defenders and participated in a mission to evaluate the judiciary in Libya. However, the unit was not able to implement 2 outputs, one because of the lack of funding, while the other one was postponed to the next year for subjective reasons.

At the Arab regional level, the unit organized 2 training courses in the field of monitoring and documentation and building legal files for war crimes and crimes against humanity to human rights defenders from Libya. These courses aimed at creating a generation of human rights defenders capable of monitoring and documenting human rights violations to ensure accountability of the perpetrators. The unit also participated in the mission mandated by the International Legal Assistance Consortium to evaluate the justice system in Libya.

At the Palestinian level, human rights education has continued to be faced by a state of frustration among Palestinians due to the impunity granted to alleged Israeli war criminals, the failure of the international community to fulfill its moral and legal obligations to hold Israel accountable for crimes committed against the Palestinian civilians population and dual standards adopted by European governments. Such challenges increased following the Israeli offensive on the Gaza Strip in November 2012.

Additionally, the ongoing political division in the Palestinian territory has led to extensive human rights violations and obstruction of democratic reform, causing more frustration to the Palestinian populations.

All these factors have obstructed the education of human rights and democracy and have added more burdens on human rights defenders to revive and disseminate the human rights culture in the Palestinian society.
Organizing training courses for 400 young men and women who are university graduates or students, journalists, lawyers or members of civil society organizations in the field of human rights and democracy

In 2013, the unit organized 16 training courses for various community segments. The number of participants in these courses 423 persons representing more than 20 community-based organizations throughout the Gaza Strip. The unit organized also 2 regional courses for 53 Libyan activists. These two courses drew the attention of a number of international organizations to organize similar courses. They asked for PCHR’s assistance to organize such courses. The unit organized training courses in cooperation with a number of international organization, the International Legal Assistance Consortium in Sweden and the Norwegian Refugee Council; regional organizations, including the Arab Organization for Human Rights; and local organizations, including the Shar’ia Judiciary Council, Community Media Center, the Swedish Association for Individual Relief, Youth Development Association, law clubs at Palestinian universities and the Union of Fishermen. The unit was able to implement these activities depending on the strategy it has put to maintain the network of constant contacts with organizations with which it cooperates annually. It also cooperated with newly established organizations and was able to have access to new segments of the Palestinian society. The unit will always cooperate with new organizations in order to open prospects for wider dissemination of the human rights culture in the Palestinian society.

Maintaining Relations with Civil Society Organizations through Training Activities

The unit contributes to promote PCHR’s relations with civil society organizations through participating in training activities organized by these organizations. The unit receives many invitations from governmental and non-governmental organizations to organize training courses for their members, delivering lectures or designing training programs due to the unit's high professionalism.

The unit responded positively to invitations from community-based organizations to deliver lectures or facilitate training sessions in the field of human rights. In 2013, the unit implemented 7 of such activities, which were attended by 192 persons.

Q&A Guide to Human Rights

It was not published in 2013 as other activities were prioritized. It will be published in the next year.

Activities Not Included in the Annual Plan

In January 2013, The unit director participated in a mission organized by the International Legal Assistance Consortium to evaluate the justice system in Libya.
The Unit's work is predominantly focused on strengthening PCHR's external capabilities, namely: developing and strengthening relations with other organizations, and increasing PCHR's profile and output on the international stage.

1. INTERNATIONAL LEGAL WORK

The International Unit works closely with PCHR's Legal Unit to develop and enhance PCHR's activities with respect to the pursuit of justice through international mechanisms. In particular, in light of the inadequacies of the Israeli legal system, and the Palestinian Authority's lack of jurisdiction over Israeli citizens, PCHR has continued to pursue universal jurisdiction. This international focus is founded on two underlying motivations. First, PCHR seeks to ensure victims' legitimate rights to an effective judicial remedy, and to the equal protection of the law. Such rights are codified in Article 2 and 26 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and constitute the cornerstone of international justice. Second, PCHR firmly believes that the rule of law offers the most appropriate mechanism for securing and protecting individual's rights. However, if the rule of law is to be relevant, it must be enforced. By pursuing international justice, including through universal jurisdiction, PCHR seeks to hold accountable those who commit international crimes. This serves to combat the pervasive culture of impunity, and to promote and strengthen respect for the rule of law.

