- 71 assassinations committed by Israeli occupying forces since the beginning of the Intifada until 30 April 2002

- 111 Palestinians, including 34 bystanders, 11 of whom were children, killed and 112 wounded
Introduction

This is the third in a series of reports published by the Palestinian Centre for Human Rights (PCHR) on assassinations committed by Israeli occupation forces during the al-Aqsa Intifada. This report documents assassinations from 29 September 2001 to 30 April 2002. PCHR has published two previous reports on assassinations committed by Israeli occupation forces. PCHR’s first report on assassination operations, covering 29 September 2000-28 April 2001, documented 15 assassination operations that killed a total of 13 targeted Palestinians and 6 bystanders. The second report on assassinations, covering 29 April-28 September 2001, documented 26 assassinations that killed a total of 22 targeted Palestinians and 12 bystanders, including children.

The period under study witnessed a serious escalation in assassinations committed by Israeli occupation forces against Palestinian activists. Israeli occupation forces committed 30 assassinations, killing 58 Palestinians, including 42 targeted Palestinians and 16 bystanders, 8 of whom were children. In addition, 58 Palestinians, including 6 targeted Palestinians and 52 bystanders were injured. So, the total number of assassinations carried out by Israeli occupation forces from 29 September 2000 to 30 April 2002, is 71 operations, killing 77 targeted Palestinians and 34 bystanders, including 11 children. In addition, 17 targeted Palestinians and 95 bystanders were wounded.

Over the past few months, there has been a quantitative escalation in assassination attempts by Israeli occupation forces against Palestinians. Israeli occupation forces did not give any consideration to the lives of civilians, especially children, while carrying out assassination attempts. In this context, Israeli occupation forces killed 8 Palestinian children in three assassination attempts that targeted Palestinian activists. On 10 December 2001, two Israeli Apache gunships fired two missiles at a group of civilian cars stopped at a traffic light in Hebron, apparently targeting an activist of the Islamic Jihad wanted by Israeli occupation forces. Two children were killed and 14 people were wounded. On 19 February 2002, an Israeli combat helicopter fired a rocket at a media office of Hamas in Jabalya refugee camp in the northern Gaza Strip. Two Palestinians were killed and ten were wounded, including a 9-year-old child who succumbed to her wound on 2 March. On 4 March 2002, an Israeli tank fired at a civilian car in Ramallah governorate in an apparent attempt to assassinate a Hamas activist. He was not in the car at the time; instead, his wife was transporting three of their children family from the school. They and another two children were also killed.

1 This report covers overt assassinations and does not address cases in which Palestinians were killed in mysterious circumstances.
2 See PCHR’s web page: www.pchrgaza.org
3 This number does not include a failed assignment attempt, in which Israeli combat helicopters attacked a car of an Islamic Jihad activist, Dhiab al-Shwieki, on 6 April 2002. Al-Shwieki was able to get out of the car before it was hit, so he survived the attack, but eight passing civilians, including a child, were wounded.
4 These assassination attempts will be further detailed in this report.
According to PCHR's documentation, 30% of those killed and 85% of those injured in assassination attempts by Israeli occupation forces were bystanders and victims of the "margin of mistakes" (not targeted according to Israeli claims). These facts refute Israeli claims that assassinations are carried out accurately through technologically advanced weapons, with the possibility of harming a limited number of Palestinian civilians. These high numbers of casualties among "innocent civilians," strongly indicates that Israeli occupation forces carry out assassinations with little or no regard for lives of bystanders.