In 2013, the International Unit contributed to PCHR's work in developing and strengthening an international legal network for coordinating, and preparing cases under the principle of international jurisdiction.

Verifiable indicators
The Unit notes the number of publications, the number of press releases and the number of joint statements initiated and endorsed by PCHR.

Output
The Unit noted the progress of current legal cases, development of new legal opportunities, an increase in international coordination and cooperation, the convening of an international legal conference on the Israeli legal system, and an increase in awareness of the utility and necessity of universal jurisdiction.

2. PUBLICATIONS AND REPORTS

The International Unit produces a number of publications and press releases. Publications are intended to enhance PCHR's core functionality, by providing accessible reports documenting the situation in the oPt, and analyzing events from the perspective of international law.

3. INTERNATIONAL ADVOCACY

A. Malaga Conference

The International Unit, in cooperation with other teams within PHCR, organized an international legal conference in Malaga, titled “Pursuing justice and redress for Palestinian victims: developing strategies for advocacy and litigation”.

The conference took place in Malaga, Spain, on 23 and 24 April, and was the fourth conference of its kind organized by PCHR, in close cooperation with international partners, especially Al Quds Malaga. 21 Palestinian, Israeli, and international human rights organizations and lawyers took part in the conference.

The conference addressed, amongst other issues, developments within the Israeli legal system, which are effectively blocking nearly all avenues for access to justice for Palestinian victims. Discussion centred around legal, practical, and procedural obstacles that have been put in place over a number of years, which have made it practically impossible for victims to pursue accountability and their right to redress.

PCHR convened the conference with the aim of developing possible legal and advocacy strategies for moving forward in the pursuit of justice for victims. The conference was participated in by representatives from Adalah, Al Dameer Association for Human Rights, Al Haq, Al Mezan Center for Human Rights, B’Tselem, the International Federation for Human Rights, the Norwegian Refugee Council, PCHR, Physicians for Human Rights, the Public Committee Against Torture in Israel, Redress, the UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, as well as international lawyers Emily Schaeffer and Daniel Machover, and international legal expert, Chantal Meloni.

A joint statement outlining the conclusions of the conference was released on Thursday 25 April.

B. Palestine to the ICC Campaign

Part of the international advocacy efforts of the International Unit stem from the Palestine to the ICC Campaign, launched on 10 December 2012. The campaign aims to encourage the relevant stakeholders, namely the State of Palestine, the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court and the international community, to fulfil their responsibilities in ensuring justice and redress for Palestinian victims on violations of international law. 10 years after the creation of the International Criminal Court, the institution created to put an end to impunity for the perpetrators of the most serious crimes of concern to the international community as a whole, PCHR is demanding accountability for the countless Palestinian victims who have been denied access to justice for so long.

The International Unit produced a number of publications and press releases intended to enhance PCHR’s call for international justice:

Reports:
» Penalising the Victim (25 April 2013)
» An Illusion of Justice, an Update of Genuinely Unwilling (25 April 2013)

Press releases:
» Israeli Court Dismisses Three Cast Lead Cases, Denying Palestinians the Right to Judicial Remedy and Compensation (19 February 2013)
» Penalising the Victim Recent Israeli Measures to Deny Palestinian Civilians’ Right to Reparation (21 March 2013)

Memorandum:
» Memorandum: Penalising the Victim (21 March 2013)

Statements:
» In light of ongoing violations, Palestine must join the ICC (4 April 2013)

4. PARTICIPATION IN AND CONTRIBUTION TO UN WORKING GROUPS AND AGENCIES

PCHR regularly participates in, and contributes to, the work of numerous UN-based working groups and agencies, such as: Protection Cluster Working Group (PCWG), a forum of NGOs and IGOs operating in the Gaza Strip that aim to share information and, where possible, formulate a coordinated response or assistance (monthly meeting); Legal Task Force (LTF), which was established on 3 October 2011 and aims at bringing together, on a regular basis, key legal service providers to share legal information and co-ordinate assistance and research, as well as seeking to build response capacity through training of relevant partners at the local level (monthly meeting); Monitoring and Reporting Mechanism (MRM), a subgroup of the PCWG aimed at providing a similar approach for violations of children’s rights in the Gaza Strip (monthly meeting); and the Access Restricted Area (ARA). PCHR is party to the Core Group of the ARA to facilitate a coordinated response to incidents related to the ARA, with a particular focus on accountability (monthly meeting).

5. INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL LAW MOOT COURT COMPETITION

In 2013 PCHR organised the second International Criminal Law Moot Court project in the Gaza Strip. The project, managed by the international Unit, involved 30 students from the three law faculties of Gaza city: Al-Azhar University, Islamic University and the University of Palestine. The project aims at encouraging University law students of the Gaza Strip to increase their knowledge of international humanitarian law international criminal law, with particular focus on the law and procedures applicable before the International Criminal Court (ICC). By creating a Moot Court Competition within the faculties of law of Gaza, the students have the opportunity to strengthen their legal skills through the work on a fictitious case, which presents the characteristics of a real one. In addition to gaining knowledge of IHL and ICL principles and rules, the students had the opportunity to come closer to the mandate, functions and jurisprudence of the ICC and other international tribunals.

Each participating University ensured that the team of students working on the Moot Court Competition was provided with a dedicated room, a ‘legal clinic’, and the necessary tools (computers, internet resources, etc.) in order to carry out the work of preparation for the case. PCHR provided series of books for this clinic as part of the project.

The groups of students received theoretical training from PCHR-trained coaches, and worked on their written submissions with guidance from their coaches. The students also received expert legal training from experts on international criminal law. During the Moot Court competition of 7-8 September 2013 participating student teams from the different Gaza Faculties of Law presented their oral and written pleadings before a jury, composed of international legal experts. The case was a hypothetical international criminal case dispute between the parties. All students who successfully completed the programme were awarded with an individual certificate and a team trophy. The hours dedicated to the Moot Court preparation are accounted as credits by the Universities. Through the Moot Court project the teaching of international criminal law was introduced in the local academic institutions’ curricula.

6. SUPPORT FOR OTHER UNITS IN PCHR

The International Unit is the primary non-Arabic language support Unit in PCHR. This means that the Unit edits all of PCHR’s publications, many of which are published first in Arabic. The weekly report and the vast majority of press releases are included in this. The International Unit also supports the Director of PCHR in international activities. Advocacy and Lobbying Activities

PCHR pays a special attention to develop a network of relations based on joint cooperation in order to be able to achieve its goal of protection of human rights and international humanitarian law. PCHR’s efforts to activate advocacy and lobbying activities at the local level are aimed at protecting human rights in the Palestinian territory and promoting democratic awareness in the Palestinian society. At the international level, PCHR makes use of such efforts to defend Palestinian human rights and influence the international public opinion against human rights violations and crimes perpetrated by the Israeli forces against Palestinian civilians.

PCHR continues to promote cooperation with local and international media. PCHR considers that the media plays a vital role in disseminating information on the human rights and humanitarian situation in the oPt. In 2013, PCHR continued to conduct interviews with local and international media and respond to requests for information on human rights in the oPt. PCHR’s Director and staff were interviewed by hundreds of local and international journalists. The interviews focused on the human rights situation in the oPt and the impact of the Israeli closure imposed on the Gaza Strip. The major media institutions that interviewed PCHR’s staff were: Reuters News Agency; Associated Press; France Press, TV France; Palestine Television; al-Quds Satellite Channel; Nile News Television; Sky News Arabic; BBC; Al-Jazeera Satellite Channel; the Guardian; the Independent; Der Spiegel; New Germany; Los Angeles Times; and South Africa Radio.

PCHR’s publications include: press releases; field updates on the state of lawlessness and proliferation of weapons; filed updates on the Israeli closure; Aftermath (a series of reports at the aftermath of Israel’s offensive on the Gaza Strip); periodic and special reports; foldouts; position papers; interventions to UN and other international bodies; and working papers at international and local conferences.

1. Press Releases

PCHR regularly issues press releases providing detailed and timely information regarding specific incidents, violations of human rights or international humanitarian law, or other important developments. In 2013, PCHR issued 137 press releases, including 66 that highlighted events relevant to human rights violations related to the PNA and internal Palestinian issues, and 62 press releases that focused on human rights violations perpetrated by Israeli forces. The Remaining 9 press releases were focused on general violations of human rights and international humanitarian law.