The Israeli government openly claims responsibility for liquidations and unapologetically claims that such acts are part of a policy of "self-defense" to prevent "terrorist" attacks against Israeli targets. On 19 February 2002, the Israeli government declared after a cabinet meeting that it would continue the policy of "killing that have specific goals," a euphemism for assassinations and extra-judicial killings. Yet circumstances of assassinations committed by Israeli occupation forces refute Israeli claims that they are part of a policy of "self-defense." For example, on 6 March 2002, an undercover Israeli unit fired at two Palestinian civilians who were walking on agricultural road near Burin village between Ramallah and Nablus. One of them, Jamal Raja Zeid al-Kasawani, 24, from Ramallah, was killed by several live bullets, and the civilian who accompanied him and two other civilians were also wounded. In the evening, an Israeli military spokesman stated that he was killed by mistake and that the target was another person. On 7 March 2002, Israeli occupation forces raided Sirris village, east of Jenin. They attacked a house apparently to assassinate Mohammed Saleh Suleiman Yassin, 28, an activist of the Islamic Jihad from ‘Aanin village near Jenin. They fired at its doors and windows. When Yassin attempted to get out of the house, an Israeli combat helicopter fired at him. He was killed by several live bullets while he was only 1m away from the house. Israeli forces could have arrested him as his did not pose any danger to them.

International Humanitarian Law and Assassinations

Assassinations constitute extra-judicial executions under international humanitarian law and are thus illegal; they represent a distinct subset of willful killings insofar as they are clearly premeditated and targeted. Assassinations are carried out without any judicial process, including presentation of evidence or opportunities for defense or appeal.

Assassinations violate the right to life as enshrined in international human rights and humanitarian law. Article 6(1) of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, to which Israel is a party, provides:

“Every human being has the inherent right to life. This right shall be protected by law. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his life.”

Article 3(1) of the Geneva Convention Relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War (Fourth Geneva Convention), the overriding instrument of international humanitarian law governing occupation, similarly provides:
“The following acts are and shall remain prohibited at any time and in any place whatsoever:
(a) Violence to life and person, in particular murder of all kinds, mutilation, cruel treatment and torture…”

Moreover, under Article 27 of the same convention, “protected persons are entitled, in all circumstances, to respect for their persons” and that “they shall be at all times humanely treated, and shall be protected especially against all acts of violence or threats thereof.”

Article 32 of the same convention prohibits "taking any measure of such a character as to cause the physical suffering or extermination of protected persons." It further provides that "this prohibition applies not only to murder, torture, corporal punishment, mutilation and medical or scientific experiments not necessitated by the medical treatment of a protected person, but also to any other measures of brutality whether applied by civilian or military agents."

According to Article 147 of the Fourth Geneva Convention, willful killings are considered grave breaches, i.e. war crimes, covered by the principle of universal jurisdiction. All High Contracting Parties to the Convention are obliged “to search for persons alleged to have committed, or to have ordered to be committed, such grave breaches, and shall bring such persons, regardless of their nationality, before their own courts” (Article 146).

The Principles on the Effective Prevention and Investigation of Extra-legal and Summary Executions prohibit all extra-legal, arbitrary and summary executions. Principle 1 provides:
“Governments shall prohibit by law all extra-legal, arbitrary and summary executions and shall ensure that any such executions are recognized as offences under their criminal laws, and are punishable by appropriate penalties which take into account the seriousness of such offences. Exceptional circumstances including a state of war or threat of war, internal political instability or any other public emergency may not be invoked as a justification of such executions.”

Assassinations and extra-judicial killings committed by Israeli occupation forces also violate the Hague Convention IV Respecting the Laws and Customs of War on Land of 1907, which Israeli occupation forces consider a legal basis in dealing with Palestinians in the OPT.5

5The Israeli military legal advisor has stated that the legal basis of Israeli military operations is the international law. In its response to two complaints submitted by PCHR against operations carried out by Israeli occupation forces against Palestinian property in the Gaza Strip, the Israeli attorney stated that the Hague Convention IV Respecting the Laws and Customs of War on Land of 1907 was the legal basis for such actions.

In a statement to Israeli Channel 1 television, a spokesman for the Israeli prime minister’s office stated an undercover unit of the Israeli forces had assassinated Hammad. Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon, stated that “this is not the first operation and it will not be the last one.”

2) Bassem Hashem, 16, injured by shrapnel in the chest.

Palestinian security sources accused Israeli forces of plotting to assassinate Halawa, known as a Hamas activist. Several hours later, the office of the Israeli prime minister issued a statement accusing Halawa of responsibility for a number of attacks that resulted in the killing of 48 Israelis.

5. ‘Abdullah Rashed Jaber Jarushi, 38, Tulkarm

At approximately 08:30 on Wednesday, 31 October 2001, two Israeli tanks positioned in the east of Tulkarm fired at ‘Abdullah Rashed Jarushi, 38, a Hamas activist, wounding him with two live bullets in the chest and the right side. Israeli forces obstructed his evacuation to hospital for 15 minutes. At noon, he was pronounced dead at Tulkarm Hospital.

According to an eyewitness, the victim’s father-in-law, Jarushi came to his house to pick up his wife and children. The family got into Jarushi’s car and traveled several meters towards the center of the city. They were surprised by two Israeli tanks coming from the east towards them. They got out of the car. While Jarushi was getting out of the car, the tanks moved quickly towards him and Israeli soldiers fired at him from a very short distance. The Israeli forces denied the access of ambulances to the area. The eyewitness carried Jarushi and passed by the two tanks, but the Israeli forces threatened to shoot at the ambulance if it moved. Around 15 minutes later, the Israeli forces allowed the ambulance to move after they had taken the victim’s identity card. The victim was evacuated to Tulkarm Hospital, where he was pronounced dead at 12:30. Later, Israeli radio quoted an Israeli military spokesman as saying that Israeli forces killed Jarushi, whom he described as a Hamas activist.

On its Arabic web page, the Israeli daily Yediot Aharanot published photos of wanted members of Hamas assassinated by Israeli occupation forces drawn from an Israeli list of Palestinians targeted by assassinations. The daily newspaper divided these Palestinians into four categories, including alleged bomb makers. Khalifa was among this category.

The statement claimed that the Israeli forces prevented a major suicide attack planned by a Hamas cell in al-Sharom area when combat helicopters fired rockets at a Palestinian taxi near ‘Anabta village, killing two members of the cell, Yasser ‘Assida, from Tel village in Nablus, and Fahmi Abu ‘Eisha, from Nablus, and seriously wounding a third Palestinian, while arresting the driver.

On that day, large number of Israeli troops, reinforced with helicopters, raided ‘Assira village. They indiscriminately opened fire at Palestinian houses while they were chasing Abu Hannud. Conclusion

Since 1967, the international community have recognized that the Israeli army is a belligerent occupying force in the Occupied Palestinian Territories, and that the Geneva Convention Relative the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War of 1949 (the Fourth Geneva Convention) is applicable in this context. The international community have also considered Palestinians in the OPT to be protected persons and that Israel must respect the Convention. The High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention have legal and moral obligations to ensure respect for the Convention in the OPT, to hold accountable those who perpetrate grave breaches of the Convention, and to provide protection for Palestinian civilians. Article 3 of the Convention prohibits "violence to life and person, in particular murder of all kinds, mutilation, cruel treatment and torture" at any time and in any place whatsoever with respect to the protected persons.

Article 146 of the Convention provides:

"Each High Contracting Party shall be under the obligation to search for persons alleged to have committed, or to have ordered to be committed, such grave breaches, and shall bring such persons, regardless of their nationality, before its own courts. It may also, if it prefers, and in accordance with the provisions of its own legislation, hand such persons over for trial to another."

In the face of Israeli practices, PCHR calls upon the international community and the High Contracting Parties:

- To immediately intervene to stop war crimes committed by Israeli occupation forces against Palestinian civilians and to force Israeli to respect the Convention in the OPT;
- To take concrete measures to stop war crimes and other violations of international humanitarian law committed by Israeli occupation forces against Palestinian civilians and ensure Israel's respect for the Fourth Convention in the OPT;
- To provide immediate international protection for Palestinian civilians in the OPT.
